The flooding of one more water hole or stream to completely submerge the village was discussed and the flood indicated that the village would be inundated if the water level were to flood the ground so near a suitable place to be used as a landing. It was necessary to wait until the ground is frozen hard, then the water is diffused to hold the water in a more or less stable condition. Mr. Hicks, who is also a member of the Barrington Board of Trustees, said that last year he spent a day and a half in an attempt to float a trout net across the river, but was unsuccessful.

was informed by officials that the railroad company would not enter into any agreement in connection with the leasing on the part of constructing a third track, and that the company would not permit separate grade crossing to be permitted and an agreement after which the economic condition would be considered, and that the company would be the one to grade the road to be used by the company toward the construction of the third track.

Mr. Hagerman has indicated a desire to recognize and the village would be pleased to do so. President E. S. Soddy, was instructed Monday night to present a resolution to the Chamber of Commerce, to present the opinion that the chamber should take action to support the resolution.

A third crossing has been constructed and the grade has been lowered and installed, and the railroad company has been requested to grade the road. Several surveys have been considered, and the chamber has been requested to take into consideration the condition of the company and the fact that the company may not be able to grade the road, and that it would be through a joint meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and the Chamber of Commerce that the road would be graded.

It is the opinion of the Chamber that the road should be graded by the railroad company.

CHRISTMAS LORE

Christmas is observed in commemoration of the birth of Jesus Christ, but it is really a day set apart for the celebration of an event, rather than actual anniversary. While among the masses Christmas is supposed to be the birthday of the Savior, scholars and educated persons generally understand that it is not, even the year of Christ's birth is not definitely known.

The date, December 25, approximates that of the feast of the Nativity, the Christian festival, this being the Britons, the Scandinavian Yule and the later Roman festival of the sungod Mithra.

Christmas having become through the centuries an almost universal festival, it is but natural that many odd customs and superstitions should have been connected with its observance in various countries and at various times.

One of the oldest superstitions was that animals were endowed with the power of speech on Christmas. According to another, persons born on that day were destined to be lucky all their lives. A Polish version was that what one did on Christmas would govern his actions during the following year.

According to an ancient belief, each kind of bird foretold special happenings on those who passed under it. To pass under a holy bird good fortune, bay denoted victory, while laurel imparted beauty and poetic skill. Horses were washed and bled on the day following Christmas, as a means of preserving them from harm.

The mythical Santa Claus has been believed by many nations. Krampus, the Nicholas, the Befana, Robin Good fellow and others. In Germany, a Christmas visitor known as Krampus, an ugly dwarf, was supposed to carry off naughty children.

Christmas was not adopted as a regular festival by the Christian church until the fourth century, since while its observance has spread throughout the civilized world, carrying its message of "Peace on earth; good will toward men."

SUBDING THE "SODOM OF THE PRAIRIES"

The tale of the taming of the Borgers, the wild town of Texas, whose recent record of 30 murders and general lawlessness gave it the name of the "Sodom of the Prairies," is reminiscent of the colorful days of the past when the six-guns made all men equal.

The Texas rangers subdued the "Bogey" of wild men."

The Minneapolis Tribune, in commenting on the Borger situation, resurrected a legend of the rangers. "It has to do with one Espinoza, shooting pride of bandits."

The Texas rangers captured a quarter of a dollar in the Borgers' bank and with the same hand drew his revolver and blew the quarter to bits before it touched the ground. He met a Texas ranger who shot him three times while he reached for his gun.

The record of the Texas rangers has shown that a man who believes in law and shoots to kill is not safe in the constabulary of the Borgers and their ilk.

The Borgers' Espinoza had a quarter of a dollar in the Borgers' bank and with the same hand drew his revolver and blew the quarter to bits before it touched the ground. He met a Texas ranger who shot him three times while he reached for his gun.

"Colonel Sam Houston and Davy Crockett were the first exponents of the applied psychology of shooting straight and seldom twice."

The spirit of the ranger is a heritage of the Alamo. Borger is its latest beneficiary.

One wonders what effect a little straight shooting by our citizens would have on the criminals who infest our country. Perhaps a little more of the spirit of the rangers and a little less of the spirit of the professional law-passers and reformers, in need to clean up the American underworld.

EARLIEST KNOWN MEN

Recent discussions concerning the evolution of man have awakened an increased and growing interest in our early ancestors. While the remains of several primitive species have been unearthed in comparatively recent years, the search for additional types is going forward in many parts of the world.

What is believed to be the oldest form of a man-like being is so far back in light of all the forms of man known to have been discovered in 1893.

This creature was apelike, but had greater brain capacity and was of more human development than any known ape. It is known to scientists as Pithecanthropus erectus and lived about 500,000 years ago.

Next is the Heidelberg man, whose jaw was apelike, but with truly human teeth found in Germany. He lived about 79 feet of limestone with the remains of no other species.

The third is the Piltdown man found in Sussex, England, in 1912 which also combines characteristics of both ape and man. This specimen probably lived 160,000 years ago.

Next in order is the Neanderthal race represented by numerous remains, including complete skeletons, discovered in various parts of Europe.

The Neanderthal man was found in the caves of Germany, Austria, Italy, France, and England, and was of the same species as the Piltdown man.

Finally, perhaps 50,000 or more years ago, there began to appear several races of man, the Cro Magnon, Grimaldi, Aurignacian and Neanderthal, of whom many well-preserved specimens have been found in the last sixty years. The finest physical specimens who ever lived, the men ranging from five feet ten and a half inches to six feet four and a half inches in height.

There are few subjects more fascinating than that of primitive man, and any serious-minded person will be well repaid for the time spent in studying it.

NEW WAR SECRETARY

General satisfaction has been expressed over the appointment and confirmation of Patrick J. Hurley of Oklahoma as Secretary of War to succeed the lame-limbed Secretary.

Mr. Hurley is one of the few men to come into the War Department direct from military service, he having risen to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in France during the World War. He was assistant secretary of war with the beginning of the new year.

Wishing you all a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.
