GIANT COMBINE OF ALL MILK PRODUCERS

Milkmen Over Entire Country Figure on Combining—Would Eliminate Strikes

Better milk marketing without the costly milk strikes of the past few months will be striven for by milk producers from all important milkproducing sections of the United States in the first national meeting of milk producers to be held in Chicago Tuesday, December 5, according to a call issued last week. The Milk Producers' association of the Chicago district, an organization that won the milk strike a few months ago and forced the big dealers to come to terms, has issued the call. Some twelve thousand raw milk producers of northern Illinois, southern Wisconsin and northern Indiana make up this organization, which is taking the initiative to bring together the representatives of other big producing districts.

The meeting to be held under the auspices of the National Conference on Markets and Farm credits, which holds its fourth annual gathering at Hotel Sherman, Chicago, December 4-6. Delegates from New England, California, New York, Ohio, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan will be present. Two delegates will represent Lake county.

"The production and distribution of whole milk is undergoing a remarkable transformation," says the call issued by the board of directors of the Milk Producers' association. "The milk producers of America are finding themselves forced to quit the business in large numbers on account of high production costs involving land values and higher labor charges, higher costs of feeds and sanitary requirements. This condition leaves only two alternatives for the milk producers in areas close to large cities. They must either reorganize their methods of producing and distributing their milk or they must go out of business and leave to the farmers of the most distant sections the task of supplying the centers. The latter course would work a great hardship upon thousands of milk producers and we believe is unnecessary if the producer and distributor of milk were placed upon a real efficiency basis."

"Milk producers must, therefore, take upon themselves the working out of fair and equitable methods for collective sales of their milk. They must also work to secure contract prices that range over a longer period than the customary six months contract."

New Demurrage Rate

The Chicago & Northwestern rail way has issued through S. G. Nethercot, assistant general freight agent, a new ruling on demurrage charges, to become effective December 5, 1916, applying to interstate traffic.

Section A of the supplement provides that the expiration of free time allowed which is 45 hours from the time a car is placed, a demurrage charge will be made at the following rate: First day $2.00; second day $3.00; third day $4.00; fourth day and every day thereafter $5.00 per day. On traffic within this state there is no change in the rate charged as demurrage which is $1.00 per day after 48 hours.

The new ruling will make it rather expensive to hold cars longer than the time allowed to unload without demurrage. It probably will remedy the car shortage problem.

Waunakee Gas Gas

A number of our people are now enjoying the benefit of gas and the balance of the work will be completed as soon as more pipes arrive. The workmen are busy installing meters and connecting stoves.

The ditching machine having finished its work has been stored for the winter and Contractor Hoy has left for the south.

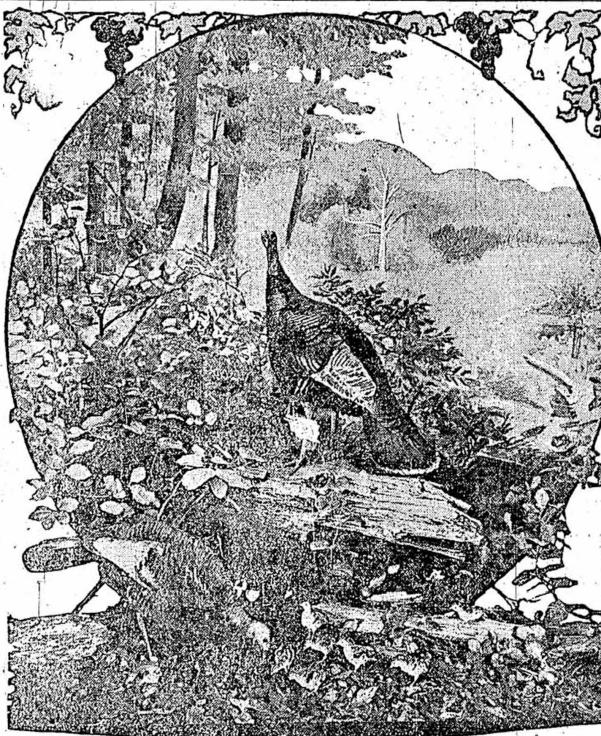

The Public Service company is to be commended for the quick service and fair dealing they have given Waunakee people.—Waunakee Leader.

Prize Set for P. L. Z. & W.

The proposed prize for the P. L. Z. & W. railroad has been fixed at $1,000, according to notice mailed to stockholders last week. The Chicago, Fox Lake & Northern, an electrical road, is seeking to obtain possession of the above named line and connect it to a proposed road they intend to build from Evanston to the state line near Lake Geneva. The offer includes some cash and balance in bonds in the new corporation.

Brief Mention of Numerous Occurrences of the Week—Told by Different Pupils

The pupils in Room 5 had 100 per cent in attendance on Tuesday of this week. They also expect to improve the appearance of the room with new sash curtains.

The pupils in Room 3 are studying about the Pilgrims and making charcoal sketches.

Did you ever cross the Atlantic?

You know how our country looked when the Puritans settled here? If not, come and see the sand table in Room 1. There you will find quidnunc with its dikes, canals and windmills, its people busy and happy. To the west lies the Atlantic and mid-way of the ocean is a sailing vessel, perhaps the Mayflower or a sister ship. Plymouth Rock, too, may be seen, while in the newly colonized land the said Puritans, guns on shoulders, guard their women folk on the way to the meeting house.

The teacher in Room 1, Miss Samuel, with the pupils, will be at home during the week beginning December 4 to the parents and all other interested friends. They are hoping that all of those friends will find it possible to call upon them then.

A number of cases of pink eye have appeared in the community, a condition which will necessitate unusual care on the part of everyone lest it spread.

The enrollment in the three lower rooms is so heavy that some of the high school pupils are being cut out. These girls, Harriet Kamper, Theodosia Brandt and Dorothy Nightingale, are not only giving valuable assistance to the teachers in these rooms—which of course is greatly appreciated now—but are gaining for themselves experience in the handling of little ch'fren which will enable them to do more readily and easily other educational work.

Practicing for "Christmas in Fineño's Flat" is well under way. Don't forget the eighth grade on December 19 at 8 p.m.

Miss Collins, one of the field representatives for Silver Burdett & company, publishers of the music books used throughout the Barrington school, visited the music periods here last Monday. She finds much to commend, especially in the enthusiasm of the pupils to read music quickly and accurately, but like the enthusiast in any proposition, has hosts of valuable suggestions to offer, some of which the teachers hope to see put in practice.

Following is the report kept by the seventh grade pupils on the correlation between the number of A's in deportment in any row and the number of A's in the studies:

I II III IV V VI
1 11 3 3 2 1
2 5 3 3 2 1
10 15 6 8 2 3

Patron of Rural Routes

What do you do for rural carriers? Do you know of a hole or any bad place in front of your house or farm? Do you stop to think that your carrier wants to give you good service and has to go through all kinds of bad weather? Why not make him a little more cheerful by erecting your box in a suitable place and fix up a few of those mud holes or fix up the approach of your box? Do it now while you think about it and set the smile on the carrier's face when next you meet him.

Carrriers are not required to pick up boxes in mail boxes. Meet him and say you have a supply of stamps—he always has them with him. Go out with your neighbor and help your roads and help all you can do the good carriers that you appreciate what they do for you.

THANKSGIVING DAY

That we're at peace with all the world. Safe in our cities and our homes, That unto this, our favored land, Such gift as all in bloom, come. That we go not to bed in darkness, That we do not fear flood.

By anxious hearts for dear ones gone, We thank Thee, Giver of all good.

That no ambitious pride is ours.

That list of conquest does not still That mighty nation's innocent heart.

That we're not to be beaten, kill.

That we're raised to great pride, Fight but to make their wrongs cease.

And only comes to make them free.

We thank Thee, God of love and peace.

That in the streets around us now, We feel our hearts with pity.

And hast to heal the wounded ones.

To both a child and woman's sob.

That we're easier still to share.

With others who have but us to help.

We thank Thee, Father of all men.

ENTERTAINMENT AT SPRING LAKE

School Tuesday Evening Largely Attended—Pupils Hold Attention of Audience for Forty Minutes

Things agricultural and social were on the move at the Spring Lake school Tuesday night. This school has a club organization with Elsie Krich president and Ida Price vice president. These officers took entire charge of the entertainment and the business like and dignified way they did it was worth going a long way to see.

The little stone school house was packed with the directors and citizens of the district. Everybody was happy and things went with a hum; for forty minutes the pupils entertained the audience. The recitations, songs and dialogues were of the highest order and had to do largely with the Thanksgiving spirit.

Director Mickey made a few remarks expressing the idea of the meeting and telling what co-operation would do to bring about success.

The latter part of the program was given by Mr. Farr, who by means of one hundred colored stereopticon views, showed plants and animals on the farm. The work of little farmers with their gardens, poultry, flowers, cow testing, etc., etc., was emphasized.

Miss Florence Daecher, a neighbor, had prepared the lantern without the slightest kind of a break. The pictures thrown on the screen by means of calcium light were of the highest quality.

The school room through the activity of the teacher and the co-operation of the women of the district, had been kept in first class condition. All kinds of farm products, especially corn, hung about the room. Much credit is due the teacher, Miss Florence Elers. The pupils assisting were Elmer Redmer, Henry Krich, George Krich, Helen Krich, Otto Krich, Almina Krich, Margaret Krich, Adaline Dilapre, Col. Frank O. Lowden's Views

Col. Frank O. Lowden of Oregon, in a recent interview thrown in his remarks on his interests when he said he once owned a Shorthorn bull that had won blue ribbons throughout the United States; its costs no more to raise good live stock, which will give better returns when marketed, than to raise a "scrub" and the "scrub" must go. Live stock production is not keeping pace with the increase of population in the United States, and henceforth intensive use of productive capacity must be relied upon to supply the increased needs of this increase of population.

"Some of my most satisfying holidays have been my visits to the International Live Stock Exposition, held the first week in December at Chicago. I have been an exhibitor several years at this show and naturally I look back with pardonable pride to my winning them.

"Sixteen years ago this exposition was born of great necessity and it is today the leading exponent of the movement for the improvement of the domestic farm animals in the United States, and its splendid work of raising the standards in the breeding of better cattle, hogs, sheep and horses is over where evident. It teaches great original lessons which no one interested in life stock and agriculture can afford to miss, and is deserving of the hearty support and patronage of the American agriculturist."

THOUSAND DOLLARS REWARD IS OFFERED

For Capture of Train Robbers Who Boarded Train Here Held Up The Expressman

The south bound Chicago & Northwestern passenger train, due in Barrington at 5:45 p.m., as it is said, Thursday by two men, who it is said, boarded the train here, coming out from Chicago on an afternoon passenger train a few hours previous.

Soon after the train left the station both men entered the express car. The messenger was just carrying a sack of flour across the car when they entered and with pointed revolvers compelled him to raise his hand. They took his keys and gun, opened the safe and at their leisure, as the train was speeding towards Chicago, opened all the envelopes containing money. Having finished their work they turned their attention again to Caper, the messenger. Twice they threatened to kill him if he did not give them all the information they wanted.

When the train slowed up at Clybourn Junction the men dropped out of a side door and escaped. The train was pulling into the terminal when the messenger was able to free himself from his bonds and notified the conductor.

The robbers wore stocking caps purchased at Meyer's store and with them was a woman, who bought the rope from Schroeder's hardware store with which to tie the expressman.

Reports were circulated that the robbers succeeded in getting away with $1,000, but a much larger sum was recovered by the American Express company and the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad company for their capture, many persons believing that money far in excess of $1,000 was obtained.

The description of the men is given as follows: Each about five feet six or eight inches in height, weight 140 to 150 pounds, apparently 25 years of age. This train after leaving Barrington does not make a stop until it reaches Clybourn Junction, and no doubt the holdup men knew their game well, as their plans were successful.

Meeting of Men

A good representation of men of the Methodist Episcopal church met at the parsonage on Tuesday evening, being specially invited by Dr. T. Atkey Brewster. Matters were talked over, plans suggested and a provisional program outlined, the purpose of which is to inspire "work for men by men." When the organization was first started with Dr. George A. Little president and C. H. Stover, secretary, the meeting adjourned to meet on Monday evening, December 4, immediately after the session of the official board, at the church where it is expected a permanent organization will be launched. All men of the church and others interested in the movement are cordially invited to be present.

After the meeting at the parsonage adjourned Mrs. T. A. Brewster served the guests with dainty refreshments. The men spent but only a profitable but a most enjoyable time and declared unanimously they would surely come again."

To Build Fine Country Residence

William Waller, Jr., of Chicago who purchased the Donlea farm, situated six miles northwest of this village on Fox river, several months ago, is planning to make extensive improvements on the premises. It is said that he will build one of the finest country residences in this vicinity. A new farm residence and barn will also be built for Fred Kuphal, the farm manager.

Clarke & Wyne of Lake Forest have the contract and work on the farm buildings has been commenced.

Johns U. S. Army

The HOME BEAUTIFUL

Flowers and Shrubs
Their Care and Cultivation

A Garden of Bulbs—Note the Hyacinths and Tulips in the Background. A Fine Study for Future Planting.

WAR THREATENS FLOWERS

By ELIZABETH VAN BENTHUYSEN
It is a good, far cry from the grim horrors of war to the pretty hyacinths and the crocus, but recent news brings the interesting information that the great European conflict is presenting a serious menace to the chief source of American flowers.

Private advices received in New York from flower folk in Holland, who cannot be considered as precluded on account of the fact that the state of war says that there is danger of having the bulb supply for the next half century destroyed. Holland has her army ready to fight either side, and she has a number of issues which might make her entry possible. As a first item of defense she plans to flood all the lands in her dike system.

This say the flower experts, will result in the destruction of the great bulb industry. Not for 50 years, according to the sages of flowerdom, will the industry recover from such a calamity.

All of which is but a news preface to the remark that the raising of bulbs in pots, pans and glasses during the winter months is a simple and inexpensive way to meet any emergency of the requirements. Among the many methods by which bulbs can be successfully grown, there are:

In soil placed in pots and with drainage at the bottom.

In fiber, which is a light, spongy material, prepared with a view to prevent souring. Bowls, jardinières, vases or any other receptacle where the roots can find hold may be used.

With sand, with charcoal sand in the bottom of glasses, to prevent the bulbs from falling over.

Hyacinths, narcissus, daffodils, tulips and crocus are among the joys that are easily possible with little effort. Almost every dealer in the country has his stock of bulbs ready for the market.

If forcing is wanted, the larger bulbs should be taken. The greater danger of storage, however, The last of November is not too late for planting, and the treatment of all bulbs is about the same, except that tulips take more time than the others.

Here are a few hints:

A six-inch pot is the best for all purposes.

Use light garden soil in potting.

Place a piece of broken pot over the hole in the bottom to secure drainage.

Fill the pot three-quarters with soil, three hyacinths, as many narcissus, five tulips and a dozen crocuses can be placed in a six-inch pot.

Space evenly.

The practice of placing a layer of clean sand directly under the bulbs is always good. It helps keep the newly formed roots clean, but it is not essential. The soil, when covering the collar is a good place to place the pot.

The keeping of the soil damp is thereby aided. In the winter proper some of the quick-growing species may be grown in water. Hyacinths, paper-white narcissus and sacred lilies are among the best for this purpose.

Fill the pot with water.

Notice that it just touches the bottom of the bulbs, and set in a dark place until the glass is filled with roots. Then bring into the room, and change the water once or twice a week. Temperature of from 60 to 65 degrees is about right for the venture.

Personally, I like to experiment with small pots.

LITTLE NOTES OF INTEREST

Trees and shrubbery may be planted just as long as the ground remains unfrozen.

The department of agriculture of the United States will have $30,128,852 available from this year's appropriations for the advancement of farm and ranch lands in the United States, through the needs of war and other useless and unproductive items is considered.

There is a right and a wrong way to cut a rose. When a rose is cut from the ten and perpetual blossoms only two or three eyes (the current season's growth) should be left.

This is important to the flower lover just now, than the ultimate indemnity to be paid by the loser of the European war.

TOP COAT NOW A NECESSITY

Unless a Woman Is Willing to Be Content with a Coat Blouse and Separate Skirt She Must Include That Article of Apparel in Wardrobe This Winter.

New York.—The woman who goes hunting winter clothes cannot fail to be surprised, even though she thinks herself prepared for it, at the number of new and novel articles offered.

It is not possible to carry through the cold weather with any of the new clothes unless one adds a coat to the wardrobe, and a smartly-turned-out one at that. So, unless one is willing and able to buy a new coat—for it is improbable that an old one will do—then it is safer and wiser to stick to the American uniform—a coat with a wide, full collar.

What appeals to the economy and satisfies the pride of being well dressed in a thin one-piece frock of satin on cloth is the fact that it serves for every occasion when one must enter some form of gayety during the day. One would be exaggerating the truth to say that the coat and skirt, no matter how well made, are not comfortable this season for indoor affairs, but one must be reasonably cautious about using them for any hour but those spent in routine work.

Reason for Cloth Suits.
It may be that, with the exception of our winter coat, the coat comes to which the great majority pin their faith and on which they place the largest part of their dress allowance. As to the top coat, the garment has been reached its apex this season, there is no method by which its variety could be boxed in a small space of writing matter.

In trying to begin the season, it is almost essential to have evening gowns which have borrowed lines from the pretties of the fifteenth-century fashions. There is no list of the futuristic school in these colors. We are not listening to a call from the years to come; but harkening to the far off of the past, a seemingly fit thing to do in an epoch which has been turned backward five centuries is the method of extorting a masquini.

Garnments That Develop.
The top coat covers all. It has no half measures this season. The only necessity for wearing a frack allowance is that you may wish to take it off in a public place. It reaches to the waist, they are picked up by a mere touch, and the wearer is surprised to think that the trend of fashion may turn this way before the New Year. These jackets are not after the Eton model, nor do they have the least resemblance with the army jacket of the British soldiers. They have a tendency to become basques under the slight pressure of the hand. The waist is fitted to the figure, there are darts in front, the fastening is negligible with a button at one shoulder and another at the waist. In order that a resemblance to a basque should be further extended, the darts pinch in whatever fullness might occur at the waistline, and the pleats are cut in points.

This is the idea of Miss Paquin, and there are several varieties of it. It is quite natural that we should be a bit weary of the blouse of the peasant that has been with us for over three years, and no skirts are definitely long. It is well to regard this shortening of the jacket as an augury of the near future.

Glory of the Top Coat.

So much for what has descended new in the winter coat. The most interesting of our winter coats, the coat to which the great majority pin their faith and on which they place the largest part of their dress allowance. As to the top coat, the garment has been reached its apex this season, there is no method by which its variety could be boxed in a small space of writing matter.

Little Bedtime Story.
"I don't know," said Peter Brown's boy, "talking about the awful trouble in Europe," said Peter Rabbit. "What is coming off there?"

"Why, men with terrible guns are killing each other, and—" began Sam.

"Well, that is a 'new one on me,'" I have seen quite a few men with to do anything with the weapons but guns, and never knew the gentlemen drag them muzzle forearms through hedgerows and bramble patches and shoot themselves. I thought that was what those terrible guns were made for."—Kansas City Star.

Easy Money.

"What did you say your business was?"

"I am a critic."

"You might say people?"

"You might say yes," and do you mean to tell me you get paid for that?"

If a girl is pretty her knowledge of the fact is apt to spoil the effect.

OLD MEN AND THEIR JOBS

A recent newspaper dispatch reports a move to secure pensions for superannuated government employees. The gray beard of the departments has always been one of Washington's most perplexing problems. In spite of all the red tape that interferes with government efficiency, the government clerk is apt to be a hard working man. He has at least done his best for Uncle Sam. It is a hard proposition to know what to do with him when he gets by the age of greatest efficiency.

In business it is much the same. There are a great many concerns that keep him long after the time when he really earns his pay. But in perhaps more he is coldly and curiously told that his place is needed by a younger man. It is a bitter day when he is turned adrift. His heart and hands are as ready to work as ever, but the snap and vim of youth have gone. He absolutely is not worth a great deal of money, but the world seems to turn to dust and ashes when he is told that fact.

The preposition in the movement referred to is to establish a government pension system for aged employees. It may be possible to work this out. But the tax payers already regard the cost of government too high. If the departments could be systematized by the same kind of business ability that organizes a big factory, they ought to be able to pay their present wages, provide pensions and not increase the costs at all.

The individual worker needs to think carefully over this question of superannuation. Most men grow into elderly life realizing that their power is gradually slipping from them. They spend money freely and then are out of sorts with the social system because someone does not supply the needs which they themselves have failed to anticipate.

In the long run it pays a business concern to have a heart. It cannot decide all relations between its employees simply on the basis of paying so much labor for cash. It has to create favorable sentiment in its own workshops and in the community it serves. Where it can recognize long terms of service by special favors, it creates a sentiment of loyalty that does not otherwise exist.

SCHOOL CONSOLIDATION

The matter of general education in this country has reached a point where more and serious consideration will have to be given the question of consolidation of rural schools.

On one fact there can be no question, our country has reached a period in its history when its people must be given education. Ignorance and illiteracy are no longer compatible with twentieth century life.

Every person at all familiar with conditions under which the country schools are maintained knows that under these conditions it is absurd

Foreseeing Our Christmas Needs

Each year it seems that the holiday season comes to us earlier. Each year deer ride. Distracted parents and grandparents who allow his or her shopping tour to go by default until the day or so before Santa Claus takes his annual reindeer ride. We seek through the depleted and picked over stocks of goods, worrying worn out clerks too tired to give them aid, and finally in sheer despair purchase what they don't want and go away empty-handed.

In contrast is the sensible habit of those who are particular about what they have done their Christmas shopping.

*But the habit of foreseeing our Christmas needs is a most commendable one and the way in which the merchants prepare for the early purchasers is a most utilitarian practice. No one knows how much money has been wasted by the slothful shopper who allows his or her shopping tour to go by default until the day or so before Santa Claus takes his annual reindeer ride. Distracted parents and grandparents who allow his or her shopping tour to go by default until the day or so before Santa Claus takes his annual reindeer ride. Distracted parents and grandparents who allow his or her shopping tour to go by default until the day or so before Santa Claus takes his annual reindeer ride. Distracted parents and grandparents who allow his or her shopping tour to go by default until the day or so before Santa Claus takes his annual reindeer ride.

to even hope that a child may obtain a competent education therein. With a school house to every two or three miles of territory, dividing up the attendance and multiplying the number of teachers, two unavoidable consequences result—terms are shortened and in many instances inferior teachers are employed.

It is a fact, patent to all intelligent observers, that to attain any proficiency in teaching the person must choose this as his or her life work and must labor to equip themselves for efficient service. To this end there must be sufficient inducement. The utter absurdity of a three or four months term at $30 or $35 per month furnishing that inducement is plain to all.

One of the greatest possible detriments to the proper education of a child is an incompetent teacher, and that the conditions just described are fast flooding the land with a lot of incompetent is plain to all. And the child is the sufferer. Where he should be rightly and thoroughly grounded in all the different branches, in reality he frequently has but an imperfect and sometimes even a wrong groundwork to build on, the results of which are often disastrous to the welfare of the whole nation.

Again, it is too plain even for argument that no community can educate its children on four and six months terms of school. Practically the entire accumulations of the short term are forgotten during the long vacation.

There are then two indisputable requisites to the proper education of our rural population—competent instructors and school terms sufficiently long. Of course in the densely populated districts schools can be maintained of sufficient size to guarantee the length of term, as this depends almost entirely on per capita, and given the term with an adequate salary the competent teacher is easily secured and the children's best interests conserved.

But in the sparsely settled districts this is not the case, and here arises the imperative need of consolidation—reducing the number of schools, thereby increasing the funds available for each, thus insuring the desired results of a longer term and more competent teacher.

As to just how consolidation may best be accomplished must be left almost entirely to local conditions to determine. The public conveyance plan is working well in many sections. The development of good roads is also having a beneficial effect and aiding in the solution. But as we stated, this is entirely a local question and must be worked out locally.

The important point is that the people be brought to see the absolute necessity for sufficient consolidation of our schools to accomplish the desired results. Given this conviction we have no fears but the solution of the problem of ways and means will be worked out.

We believe that the end of the European war is a long way off, but at the same time we would be willing to wager that it will be settled before the Mexican situation.

is an Old Institution.
Despite popular opinion to the contrary, Thanksgiving day as an institution is not peculiarly American. For history shows that all ancient nations used to celebrate some feast of a thanksgiving nature, while most of the tribes of our American Indians had a harvest festival, even setting foot on the shores of the new world.

By the Greeks and Romans the festival days in honor of the goddesses of agriculture were times of rustic sport, of processions through the fields and the decorating of the home with fruits and flowers. Small numbers of us are served, because the least, are served. Indeed, a really thankful heart will extract more for gratitude from everything.—J. B. Macduff.

The Thankful Spirit.
Cultivate the thankful spirit. It will be the theme a perpetual feast. There is, or ought to be, with us no such thing as small numbers. We are served, because the least, are served. Indeed, a really thankful heart will extract more for gratitude from everything.—J. B. Macduff.

In addition to its fight against local piggers, the city of Waukegan is investigating shipments of whisky from Chicago to its residents through the mails. Waukegan is dry territory and the postal regulations prohibit the use of the mails for sending liquor. Recently, postal clerks discovered by accident that such shipments were being made to Waukegan residents. It is likely that Uncle Sam will take the matter in hand and that there will be prosecutions.

47-3 FREE HOMESTEAD AND MINERAL CLAIMS

There are 400,000 acres open to homestead entry in Arkansas, according to a recent issue of the Traveler and Homesteader, the agricultural and development magazine of Arkansas. The recent opening of the Ozark National Forest and the development of rich mineral claims has interested and attracted to Arkansas people from every state in the union. Thousands have secured homesteads and many have become wealthy from mineral claims.

This publication, which is full of interesting information on Arkansas, is making special efforts to bring the attention of the public to the wonderful opportunities offered the homeseker and investor, and has for distribution a large three-colored homestead and state map, the most complete map published, showing the National Forest, the vacant lands in each county, towns, streams, etc., which is $1.00, with a three months' subscription for $2.00 or $3.00 each for year's subscription with full information on securing a homestead and mineral claim. Address Traveler and Homesteader Magazine, Harrison, Arkansas, Circulation Department.

The report of the Interstate Commerce Commission for year ending June 30, 1916, shows 62 passengers killed and 2422 injured on the railroads in the United States getting on and off moving trains.

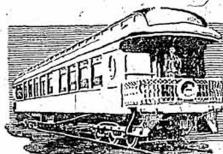

July 31, 1916, a passenger lost his life trying to get on a moving train at Irving Park station. September 14, 1916, another passenger was killed going off a moving train at Chicago terminal.

A number of other passengers have been seriously injured in the same manner. Why take this chance? If you do you may be the next victim. Better be careful than crippled.
