New Mother's Stamp a Gallant Tribute by Postal Service

It took Uncle Sam to pay a truly graceful tribute to mothers for Mother's day, something different from the usual gifts and oratorical homage of individuals, press and pulpit, in the form of an attractive stamp bearing a replica of Whistler's famous painting "Mother." The new stamp, printed in lavender ink, bears the inscription, "In memory and in honor of the mothers of America."

It was issued May 3, in plenty of time for mailing Mother's day greetings all over the United States, and according to Cecil Paxton of the local post office, has been exceedingly popular with Barrington citizens and stamp collectors.

Ministers have announced special services in honor of the day and several local organizations have arranged mother-daughter banquets and parties in honor of mothers.

Unable to Extend Dennis King Play Now at Erlanger

Notwithstanding the continued success of Dennis King in "Richard of Bordeaux" at the Erlanger theatre, Chicago, contracts already made, make it obligatory that the engagement must terminate on Saturday evening, May 19; thus giving only one more week to enjoy this delightful play of impelling interest, superb acting and colorful decoration.

Never in his entire career has Dennis King given a more scholarly, vigorous and artistic performance than he does as the Impressionistic and temperamental King Richard II of England; a character that runs the entire gamut of historic endeavor—from the effeminate and youthful Richard of Bordeaux to the cold, cynical and resentful Richard II of England; a veritable kaleidoscope of dynamic force and artistic understanding.

So much has already been written and so much eulogistic commendation expressed about this play and star, that it seems superfluous to dwell at length upon the artistry of Mr. King or the general excellence of the presentation; suffice to add that "Richard of Bordeaux" has been unanimously acclaimed "the best play of the current year" and Dennis King's characterization, a gem worthy in conception, treatment and execution.

The supporting cast company has been especially complimented upon for the marvellous manner in which each member depicts the character entrusted to her or his artistic care; and the scenic investiture and accessories are absolutely correct in design, texture and coloring.

Don't miss these farewell performances of the popular and gifted Dennis King in his greatest dramatic success.

Glen Hager Qualifies for State Golf Finals at Champaign May 18

Glen Hager, Barrington high sophomore, qualified for the state golf finals to be held at Champaign May 18 and 19 by finishing among the five low scorers at the district meet held at the Sunset Valley club last Saturday. Hager shot an 83 to tie for fourth, the last qualifying place, with Roach of Deerfield. A ruling allowing all ties to go down to the state meet made it not necessary for a playoff between Hager and Roach. Hager shot a 54 in the first round, the field of 54 pro golfers with an 81. Spitzer of Oak Park tied with Flynn of New River with an 82, following by Hager and Roach. The weather was ideal but the fairways of the course were not in excellent shape and the greens were slow. Hager shot an 83 in the second round, but had trouble on the second nine. He took a six on the 11th and blew an easy putt on the 15th to throw away chances of catching the leader.

Other Barrington scores at Sunset Valley were Bill Robbins, 100; Walter Wolff, 101; and Harold Martens, 102.

The B.H.S. team only made four runs on eight hits, while Arlington counted 10 times on hits. Altenburg hit a single and double in three times at bat to feature for the home team.

The Bronchos will be trying for their first league win when they face Elia on the local field after school Tuesday. Earlier in the season the Elia boys handed the Bronchos a 9 to 4 defeat at Lake Zurich.

High Temperature and Dust Storms Hit This District

Northern Illinois has experienced several extremes in weather during the past week when the dry period extended to a length not experienced previously in the spring of the year. The dust storm of Thursday was almost unprecedented, and the hot weather of Wednesday set a record for early May.

The dust storm continued throughout the day shutting out the direct sunlight as though a rain storm were in progress, although there was not a single rain cloud in the sky. It was reported by the United States weather bureau station in Chicago that the dust blowing through the sky was carried here from Iowa and Nebraska. A great deal of local soil was blown into dust clouds along the ground.

Various reports of temperature were made. Several thermometers located in shady places registered 83 and 84 degrees Fahrenheit Wednesday afternoon.

3 Girl Scout Leaders

Attend Conference at Des Plaines Saturday

Three girl scout leaders from Barrington, Mrs. Clifford Stutz, Miss Marion Schroeder and Miss Josephine Parke, attended an all-day session of scout workers at Des Plaines Saturday and entered group discussions relative to desirable programs for local organizations. Leisure-time, educational, recreational, inspirational, and self-government programs were included in the topics of the day. As a preliminary, a brief history of the girl scout movement was given and the duties of local scout councils and committees were defined.

The real purpose of a scout organization and means of making programs of value to each member served as themes of the conference.

Lost Castle Found
Believed to be part of the lost castle of the De Mandevilles, an early Norman structure has been discovered near South Mills, England. It lies beneath extensive earthworks. At the Domesday survey the site formed part of the vast estate of Geoffrey de Mandeville. In the thirteenth century a charter was given to Sir Geoffrey's son to build a castle, of which all trace had been lost for nearly 700 years. The discovery revives an old tradition that South Mills is haunted by the ghost of Sir Geoffrey de Mandeville.

England in Napoleonic Wars
It is difficult to make a definite statement as to the largest number of men that England sent to the continent during the Napoleonic wars up to 1812. At the end of 1812 Wellington had under his command 60,000 allied troops. At the beginning of 1813 this number was increased to 100,000, 47,000 of these being British.

Norwegian Elkhound Is Good Hunter, Watch Dog

The most ancient lineage among our domestic breed dogs, the Norwegian elkhound bows to no other, says an authority in the Detroit News. It was the companion of the Vikings, and has come down through the ages unchanged in conformity, bone and sinew. And yet it is strange that a dog with many excellent traits to recommend it to the sportsman or home-owner should be among the least popular of our transplanted breeds.

In speaking of this dog, Bayard Rustin, Eastern authority, says: "In Norway, until recent times, there was only one breed of dog. His skeleton was found in a stratum which geologists date 6000 B. C., and we are, therefore, safe in saying that he has come to us pure Nordic, with all his Nordic traits unaltered. Hunter always, he was a comrade to the Vikings, has been herder of flocks and defender from wolves and bears, an aggressive guardian of lonely farms and a roamer with hardy men."

In his native land the Norwegian elkhound is still the peerless hunter of big game, especially moose, but serves his master equally well in hunting all game, even down to the lowly Tracoon.

Mollusks of Varied Color

Though the oyster is rather a drab creature for all its popularity, the mollusks of the tropic seas are of varied form and color. Most of them have single shells whose fancy shapes and brilliant colors have made them highly prized by collectors, and the structure of their bodies is often as singular as the striking beauty of their shells. For there are species with a distinct head, eight or ten pairs of tentacles, and highly colored eyes that have a pupil and double iris capable of keen vision. Coiled back in the throat is a tongue armed with rows of hooked teeth, while the tongue of snails and slugs are covered with tiny teeth too numerous to be counted. Not having the protection of two shells, as has the ordinary bivalve, they close the entrance to their home with a shell plate attached to the upper surface of their foot, a foot on which they crawl about like their relatives—the garden snails.

Enemy of the Prickly Pear

A natural enemy of the prickly pear, an importation into Australia of as great notoriety as the rabbit, the cactoblastis insect has proved an insatiable boon. Since the insect was introduced a few years ago from the United States, it has cleared 80 per cent of what was an impenetrable mass of prickly pear in Queensland and from 50 to 60 per cent in New South Wales.

Ravens, Crows, All the Same

For the raven, and America's crow, like those of Ovid and the Colne's Lady, are sisters under the skin. While the raven tapped down, the crow taps eggs of nestling birds—the harmful influence of both the legendary emblem of death and the pillager of cornfields amounts to the same thing.

Sleep
The time of day appears to have little importance in influencing sleep, except that persons trying to sleep in the day are more frequently upset by noise and light. Professors of psychology who have conducted tests pertaining to sleep have found that persons sleep more soundly when they first go to sleep than they do in the latter part of sleep.

Engineers Will Draw Plans for Complete System

PWA Man Says Sewer Plans Should Conform With Supreme Court Decision
Plans for a greatly enlarged and more expensive sewer system will have to be drawn up before the village of Barrington can hope for any loan assistance from the public works administration unless the supreme court decision of Illinois upholding the decree of Judge Shurtleff, according to George A. Devenau, of the administration, who was present at the village board meeting Monday night.

He drew a none too rosy picture of Barrington's prospects for a loan. The chief reason for the gloomy viewpoint is the fact that the plans and specifications for improving the system contemplate use of the old disposal plant as a present location which was forbidden in Judge Shurtleff's decree already affirmed by the supreme court. The PWA will not lend money to build or improve a project forbidden by law.

Mr. Devenau suggested that the village prepare two alternative plans for rebuilding the sewer. Each of these would include the present plan as a base plus additions. One addition would be a pipeline from the old disposal plant to the Fox river, and the other would be the pipe line and a new disposal plant at the outlet. The supreme court has granted a rehearing of the appeal. If the final decision is no more favorable than the earlier one, one of the sewerage plan additions will have to be added to the basic plan and specifications. This of course would greatly increase the cost and therefore the necessary amount of the loan.

The village board instructed the engineering firm of Conner, Elder and Quinlan to draw up the revised or augmented plans. Mr. Devenau commented on the effect the property owners' petition would have on the public works administration. The petition asked that no loan be granted Barrington for rebuilding its sewer until after a final decision on the sewer case is handed down by the supreme court. He commented that the effect of this probably will be insignificant at least a possibility exists that the administration will consider the petition into consideration. The amount of money to be loaned by the PWA is limited. The number of communities asking for loans is large. Consequently the PWA will not have to force a loan on any community against the will of the people in the community to get all its funds.
