Points Out Evil of Metropolitan Taxing Systems

Secretary of Suburban League Expresses Scheme to Shift Taxes

Bennett Drover and Tom Pettis in Auto Upset Friday, 13th

Friday the thirteenth was an unlucky day for Bennett Drover and Tom Pettis who experienced their second automobile upset within a year. The first time, they insist it was a lucky day because they escaped from the accident uninjured.

The junior class of the high school had a picnic at Barrington's lake southwest of Barrington. At 10 o'clock the group started home.

The P. R. Drover car in which Tom and his brother were riding stopped in a loose gravel area which led west of Barrington and turned over in the ditch. The automobile was nearly demolished but the two were not at all hurt.

Last April the same youths were in a car which upset west of Barrington. In that accident both were slightly hurt.

Harry Miller Improving, May Be Brought Back to Barrington in Few Days

Harry Miller, son of Mrs. Kate Miller, who was taken to the Framers' Hospital in Chicago on January 11, after suffering a fractured leg, will be brought back to Barrington in a few days, according to Dr. W. H. Schreiber.

Miller is reported in improved condition but is still severely ill. The young man probably will be confined to his bed for several weeks. He is 25 years old.

Miller, a member of the basketball and football teams. Early this month he was elected honorary captain of the football team.

Heard Foster Explain Evils of Metropolitan District Legislation

Nine Barrington men were among 200 persons from Northwest Cook county who assembled at the school building in Mount Prospect Friday night to hear Frank E. Foster, state representative from Harvey discuss the objectionable features of the Griffenhausen report for Cook county consolidation and to gather ammunition for a concerted fight against the plan.

Those from Barrington, including

W. H. Cudahy, president of the village board, and others from the area, were present.

Miller, a former member of the Griffenhausen group, is tied up in the plans of the Chicago Griffenhausen group. Mr. Foster said when asked if the state legislature might possibly push through a bill based on the Griffenhausen plan, the speaker answered that the legislature, at the present time, is not in session.

Miller, however, probably will present a bill that is obviously pro-

Chicago. When asked if they will allow the state legislature to pass the measure at the present time, he said that they will allow the state legislature to pass the measure at the present time.

Miller, however, said that they will

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Motoring through Vermont, the small town of Hamstead, Philip Stare, young Boston architect, makes the acquaintance of Manning, a girl of seventeen, with whom he falls in love. From her, in conversation, he learns of Manning's father, a Revolutionary soldier, who, during his service, distinguished himself in a serious illness, and run down to a pretty poor line of life. I got a felch in New York—flew home on the eighth—who doesn't know who his father was, let alone any great grands! But he's white clean CHAPTER II.—Manning, a guest at the home of Philip Stare, receives calls from a number of old acquaintances, and worked shrewdly to keep them from finding out that his wife was a "bitch" who had come from a "bitch" of a mother.

CHAPTER III.—Violet Manning, mother of Blanche and of Paul with whom she had been living, is anxious concerning Philip's worldly and social standing, but awaiting developments.

CHAPTER IV.—Paul Manning, a suitor for Mary's hand, having had a trial, is given a room in Boston. Visits Hamstead, makes progress in his love-making, while Mary's mother, Manning, begins to have second thoughts about the immediate future, is under CHAPTER V.—Philip, poring over Manning's papers, learns the sorrowful story of the death of Blanche's father, a Revolutionary soldier, friend of Paul's, and of the peculiar "senseless" and the women of Hamstead, who are the cause of Manning's unhappiness.

States Treasurer Earns
$1,550,000 in Interest

State Treasurer Edward J. Barrett earned more than $1,550,000 in interest on state funds during his term, all of which was turned over to the treasury. The amount of interest was earned despite the fact that balances were lower and the interest rate was cut by the banks. The treasurer's January 1933 balance was $1,510,000, and he expects to have $1,500,000 by the end of the year.
