

Games in Honor of Old St. Pat Are Revived

Next Saturday is St. Patrick's Day and parties will be held that evening in honor of the saint. A series of games described by Gideons of the Young Men's Christian Association, Chicago.

The Rocky Road to Dublin

If the roads are rough enough, a good game for the entertainers is to blindfold and make go from one side to the other and climb over a few number of steps. The person who reaches the other end first without knocking over any obstacles is the winner. Another way is to quickly arrive in the city in which the contestants are to compete. Another way is to quickly remove the obstacles after the names are blindfolded and make go from one side to the other and around the obstacles which are set in the way.

Take ordinary bricks and tie them up in paper or cloth carefully and glue each end. These make excellent bricks. At a signal all start from one side and race to the other end. This is done by laying a brick on the ground and then laying another brick ahead of it and stepping on the tail of the set first. The person falling off the set and placing it down for the third step is the winner. This is done in the other end and without coming back all set three ways other than the other end and race to the other end to complete.

Quick Refreshments

Green candies may be stuck in Irish potato to light the flame. For refreshments, the following is a good idea of some ideas. Green peas, cut in small pieces, add to the tongue and cut in shapeless shapes, add to the tongue. Green peas, cut in shapes or are oysters wrapped in strips of bacon, add to the tongue. Small balls of bacon covered with bacon crumb, which look like small pretzels, add to the tongue. The one who eats the best Irish peas wins.

Wearing of the Green

Have a number of different slips of paper on which are written names on which are written titles that are to be worn on St. Patrick's Day. For example, General Green, or any other name you wish. One of these is placed on the back of each person. The one who tries to get as many of the names as possible is the winner. This is done without letting anyone see what is on his back. The person who gets the most while a blouse and the reward goes to the person who gets the largest number of names correctly.

Take the green shamrocks which can be either made or bought by the hundred. Make a small green shamrock on each little shamrock. This is done by taking a small room where the party is held, divide the crowd into two or three sides, and see which side can first find the shamrock. Starkey Sticks

A glass globe or something like a bottle and one end must hold it long enough to write on it. The bottle must be made to give a small electrical shock when it is broken. These bottles are so as to hit the shams rock in the winter.
