

Senator Denneen Blames Public for County's Flight

Senator Denneen, of St. Louis, held the blame for the financial plight of Cook County seriously by the public officials and the citizens public who attended the meeting. He said that the county was not to blame, and that the recent election had made the situation worse. The primary election battle, he asserted, will be fought between the two groups of candidates, rather than between the senator and the people.

When the decent element of the county, less than a year ago last April, and made an extraordinary cleanup attempt to pull the fall election placards, he said, the public was in the full fruition of the Deacon's arguments. Regarding candidates, and certain wealthy Democratic politicians, he said that they were against order and against extravagance, waste and graft in politics. Since the election of 1928 every work has remained in some measure, and the public has been the political officials of this country.

People should be educated, he said, and in part have permitted themselves to be led into the trap of graft.

In part they have been influenced by small towns, he said, and in part by the desire to be the center of attention.

"Economic reverses are at the bottom of the trouble," he said, "but will only soon pass the penalty of what we have been doing."

"We are to pay for it in high taxes and enormous outlays on borrowed funds."

The syndicalist effort, made by the public, to get rid of graft, he said, is bound to be continued in 1930, in the view of the senator.

"Qualitative in the coming year, many will be joined by the 'independent' group in the fight for graft-free service."

Senators Are Responsible

"The task of equipping the human race with government, and restoring government to the people, is the work for the last judgment of our dispensation," he said.

"Let us not wait for defeat and failure, and let us not wait for the return of the people."

A bill to prohibit the loan of public funds to the state is to be introduced, he said, to be voted forward, according to Robert M. Adams, executive chairman of the Illinois Motor Vehicle Registration County Commissioners. Was this bill introduced to prevent the leaders of the Deacons group of Republicans from meeting last week, and putting off the bill to the last minute? Chairman of the Deacons, he said, in consideration of some plan whereby the county could be relieved of its debts, and a permanent plan of financing can be effected. At this very serious conference, he said, the Deacons and individuals were having large taxes to take into account, and the large amounts of interests and thus raise the total amount of the debts. It was suggested as for a big loan issue to take up instead of indebtedness, and that the bill, if introduced, will be held over to the next session, and will be primary, so as not to bring the wrath of the public down on the Deacons.

Two Snow Plows

Lake County residents like well the additional snow plows for use on the county roads. The purchase was made by the county commissioners, of which Supervisor Frank E. Fink, Elgin, is chairman. One of the new plows is the model with the steel track, the other is a V-type track plow, designed for use on the county roads, where snow is light or drifted only in isolated spots.

Both plows are Wessan manufactured. The purchase was $2,000.

The new plows will be used as an equipment for four snow plows and it is believed that the plows will be able to keep the county roads open during the winter.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

Illinois House of Delegates, Springfield, continuing its session, voted to make a bill to prohibit the sale of beer in cities, villages and school districts.

Illinois State Auditor, Mrs. Anna B. Bunn, has been appointed to the state capital to inspect the state's financial records.

"We are to pay for it in high taxes and enormous outlays on borrowed funds."

ade on Saturday night was a group of parents, teachers, and students, many of whom, the exhibitors, who visited it and viewed the appliances, instruments, traps, and account-keeping equipment.

The Arthur Auto Sales Co., occupying booth No. 1, had a display of the first three cars, consisting of the Model A Ford, The Shurtliff, and the 1923 Ford. The first and second occupied booth No. 2, but was occupied by the Illinois State Fair after the first night to make room for Christmas exhibits. The exhibit to the spectators, however, was given to the exterior. Sather, who distributed many visitors to the show, was present and, being highly interested, was viewing each night.

At the First State Bank booth they had a display of the new and the old.

At the drugstore, F. Pollard's Pharmacy exhibited a display of the new and the old drugstore, suggesting its claim to the "oldest drugstore in the State of Illinois."

The booth of The Catalogue House, 111 N. Main, was also highly popular.

Schneider Bros., of Collinsville, exhibited a display of the new and the old oak furniture.

Callies Bros., 111 N. Main, had a display of the Bay Scents. Many suggestions for making model presents were exhibited at this booth.

Opie, who suggested that you make the new year's resolutions in the new year, had a booth for the new Christmas, birds, and other novelties.

The booth of the Wadsworth Hardware, Furniture, Bedding, and Fabrics, 111 N. Main, was a great success with their A. C. air burner, the new and the old.

The booth of the Wadsworth Automobiles, 111 N. Main, had a display of the new and the old.

The booth of the Wadsworth Auto-Atvator, 111 N. Main, featuring especially the new and the old.

At the booth of the Wadsworth, the attractive country house in the community was the most popular representation.

Center of Attraction

There were many a happy shopping time for the Shurtliff Co. on Saturday night. Lee Merritt, the fourth floor, and middle pencil clearly portrayed important visitors. Here we see M. H. Schreiber posing for Mr. Merritt. Mr. Schreiber, who is head manager of the First State Bank, is a man of many interests.

Mr. Schreiber, of the First State Bank, is the man who sold this month, and all the other exhibits.

On the old Brooks basis, from which basis have been formed the new Brooks, Mr. Brooks, the father, and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. C. all turned.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. C. were the first to exclaim that "What Better Automobiles Are Built." The Wadsworth Auto-Atvator, 111 N. Main, featuring especially the new and the old.

er with a resplendent display of electric wares and other items of present year, suggesting a happy New Year.

Also—Local grocery stores were presented on this floor. At the left end, side of the floor, was the display of Mr. W. H. Weller, who has just left the A. P. & C. Co. and opened his own grocery store, the Weller's Store, which he will do the usual store or grocery business. Weller has been here over a year now. Mr. Henry Biscotti managed the Local's red display.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. C. of the Shurtliff did his share there by contributing to the display of the Local's red display.

A three store resounding display of the new and the old, the Dugald, 111 N. Leidner.

Mr. & A. J. Biddle Co. demonstrated Sputnik and Crook's sets and gave away many prizes.

Davidson & Willmington and N. C. Pacholski, the two men, joined in the display of the new and the old.

A Christmas Message TO FRIENDS AND CLIENTS

There is a form of contract issued by this Company which is especially appropriate at Christmastime. I take great pleasure in remitting you it.

A Christmas Trust can be issued in units of $10,000 with any one of these forms of insurance. The unique provisions of this Trust are as follows:

1. The Trust provided, in the event of the insured's death, for an income to be paid to the wife of $50 a month for 20 years.
2. Furthermore, the Company agrees to send each Christmas Day, after the death of the insured, direct to the wife, a check of $60.00 for 20 years.

3. It can be arranged that should the wife die before the 20 years are completed, the remainder may be commuted and paid in a lump sum to the estate of the beneficiary or to the heirs.

Not one man in a hundred, I venture, has any conception that he can provide in advance so practical and economical a way as this. When he does this he will leave behind him a warm and grateful memory of his loving thoughtfulness.

Information regarding this policy will be gladly furnished without obligation.

Very sincerely yours,

HARRY BROWN.

ELA HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Gender Play at Big Success

The play, "Gender Play" by the Junior Class of the Elba M. White High School, proved a huge success in every way.

The eleven acts of the play were all original and entertainment for everyone.

The costumes were made by the girls.

Mr. Lounsbury, the coach, deserves much credit for the success of the play.

It is tokens of their appreciation for the effort and time given by the girls that presented her with a large basket of cut flowers.

Mr. Doolittle, the coach of the girls' basketball team, was given a basket of the managing committee of the play, with a check for $100.

Miss McIlwrick and Mr. Biehler contributed $100 to the play by the hand and the "January Ice."

The total receipts were about $1,000.

Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Doolittle, president by the Misses Husted and Oscar Husted, received $100.

That is about all.

That is about all.</p

Lamps, with all their color and cheerfulness, make fine gifts. The great variety from which you may make Christmas selections assures you of gifts that will be individual as well as useful. For "the family", why not a discreetly modern floor lamp . . . for the business man, perhaps an efficient desk light . . . for the schoolgirl who is growing up, perhaps a silk-shaded boudoir lamp. You will find just the right lamps for your Christmas list—reasonably priced—at the Public Service Store. Our attractive displays of labor-saving equipment for the home will give you other helpful gift ideas.

★ The "Candalite"—a lighting decoration especially appropriate to the holiday season—is only $1.75.

THE DEAD STATESMAN

Within a few weeks the United States has lost by death three statesmen of unusual ability and prominence—Senator Burton of Ohio, Secretary of War Goddard, and Senator Warren of Wyoming.

Mr. Burton represented Ohio in Congress for many years, both in the House and in the Senate, during which time he labored with conspicuous success for the development of the nation's inland waterways, and was especially well versed in monetary matters and foreign affairs. He was in his 78th year at the time of his death.

Secretary Goddard was a native of Iowa and served his home district in Congress from 1909 to 1921, rising to the chairmanship of the committee on agriculture. He was a member of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, and took practical law in Chicago until his appointment as Secretary of War by President Hoover, in whose campaign he had taken a prominent part. Mr. Goddard was an organizer of great ability and an authority in the best sense of the term.

Senator Warren had served longer in the United States Senate than any other man in the history of the nation, lacking only a few weeks of 37 years. He was chairman of the committee on public lands and was a member of the Senate military and public buildings committee. He was the first state governor of Wyoming, having served as territorial governor prior to its admission as a state. He was a Civil War veteran, and was born the Congressman of his hour for gallantry in battle.

Before his death at the age of 85, Senator Warren was the oldest member of either branch of Congress.

Across the seas the two other great figures have recently passed from the earthly scene, "P. P. O'LEARY" O'Connor, of the House of Commons in England, aged 81, and George Clemenceau, "the Tiger of France," who was 88.

The world will sadly miss and remember these distinguished dead.

ST. NICHOLAS

Children of Holland, Belgium and parts of Germany have their annual holiday, closely corresponding to our Christmas, on December 6, celebrated as St. Nicholas Day. In fact, our own Santa Claus is derived from the legend of St. Nicholas, who was famed as a divinity ruler bringing presents to good children.

There is supposed to have been a real St. Nicholas, however, born about the year 300, who became a monk of the early church in Asia Minor. He was a man of great piety and generosity, who gave his inheritance to the poor. He also is said to have performed numerous miracles, including the bringing to life of three youths who had been murdered and salted down by an unkind master with whom they had taken lodgings.

But there is no mention of him in the writings of his contemporary church fathers, and the accounts later given wide credence did not appear until centuries after his supposed death. Strange as it may seem, his name became very prominent during the Middle Ages, and has persisted with the present time.

He is known as the patron saint of Russia, of children, of travelers, and oddly enough of the Devil.

However legendary St. Nicholas may be, he is very real to the boys and girls who look forward to his annual coming, for as an immigrant from Holland has said: "St. Nicholas comes and fills our shoes, after he has taken out the grain which we put there for his reindeer."

CHRISTMAS SAVINGS

Christmas club savings in the United States to $800,000,000 will be distributed to members this month, thus being an increase of 9% over last year.

Of this immense sum about 10 per cent will go for holiday purchases, and 80 per cent will be redeposited in the banks as permanent savings. The remainder will be divided among insurance premiums, mortgage and interest payments, and other commitments.

Another estimate based on the disposition of club savings last year, were recently made by President C. U. Williams of the Olomouc Heating Corporation, who has been a close observer of thrifit tendencies for several years. He says: "Our whole nation annually grows in wealth, and each year invests more savings more sensibly, as these figures clearly reveal."

Even the savings spent in Christmas purchases are largely devoted to articles for household use—refrigerators, radios, furnaces, heating and other equipment in the enjoyment of which the entire family may share. This is a good sign. It indicates an increasing interest in things which make for the preservation and improvement of our greatest national institution—the American home.

CAN THIS BE TRUE?

If a recent London dispatch can be believed, the most astounding development in radio since broadcasting became a reality has been achieved by a British scientist.

The discovery is that of a new principle in radio reception whereby it is said, 5,000 stations may operate on wave lengths between 300 and 600 meters instead of only 25 stations as at present. In other words for the same amount of space, the number of stations at present, 250 stations could be accommodated by the application of the new system.

While it would be rash to say that this momentous achievement has actually been attained, it is nevertheless a fact that the man who has made it finds ample confidence that something really special has been developed. The new discovery is said to have been made by James Robinson, founder of the radio laboratories of the British government, and was first offered to English shipyards with radio navigation finders. He gave a demonstration in London a few nights ago which we were forced to attend.

Further information concerning the new discovery will be awaited with intense interest by radio enthusiasts throughout the world.

HEADLINE ENGLISH

Professors of English held a convention in Kansas City a few days ago, and among other things discussed the influence of news papers in modifying the speech of the people. As might have been expected, some felt that this influence was good, while others thought it terrible.

In their search for words which will fit in the limited space available to them writers of newspaper headlines have developed a style largely effective though sometimes inept, the so-called "journalese." In the headline an investigation of, which there are many, is called a "probe," because five letters are easier to handle than a "probe."

Similarly, a collision is a "crash," an agreement is a "pact," to denounce is to "decry," and to call a meeting is to "convene," an athletic contest is a "tilt," and so on. On the sport page "journalese" does its work.

Deploring what he considers the evil effects of newspaper English, Dr. Hopkins of the University of Kansas said that teachers should endeavor to take a stand against it, but should not do so in a way that would offend the students.

And that probably covers all that is to be said on the subject.

JOB FOR REFORMERS

The approaching Christmas season brings to light another grave problem which challenges the attention of any social crusaders who may happen to be out of a job.

A social cause action is sounded by a Mrs. Washington, who, sensing a man to childhood's blithe contemplation of Santa Claus. She says:

"Consider the plight of the child who goes to town before Christmas. On one corner after another you see men dressed as Santa Claus. The stock of disillusionment is often bad for him."

In other words, too many Santa Clauses make the kids suspect that none of them is the real thing.

What to do? Obviously there should be organized Societies for the Suppression of Superfluous Santa.
