Waukegan Paupers Will Not Work if Dole Is in Sight

Emergency Relief Official Scores Loafers in Towns of East Lake County

The Lake shore towns of Lake County are getting nearly all of their relief money from the county and almost none going to the country districts, according to the Waukegan office of the Illinois Emergency Relief.

Last Friday, Lake county was allotted under $62,000 from the Illinois Emergency Fund for its July quota. The amount equals that received in June.

Except for Cook, Will and Mason counties, Lake county received the largest grant of any county in the state, although several others are more populous.

The biggest part of the "dole" is eaten up by Waukegan township, according to figures obtained from the county human relations department.

Shore towns off the Lake Shore, with the exception of Libertyville township, all are supporting their poor without help from the relief center.

In the farming communities the people are more frugal, seemingly more industrious, and more conservative in their way of living," Alab. L. R. H. of the office of the director of the relief said.

Rogers admitted that he was a little disengaged in the progress being made during the past month in Waukegan. Some, he said, will want out resolutions of any kind that they do not feel inclined to work as long as they can receive a living from the government.

"What I do is to do what people of this town will do. I do not know, but it looks a lot to me as if some are feeling the influence of Mrs. Dole. I am not looking for a dole; rather, I am looking for what would make them independent of pauper relief," Rogers said.

RUBBER STAMP CONGRESS

The late congress will go down in history as an extraordinary body. Its total appropriations were exceeded only by the World war congress. Almost without a dissenting voice, it gave up to the president powers and prerogatives it had prided since revolutionary days. It was the most docile, the most obedient, and the least imaginative congress since the war. A list of its major bills, passed mainly at the request of the president, follows:

1. A bill enabling the president to inflate currency by forcing the Federal Reserve to buy government securities, to issue new currency up to $3,000,000,000, to lessen gold content of the dollar up to 50 per cent, to accept up to $200,000,000 in silver, instead of gold, in war debt payments.

2. A bill giving the president, through a co-ordinator, wide powers in reorganizing and revising the railroads of the country.

3. A bill authorizing vast federal developments in the Tennessee's valley.

4. A bill creating a Civilian Conservation corps to employ 250,000 otherwise unemployed young men in the national forests at $1.00 per day.

5. A bill authorizing the president to regulate transactions, in credit, currency and other coinage; to place an embargo, or in part, on gold; to forbid the hoarding of gold by an individual in excess of $100, and to restrict the activities of the Federal Reserve system.

6. A bill authorizing beer, in spite of the Eighteenth amendment, through revision of the Volstead Act.

7. A bill initiating a $3,300,000,000 public works program in the interest of employment, to be controlled by the president, through a director of public works.

8. A bill to reduce agricultural acreage in production, with compensation to farmers for all land withdrawn from use.

9. A bill giving the president unprecedented control over industry, with powers to eliminate competition, fix minimum wages and maximum hours of work, regulate production, etc.

There were other bills, of course, but these are outstanding. Most far reaching of all is the last—it has not yet swung into action and it is not widely understood. Operation of the bill, in relation to particular industries, will be as follows: A trade group will draw up a plan designed to settle wage, price and production problems. It will apply to the administrator of the bill for authorization to put its agreement into effect. The administrator will then find out if the plan meets with the favor of most units within the industry. Representatives of labor, and a group of consumers, will be consulted. When all has been settled, the agreement will go to the president. If he finds it equitable, he will authorize it. If not, it will have to be redrawn. When industry is unable to agree among themselves, the president will be able to force part on them, by the power of a licensing system.

The bill will strike directly at "depression born business"—unprofitable sweatshops paying employees 15 and 20 cents a day, and similar anti-social institutions, and will eliminate disastrous, depression-prolonging competition. The danger or weakness in the bill is that it will very likely make it more difficult for the small business to operate, and will favor the most efficient, better-financed large business.

THRILL OF CREATIVE EFFORT

In our pursuit of material gain or of fleeting pleasures, we sometimes forget this bit of truth, tucked away in the middle of Roosevelt's inaugural speech:

"Happiness lies not in the mere possession of money; it lies in the joy of achievement, in the thrill of creative effort. The job and moral stimulation of work no longer must be forgotten in the mad chase of evanescent profits. These dark days will be worth all they cost us if they teach us that our true destiny is not to be ministered unto, but to minister to ourselves and to our fellow men."

It would be a good thing for all of us to clip this paragraph from the president's talk and read it over every once in a while.

Happiness most certainly does not lie in the mere possession of money.

The thrill of creative effort—that's it!—Harvard (Ill.) Herald.

BANK REFORMS

The proposed separation of security banking from commercial banking should improve both.

Controlled by new regulations, the former should rise to greater dignity and respect, taking pride in the soundness of the securities it offers.

Commercial banks themselves, set loose from their security affiliations, and having no further interest in promoting the sale of any securities, should gain in prestige. And commercial banks in general should regain considerable business that has been drifting away from them.

During the recent boom, it became too easy for corpora-

Wandering From This to That

Buffalo, Moose Increasing

Buffalo, moose, and other animals which have been exterminated from most of their original range are finding a home in the national parks. Recently completed courses of wild life in the parks show a favorable increase in most species.

In Yellowstone National Park, says Dr. H. C. Bryant, of the National Park Service, the buffalo have increased to such an extent that last year 200 of them were slaughtered for their meat. Cervids are permitted the capture of surplus animals for several years. Indians living near the park are now being given their first opportunity to hunt, and it is to be hoped that a law that is now worth while.

Young Democrats in Charge of Registration

John J. Hartman of East St. Louis, and Eugene R. Schwartz, one of the younger party leaders, have been placed in charge of the department of registration and education by Gov. Horace H. Horner.

Mr. Hartman, a lifelong resident of East St. Louis and a member of a pioneer Illinois family, was appointed director of the department. Mr. Schwartz, a former state senator and council chairman of the state, was appointed superintendent of registration. Mr. Hartman has succeeded Michael F. Walsh of Harvard, and Mr. Schwartz replaces Paul Johnson of Marion, both of whom resigned.

Members of Legislature

May Appeal Sales Tax

Some members of the legislature are thinking about legal action to overturn the two per cent sales tax which went into effect July 1. Senator James O. Morris of Collingswood said he would support any action on the part of the legislature to overturn the tax.

Most Merchants Will Show Their Top of S

Proprietors of Other Food Stores Adopt Unified Plan

The large majority of merchants in Barrington will add the charge for sales tax on top of regular price of commodities that add it within the prices of their administration would have done.

"The well attended meetings of merchants were held recently in Barrington and Waukegan in an attempt to agree on a uniform plan for adding the sales tax. The net result of the meetings was a tentative arrangement among merchants to add the sales tax on top of the retail price as shown as a tax that a break of ten cents would be added to the price of state—will be the end and that sales tax tickets to greater accuracy in charge small transactions will be issued to customers for such items as will be sold out."

Representatives of several states were at the meetings to advise on a uniform plan for sales tax. One food store proprietor stated against making people to pay more, contending that the state requires it not bind him to do so, but the customers明白 the merchant charges the tax. Another group claimed that local damage is in a place of a general nature, while the chain stores do not. Opposed to this viewpoint other merchants said that the tax will add several cents to the price of articles, whether having a tax or not, so the price or in within the price and that they prefer to add the tax on top.

As a result of the discussions a unified plan was adopted by all food stores of the village in which the sales tax will be added to the price of articles. The plan is successful in every place.

As to the tank car system, in which the tank car is in items in which the sales tax is not added to the price of the article, the tank car owners would take in very little extra money, a 26 to 25 cents charge would have to pay 25 cents extra on each car.

Stores of a general nature will have packages will add the sales tax on top.

The suggestion was made to have a uniform ticket for all stores, which would be received on the order railroad companies' tickets, and purchase that would be paid to the railroad companies. The customer had bought $1.00 merchandise his ticket was paid in and he would have paid 25 cents in sales tax.

Further information regarding the plan will be published in later issues of The
