LET US BE THANKFUL

Let us make Thanksgiving Day, in this year of 1923, a day of real thanksgiving. Only by comparing our condition with that of our ancestors may we realize what our present-day civilization really means.

Two thousand years ago, the Amazons had only material efforts to be grateful for. The average person toiled long hours to earn the barest necessities of life, with no luxuries. Few had sufficient food or clothing; disease was unchecked and suffering was unrelied. Education was denied to the great mass of the population, while the natural aspirations of mankind were stifled.

Today the average American is born to virtual enslavement of both body and mind, through the domination of cruel masters and rulers. Human beings were shown less consideration than beasts, and their life was held as the world's lowest commodity.

How different today, although man's inhumanity to man still causes much needless suffering. At least we have emerged from barbarism and there is more of sympathy and charity and helpfulness in the world than ever before.

The working man today has luxuries not dreamed of in the past. He has ample clothing, shelter and food; many have automobiles and a radio set; he may enjoy the movies and other amusements; books, newspapers and magazines are within his reach.

As a general rule, the "truth" is we are all of us living in luxury, a very grand form of luxury, as compared with conditions in every other country, or with conditions that existed in this country even a few decades ago.

For all these blessings let us be thankful, not only on Thanksgiving Day, but every day.

NEW FARM BILL

It is indicated that strong efforts will be made to pass a farm relief measure during the short session of Congress, although such an accomplishment is by no means certain. A new bill closely following the general lines of the farm relief measure, is being worked out by Senator McNary. It is intended to eliminate the famous "equalization fee" feature, which has been the chief bone of contention in the past.

It is indicated that the proposed bill will be fully indemnified, so that it will have to loan to farm associations at a very low rate of interest. By this means, while the credit of the government will be available to assist the movement, the farm organizations will not be subjected to Federal control to the extent proposed by the equalization fee plan.

Reporters are indicating that the plan, which may be finally adopted, is to be so arranged that the benefits to be derived from it will depend to a large extent upon the measure of co-operation accorded by the farmers themselves.

In fact, the whole farm problem is greatly influenced by the inability of farm leaders to form a really effective farm organization, and the failure of these leaders to agree among themselves respecting the best method of solving the existing situation.

Therefore, the review would do some earnest thinking and planning concerning his own operations, and will not depend too much on the promises of politicians.

THE FARM OF THE FUTURE

Electricity is solving many farm difficulties. By doing away with slow, expensive and inefficient physical labor, it is today bringing in an agricultural revolution similar to the great changes that took place during the period when power was introduced into industry.

The practical experimental farm recently established by the Public Service Co., at Menomonee is a good augury for the future. It is of 80 acres and is being used to raise hogs and chickens, the three great enthusiasms of those who advocate diversified farming.

All of the cow's needs are supplied cheaply and quickly by power. The hay is pitched by an electric motor, and the water pumped into automatic tanks. Electricity cuts the feed and lifts it into bins. Electric milks the cows, and the kitchen work is done by electric refrigerators and the like.

Plots are kept away from the cows in them by an electric killer that attracts them with bait, and when they touch it, electrocutes them.

For the feed is a likewise electrically prepared and their hours are limited by an electric timer.

Electricity operates the incubator and young chickens are treated with ultraviolet rays to prevent sickness. Use of electric light in the men's working day is lengthened to as much as 16 hours, increasing winter production.

The farm house is equipped with almost every known and perfected electric labor saving device.

This farm is considered as an experiment, in proving an outstanding practical success. Unless all signs fail, it is a model for the future.

CABINET GUESSES

Politicians and newspapermen are busy picking President-elect Hoover's cabinet, just as they are in guessing what President Coolidge and Governor Al Smith will do when their term of office expires.

Here are some of the cabinet guesses:

Secretary of State: Ambassador to France, Mr. Belmont; for secretary of state, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Mellon, Mr. Thompson, for attorney-general, "Wild Bill" Thompson, at present assistant; Dr. Julius Klein, Foreign trade expert, the man most frequently mentioned.

Secretary of War: Mr. Smith, who has been a favorite in the campaign; some believe a Southern man will be given an important cabinet post.

Whether any of the guesses will prove correct is just another guess, because Mr. Hoover himself recently said:

"A truthful declaration on the cabinet members will be announced by me and all other statements will be based on theory and conjecture."

In the meantime, Mr. Hoover's tour of Central and South America will be a combination of business and pleasure, no small portion of the pleasure being a temporary respite from the importunity of office seekers.

THE OTHER HOOVER

For persons outside of Washington know that there is already a Hoover attached to the White House, and has been for a while. Irvin H. Hoover, chief usher, who has served 32 years, came to the executive mansion during the latter part of Cleveland's administration and has been there since.

He has the important duty of receiving the President's callers and ushering them into the executive's presence, besides performing many other services around the White House. He is said to be the most indispensable.

Recently when reminded that it would be odd for him to serve a President also named Hoover, he cautiously replied that possibly the President would think on Hoover on the job.

Hoover, on his long service, efficiency and dependability, there is no doubt, however, that he will be retained in his present capacity indefinitely or retained on a pension.

HAIR-SPLITTERS AGAIN

Having nothing better to do, perhaps, some of our pedants are amusing themselves by criticizing the use of certain words in common speech in drawing hair-splitting distinctions with respect to their meanings. For example, the words "candidate" and "president-elect."

The purists declare that when a person assumes himself as an aspirant for office he is a "candidate," but after receiving a regular nomination, then the name he is no longer a candidate, but a "nominee." Again, they say that it is wrong at present to refer to Mr. Hoover as the "president-elect," because he has not yet been formally elected by the electoral college.

All of which will appear to practical people as being rather trivial, just as it is this comment of ours.

WITTY AND WISE

Gov. was the first Kansan, according to Gov. Horace of Minneapolis, which will probably make the Kansan feel like a fool.

A Minnesotan who signs credit "Travellers trust in me" is a Minnesotan.

Doctors declare that failing to rest will restore a man's health faster than trying to sleep.

The average age of convicts is younger than formerly, which is another argument in favor of the present generation.

Don't be sure you're wrong; then go into reverse.

Illinois State Newsletter

Springfield—To satisfy the demand for local clinical specialties, Dr. H. E. Reddenburg, director of the state department of health, has recommended that the state be divided into 10 districts, each to be under the charge of a medical director.

Learn From Your Keenest Competitors, High's Advice

By FRED HIGH

Of the article contributed by Mr. High in the last issue, the most widely discussed is his article on "The Merchant as Predator or Predator," as he is generally known.

In that article we pointed out the facility of trying to solve this vexing problem by the use of state laws, ordinances and state legislation.

One of the ways that merchants can be made to "pay" is to cause them to believe that they are the "predator" or "causus."

The "predator" is the merchant who is the "predator" and the "causus" is the consumer.

The "predator" is to make it difficult and impossible for the consumer to realize that he is the "causus."

The "causus" is to make it difficult and impossible for the merchant to realize that he is the "predator."

BOOKS

An Editorial in the Illinois State Journal says:

If the world's wise were polled, they would say the question "What is the most important book ever written?" would be answered by the question "What is the most important book ever written for children?"

Children's Book Week, beginning Saturday, November 24, will be observed in Illinois, Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Kentucky, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida.

The purpose of the week is to bring the best books for children to the attention of parents, teachers, librarians, and the public.

Books for children are to be recommended, and the week is to be observed in all the states.

Ruth's Mate Proves He Is Man's Man

Baptist, New Zealand.—When the set of the Byrd Antarctic expedition's publications at that meeting off place of birth, he said, "I am a man, and I will be just another astron-

Washington, D. C.—Americans use $1,000,000,000 more on the average during the shopping days, according to a day-to-day survey of the Federal Trade Commission to October by the federal reserve board.

It is the first time that the survey has been made, and it is expected to be just another astronaut for the commander. It may turn out to be his greatest—if all goes well—but I am still a man, and I will be first of many achievements."

No. 5 of a Series on 'Metropolitan Chicago'

"Showing why Metropolitan Chicago has every possibility of becoming the world's foremost metropolitan center—in population as well as in trade importance—and in a day's time next. Leading authorities predict fifteen million population for Metropolitan Chicago within a lifetime.

COAL AVAILABLE TO METROPOLITAN CHICAGO EQUALS FIVE TIMES THE COAL RESERVES OF ALL EUROPE

A SMALL trading post less than one hundred years ago—a center of 4,500,000 people today. That is the romantic story of 'Metropolitan Chicago'. No other modern metropolitan center has ever grown so large in so short a civic lifetime. And this remarkable growth is due in no small measure to our advantageous sources of coal supply.

Imagine, if you can, America stripped of her fuel supply. What would happen? Factories would close their doors. Machines would lay idle. Industries would cease. And our big cities would crumble.

More than three-fourths of all the coal produced in the United States is already available to Metropolitan Chicago. The coalavailabletoMetropolitanChicago equals five times the coal reserves of all Europe! The State of Illinois itself is more than sixty per cent underlaid with coal.

It is logical that industry should settle where coal is plentiful and low in cost; where transportation facilities of unequal led convenience are afforded; where, in addition to coal, there exist rich resources of nature, both mineral and agricultural.

It is logical, too, that industry should prefer a central location with its obvious advantages for distribution, a location close to the nation's geographic centers of population and industry.

All these advantages are afforded in Metropolitan Chicago. That is one reason for the phenomenal growth of Metropolitan Chicago—one reason why this area has every possibility of becoming the world's greatest metropolitan center, in population as well as in trade importance.
