Byrd reports that about 200,000 square miles of previously unknown area now can be eliminated from Antarctic maps and can be designated simply "Pacific Ocean". Captain Ashley C. McKinley, New York, Byrd's aerial photographer on the first expedition, is shown pointing to area (in black) formerly believed to be land and now definitely established as "homeland" for the South Pole regions. Battleship Disappeared

In the great naval battle of Jutland, in the World war, the British armored cruiser, Black Prince, of 13,500 tons and carrying over 800 men, disappeared during the fight, without a living man knowing how or just when it went down. Not a survivor was left, only a lifebuoy near a mass of wreckage to tell its fate.

Probate Judge

Republican Primaries
April 10th, 1934

To the Voters of Lake County

The office of Judge of the Probate Court is an important office. You may never have a law suit or be cited into Court, but if, at your death you own any individual property your family will have dealings with the Probate Court. You will want them to have the best service available, rendered in a kindly and sympathetic manner by a trained and experienced Judge.

It is a principle of American politics to retain on the bench Judges who have been efficient, honest and courteous... Federal Judges are appointed for life. Circuit Judges are not subjected to a primary election and are elected for six years at special elections. You also seek to retain in your service, teachers, business executives, assistants and employees who have been faithful and efficient.

We feel that if the voters of Lake County will investigate the record of Judge Decker they will re-nominate and re-elect him to the office of Probate Judge.

USE OF BANK BUILDING

The two year old discussion on "What ought to be done with the First State Bank building?" reached a climax when it was rented early in the winter for use as a tavern.

The fact that the tavern has been carefully managed to maintain strictest respectability has answered this question as far as temporary expediency is concerned, but unless the building is purchased by someone who wants it for permanent tavern use, the question is still unanswered from a long range viewpoint.

The building must sooner or later be liquidated from the assets of the old First State Bank. It is not the practical, general-use building that can be easily disposed of as soon as business conditions improve. Without considerable remodeling it is not suitable for most retail uses and hence could hardly be sold for such at its real value. Even as a home for a tavern continuing indefinitely to be successful it might need more remodeling than the results would justify.

Many uses for the building have been called to our attention including a home for the Barrington library, a medical and dental clinic building, the home of a new bank, the location for a mortgage company with offices for local insurance agents, and home of a United States post office. Going over these suggestions briefly we arrive at the following conclusions:

BARRINGTON LIBRARY BUILDING—The location, the fine appearance of the building, the skylight arrangement, and the roominess would make the building an excellent library structure without much remodeling necessary. But the cost would be prohibitive for the local community. Only a certain amount of money from local tax collections can be spared for library use. The cost of good books and the expense of a good librarian's services will naturally take most of this money.

MEDICAL AND DENTAL CLINIC—It is doubtful if the local dentists and physicians care to give up their present independent quarters to enter a cooperative clinic. There is not a sufficient field of service to justify a clinic of additional professional men.

NEW BANK—It was built for banking purposes and undoubtedly is best suited for a bank building. It is doubtful if a new bank will be organized in this community before the building must be disposed of.

MORTGAGE COMPANY HOME with offices for insurance men, etc.—There is a mortgage company now in process of organization. Many years will elapse before this can be large enough to warrant an independent home.

UNITED STATES POST OFFICE—This has its principal drawback in the old federal law or regulation which requires that federal buildings must be built new by the government. Old buildings can be rented but not purchased. However, the post office site suggestion seems to be the best that has been made in any possibility exists that the usual mass of governmental red tape can be brushed aside and an exception made in the local case. The building is large enough to house a post office serving a much larger community than this; so it would be adequate to meet Barrington's needs for many years to come. It should be accepted as architecturally suitable for a post office. The purchase cost of the building plus the cost of remodeling and equipping should not exceed $35,000—a saving of $35,000 from the $70,000 Barrington post office on the "promised land." The $10,000 or more to cover remodeling costs could be expended with local contractors, laborers and building supply companies; whereas a $70,000 job would bring in out-of-town laborers, out-of-town material dealers and probably out-of-town contractors. The bank building is centrally located in the downtown business district and centrally located in the village and general community that the local post office serves. It is convenient near the railroad station. The building is so located that its architectural beauty shows off to advantage. If remodeling it into a post office would improve its appearance, the building's conspicuous location is a strong selling point for the proposal.

THE DUMB OLD DAYS!

What a dumb bunch of legislators we must have had in the old days! They never thought of taxing horse feed! Why, our bright legislators and congressmen of the present day have discovered a gold mine where their fore-fathers saw only a dusty road!

Up in congress there are some bright chaps who in an earlier day would have taxed not only horse feed, but horse shoes, harness, buggy whips, carriage lanterns, and even the "one horse chaise" itself! Last year they taxed gasoline, motor trucks, motor cars, motor cycles, accessories, spare parts, repair parts, and lubricating oil—and see what they got! They got $181,125,988 from gasoline, $228,839,635 from lubricating oil, $23,536,119 from tires and tubes, $3,046,827 from motor trucks, $32,475,888 from motor cars and motor cycles, and $1,443,072 from parts and accessories. Then to make sure they'd overlooked nothing, they taxed the pipe lines that move the automobile's liquid costs to market and got $10,237,275 more. Try these internal revenue bureau figures out on your adding machine and you'll find that out of the 25,000,000 motorists, and not counting the 80,000,000 other taxpayers, federal taxes extracted $267,454,791 in 1933!

WHAT'S GOING ON

The new $200,000 gold building dollar, already is beginning to have a meaning for the American people. Whether wholly responsible or not, it is being associated with the gradual increase in the cost of living that is under way. Only as prices go higher does the average person appreciate that something may have happened to the dollar to make it different from the dollar of last March 1. The dollar which on January 30, theoretically contained 23.22 grains of gold, seemed the same as the dollar that on February 1 contained 15.52 grains. But gradually a new meaning is being given to the changed currency. Prices of commodities sold, from the price of a loaf of nearly 50¢ separate items, have been rising steadily for eight weeks. They now are at 72.7 per cent of the 1934 level, which has been set as the objective of those seeking to obtain a higher level of prices. This is 23 per cent above the low point of 1933 made in the week of March 4.

On the horizon appears the soldier bonus again. There's a majority for it in both houses but it is doubtful whether enough votes can be mustered over a presidential veto. Reasons for a veto will seem a bit hypothetical. Here the argument is made that the federal credit could not stand the strain that the money may not die yet anywhere and that an unbalanced budget would hurt credit so much that it would reflect itself in greater distress. But since those who oppose the bill have been heard, the miracle of things has happened. The sale of a summer of borrowing there. What possible difference can there be, the executive man will say, between spending money on such projects with government debt and subsidies, and spending through the soldier bonus?

Recovery by subsidy—using direct grants from the public treasury—today is an established objective of the program for overcoming the present depression. President Roosevelt says that hereafter subsidies are to be called subsidies, and will not be disguised by some other name. Subsidies involve the use of public money to give benefits to some particular industry or to some special groups of individuals because of a determination that the industry or group in question is entitled to support in the interest of national welfare.

The total amount of emergency and regular subsidies now is more than $2,000,000,000 a year.

It remains to be seen whether the president will maintain a firm stand with regard to the air mail contractors who had their contracts cancelled recently by the postmaster general because of recalcitrance before a senate investigating committee which contained administration officials that they had been obtained through collusion and fraud. Developments in the air mail situation during the past week have created a new problem for the president and his advisers. The army took over on Monday the job of carrying the mail and in the first five days of the operation it had twelve serious accidents and six deaths, due to bad weather and unfamiliarity of pilots with air mail routes. This record of accidents compared very unfavorably with that of the commercial companies which had only 84 accidents during all of last year, resulting in the death of one pilot. The army-operated air mail service has introduced the lack of discipline that began when the contracts were cancelled.

Monday opened at the white house with a full agenda. The president was surrounded with a number of two hundred millions to be turned over to home-owners and before communicating his wishes to congress he called in Henry Morgenthau, Jr., secretary of the treasury, who must supply the bill for the federal government program to be carried out; then the bank's lending powers are to be extended to cover modernization of Kidnapers and racketeers who hide in the twilight zone of authority where neither state nor federal laws now penetrate may soon find themselves in the full blaze of federal government. Attorney General Homer S. Cummings has asked congress to enact 12 new laws making the federal government a national police force. The attorney general's recommendations were the result of a summer of inquiry into the crime problem and its causes. Crime has become national, disregarding state and crime suppression agencies no longer be tied down by state boundaries, according to the attorney general. Here are some of the laws the federal government would have to do congress passes the attorney general's program: 1.—The federal government will have to apprehend and punish every person who transports stolen goods valued at more than $1000 across state lines. 2.—The government must have to attempt to solve every kidnapping in which the victim does not return after three days. 3.—Every racketeer who attempts to levy illegal tribute on any interstate trade will have to be tracked down and prosecuted by the federal government. 4.—The government will have to seek out and return every witness who flees to another state in order to avoid testifying in a felony case.

"You lost it? Where?"
"I don't know."
"You don't know. Do you suppose that all I have to do is buy you one after another? Now you go look for that cap until you find it."
"I don't know where to look."
"Neither do I. You lost it. You go find it."
After a brief interval Tom comes back. "Well, did you find it?"
"No, I looked everywhere, but it isn't there."
"I suppose so. I'll have to buy you another cap. That makes five this term. I don't know what is going to come of you, if you don't take care of your actual belongings."

Why buy him another one? It won't hurt him to do without his cap. Many a boy never wears a cap, except on very stormy days. Even if he has to go to church and Sunday school bareheaded, what of it? He doesn't wear a hat in church anyway. And if he really wanted a cap he wouldn't lose it so many times.
I believe that is true. If a child truly wants a thing he won't lose it so many times. He is conscious of the thing he wants to keep. He knows a thing he is not conscious of wanting. The way to get him to keep his hat is to make him conscious of needing it. That goes for other things, that he loses and forgets. Do not replace it and make him go without until he replaces it if possible.
A child forgets and loses the things he doesn't want to keep in mind or pocket. The poor report is just a forgotten. The good one, never. The promised treat is always remembered, while the dreaded chore is forgotten as easily as a state is wiped clean. When you find that a child is forgetting certain things, losing other things, habitually, consider the reason. Study why he wants to lose or forget. There is always a reason. The child's mind is always on his side. It will help him to forget and to lose unimportant things. It chooses them out so, finally that it is as complete as darkness at midnight. Find the reason. Don't accuse the child of wilfully forgetting. He does not wilfully forget or lose the unimportant thing or idea. He is conscious of his duty to forget and to lose. Remove the cause of his desire and put something desirable in the stead. Give him experiences that will make him conscious of his need to remember and hold on, and he will do both.

"Cut Out The GADGETS"

That is the advice Gordon H. Ciley, for 16 years advertising manager for John Wanamaker, gives to business men who want to get the greatest results from their advertising dollar. He says:

"If you want to do more real advertising and at the same time reduce the cost of it—CUT OUT THE GADGETS. Cut out the knickknacks, donations, programs, tickets, charged up to 'Good Will Advertising.' Eliminate waste in postage and wasteful methods and mediums—spend this saving of from 15 to 25 per cent in the newspapers."

Few people realize the actual coverage of even the most modest country newspapers. Not so long ago an advertising expert, after careful research, ascertained that a certain well known metropolitan paper is read, on an average, for the space of 20 minutes, while the average country newspaper has a "reading life" of 3 hours to its credit! It is kept round the house for a week and everyone in the family takes his turn in going through its pages.

Use space in your local newspaper—convincing—attractive copy—regularly—continuously! Concentrate!

Every dollar you invest in Barrington Review advertising pays dividends.

An Ominous Name
The name Otto, always has been regarded as an ominous name in Austria, carrying with it a hoodoo. Only two sovereigns of the last hundred years have borne the name Otto. One was the Emperor-Emperor Otto of Greece and the other his nephew, King Otto of Bavaria, each of whom suffered deplorable fates.

Eliminate Oats Smut by Simple Seed Treatment

Last year oat smut extracted a tax of approximately 4,283,000 bushels from Illinois farmers, and a similar oat loss may be expected in 1934 unless growers properly treat their seed to prevent this common disease, says Benjamin Koehler, associate chief of crop pathology at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois. This toll amounts to an average loss of 3.5 per cent of the oat crop for the state, and although the disease is an easily-controlled one, smut damage on some farms amounted to as high as 25 per cent last year, it is said. For control, two treatments—the formaldehyde and the ceresone—are recommended.

Eliminate Oats Smut by Simple Seed Treatment

The most satisfactory way of applying formaldehyde to the oat seed is the 50-50 method, which is practically a dry process. A pint of commercial formaldehyde is mixed with a pint of water in a quart-size sprayer of the kind used in gardens and cow sheds.

Local Collections Distributed Here, Avoiding County Office Delay

While a special representative of the village is preparing to make a list of the delinquent taxes on Cook county property, and of the amount of money collected by the Cook county treasurer for the village but not yet paid, local property owners may help out the village by paying their taxes directly to the local collector while the books are still in Barrington.
