EDITORIAL:

Enterprises usually start out with a great flourish, some of them die out and gradually diminish in size and power. In the first place, the students themselves are always prodding the employees along in order to make the business a success and keep it open. This is the way it is with the high school notes of the Barrington Review. The students worked diligently to secure the sufficient number of reporters who were best suited to the work and to the school situation. During the first part of the school year one reporter, however, had to leave the school and the news section flourished. Lately, however, it has taken a great slump and hardly any news is received. We are still operating on a loss basis. Let us come out of our lethargy and make this section a credit to our dear old "G. S. B. R."

B. H. S. NEWS

WEDNESDAY, DR. HERBERT arrived at Barrington. Dr. Herbert arrived for the Chamber of Commerce. As he came early in the afternoon, Dr. Smith gave him a tour of the school and then sent him to the school to have a talk with the students. There about at noon he can be expected to appear before the assembly, which was unusually crowded. He did not speak with the school students but also the pupils of the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades. After a hearty reception and after an enthusiastic reception he gave us an encouraging talk. He said that we must not be afraid to do with this what was its extreme shortness. We were very glad to have Dr. Herbert with us, though it was for so short a time.

Every Tuesday is a pleasant time for the students to have a meeting. This plan has been adopted to do away with the unnecessary contacts that are made when any class needs a meeting.

Every day must be out of the building by 4 o'clock, unless he has some necessary business to transact. Because at that time all doors will be locked.

Some of us, by this time, have nearly forgotten the effect produced by being allowed our monthly pay at the report card. One of our coaches, Mr. Palmer, who has been with us since Mr. Smythe talked, has, however, given a short

Friday meeting. Peep meetings are enjoyed immensely by all the students. They collect in the school cafeteria to make a noise, and leave us to be borne away for no excuse for not rectifying.

The first semester is almost over. Now the reviews show up here and there. The students are to be congratulated for their excellent work. Book reports are weighing heavily on our hearts. The students are to be congratulated. There are still the semester examinations, but following the exams comes short bites with nothing to do for three or four months. (cynical: "Wonda!").

The French II class has been doing its best in giving gaudy and sundry charming little French words and expressions learned from the French I class. The class is thinking seriously of trying out for open.

Friskies are learning how to use the dictionary. They have big hopes of becoming models of pronunciation and enunciation. Already they are thoroughly versed in all freshman English.

The successful payment of the "Country Gentleman" received the awards last Monday. Those who had sold three subscriptions received a Eversharp pencil; those who sold six received a miniature fountain pen; and those who sold ten were given a book. There were many awards given out especially to the Freshmen. The following is a list of the prizes given awards:

Scope of the News
Our American literature class has begun the study of the "Book of Composition," which we have just finished, was rather lengthy and hard to understand, but we succeeded in understanding it.

The history class is busily at work on maps, term papers, etc. Our countrymen have arrived in class, which most of us are heavily hearted for. Now we will have to sit through the history of the world in his history lesson. (We wonder how he will do in this class?)

Grace's team is to be shamed in the accuracy of its typewriting, but Grace's team is not far behind.

WE WONDER:

Why there is such a rush to the school library of late?

Now we have to buy books depending where we have to outfit the collateral reading?

WE WONDER:

What is the matter with Mary Edith? Ask Edith Work.

BARRINGTON, ILL.

SURPLUS FARM CROPS

Due to overproduction, of several farm crops last year, particularly cotton and corn, with the inevitable lowering of prices, plans for relieving the situation thus created are being earnestly considered by farm organizations and government agencies.

Bills looking to federal assistance in disposing of surplus crops are being proposed in Congress, while farm bureaus and other similar bodies are urging a curtailment of acreage to be devoted to certain products next year.

Meantime the International Harvester Co., with its plan to accept corn at a dollar a bushel in payment for farm machinery, has done something definite to help the farmer out; in his present shortage of ready cash, as well as to create confidence in the future of the commodity.

"It is a great measure which the International Harvester Company puts into effect when it offers to guarantee a minimum price of a dollar for corn to the extent to which the corn is used for purchase of farm implements from the company," the Chicago Journal of Commerce says.

"The company's prime purpose is to restore confidence in agriculture, and especially in the corn raising part of agriculture. Corn was selling at eighty-two cents on the Chicago Board of Trade when the company made its announcement. It has not sold as high as a dollar since last September. Many farmers have been unable to sell their corn at this price, but the International Harvester Company believes corn is destined to rise to a dollar or higher by next spring or summer, at which belief it makes its offer."

That something should be done toward stabilizing prices of farm products is indisputable. Just what ought to be done, or can be done, presents a difficult problem.

The natural tendency of production of a given crop to "see-saw" is well known. A short crop in one year causes high prices, which encourage larger planting the next year. Then, if weather conditions are especially favorable, great overproduction results, and prices tumble, often causing the farmer to suffer an actual loss in spite of his big crop.

This condition the International Harvester Company's offer somewhat alleviates. The company offers to sell machinery to a farmer now, on his promise to pay for it in corn next May, June or July. Delivery of the corn is to be made at the time desired by the company, thirty days' notice being given. For every bushel of No. 2 corn so delivered, the company pays a dollar.

Tragically, the farmer, in the regulation of crop production in their own hands, through greater diversification and the limiting of acreage devoted to crops likely to show a surplus. But it is hard to secure cooperation on a large scale.

Cooperative marketing has secured good results in many instances, but even cooperative marketing can afford only a small measure of relief. When there is a great surplus of any crop throughout the world, the law of supply and demand will govern, and to a large extent, in spite of all the artificial measures that may be devised to stabilize them, as, for instance, the company says, "confidence begets confidence." Undoubtedly the company's announcement will have a distinctly beneficial effect. And if the farmers are benefited, the International Harvester Company, which so greatly depends on the farmers, will also benefit.

"The company has done itself a good turn. It has made a business move which is highly intelligent. For that it deserves respect. It has also made an agricultural move which is highly beneficial to the farmer. For that it deserves gratitude."

NEW SCIENCE TRIUMPH

Another triumph of medical science, announced from Toronto, Canada, is the discovery of a new extract, said to have proven of great value in the treatment of high blood pressure and other life-threatening ailments which have hitherto baffled physicians.

An elderly physician who was one of the first patients treated by the new method, declares that his blood pressure was reduced to normal and that he was entirely freed from depressing symptoms, enabling him to resume his practice. No recurrence of his trouble had taken place a month after treatment had been discontinued. Other patients reported similar results.

An exhaustive test of the new remedy, which is an extract made from the liver of two-year-old cattle, will be made. After full confirmation of its beneficial effects is obtained, the discovery will be given to the world.

Thus, one by one the boddily ills which beset the human race are being conquered through the patient labors of devoted scientists. In other lines of endeavor, the same class of earnest investigators are remaking the world in which we live.

Yet through ignorance and superstition, millions of people still shun at science and scientists.

NEWS GETTING STALE

It has long been recognized that the news value of an occurrence depends mainly upon its unusual features, as was illustrated by the well-known remark attributed to a famous New York editor, who instructed his staff thus:

"If a dog bites a man, it is not news. If a man bites a dog, it is news."

Measured by this standard, most of the current offerings of the daily press are not news. Accounts of crime are getting stale. Reports of murders, robberies, automobile accidents, running, bribery, graft and the like are too commonplace to excite any particular interest.

Stories of state and municipal scandals in connection with the handling of public funds, or pertaining to law enforcement, are part of the daily routine.

If some enterprising reporter could find a city of any size where vice and crime are not rampant, and write it up in good style, he would score a great newspaper beat.

WHY WOMEN ARE LATE

From time immemorial husbands have complained of the long time it took their wives to dress; men have observed that women did not heed the flight of time, but carried on seemingly interminable telephone conversations without realizing how long they talked, and so on.

The apparent lack of regard for time by the fair sex has been the source of endless comment—often profane. But now it has all been explained, thanks to modern psychology.

University show that women just cannot help it. They don't realize the meaning of "prompt."

These tests developed the fact that women on an average estimate the time it takes them to perform a given task at about one-half the actual time required. Dr. Isabel Stewart, who conducted the both men and women, said:

"Men estimate more accurately. The inaccurate women imply that time really seems shorter to women than to men."

Which recalls the joke of a paragraph who wrote: "Married men do not live longer; it just seems longer."

FEED THE BIRDS

This is the time of year that man's feathered friends find it particularly hard to secure food. With the ground, trees, and all vegetation covered with a crust of ice and snow, it next to impossible for them to find seeds and grains to keep alive.

Housewives will perform a humane act if they throw their table scraps, such as bread crumbs, bits of meat, scraps of suit, apple parings and seeds, where the birds can get them, and they will be well repaid by the sight of the cheery, brave little winter birds around the yard.

They will be repaid again with interest next summer, when all the birds will be doing their best to destroy man's insect enemies.
