TELEPHONE, BARRINGTON NO. 1

LET'S ELIMINATE THE PEDDLER

The worst part of that 365 day season for transient peddlers, solicitors and other doorbell ringers has arrived.

Much to their annoyance, local women and men in the homes are called to their front doors several times daily in response to strangers who vend their wares on private front ches.

About the only thing that can be done to eliminate this adout the only thing that can be done to eliminate this nuisance is for the village board to make the work of peddling in Barrington-disagreeable and unprofitable for those engaged in it. For more than a year the trustees and village attorney have been wrestling with one kind of an ordinance or notibe for discovering peddline is the village. The late or another for discouraging peddling in the village. The last draft is one which would require all peddlers to take out licenses. This, of course, would apply to local persons engaged in peddling as well as transients, but we believe few if any local persons would be injured by a general ordinance of this kind.

Local business houses would not be prohibited from delivering on order from their customers. If, for example, all bakeries, whether local or not, delivered goods only when ordered, the local shops would have advantage over non-local shops. No fair-minded citizen would deny that local shops which pay personal property tax and either real estate tax or rent are neitled to that advantage. or rent are entitled to that advantage.

or rent are entitled to that advantage.

But after all, it would be the resident and not the business proprietor who would benefit from a good anti-peddler ordinance. We believe the amount of business taken out of town by peddlers which would otherwise go to local stores is exaggerated in the minds of some of the merchants.

The sound reason for discouraging peddling is climination of the doorbell ringer. The large majority of local housewives would not even miss the out-of-town fruit and bread wagon peddlers if at the same time they could escape the everlasting nuisance of answering the door knock of book salesmen, amateur photographers, bag candy sellers, and what have you.

LANDLORDS, BE REASONABLE!

When a new industry moves to a community, with promise of bringing additional families, the owners of residence property for rent are tempted to boost their rental prices. Some property owners actually did boost rent prices. Some property owners actually did boost rent prices when the Jewel Tea Co. came to Barrington. Many arguments resulted and many Jewel families settled in other communities to "commute" to their work in Barrington. Some bought homes and are permanently settled out of Barrington. Some rentable houses here stood vacant with loss to owners.

Now the Chesterfield Tailors are coming to Barrington. Under present conditions, owners of residence property will do well to be reasonable with tenants and prospective tenants. The Chesterfield Tailors will be located just across the street from the railroad station where the employes can very conveniently ride back and forth from Chicago or any of the towns along the C. & N.W. where rents will remain low. The location is also conveniently near four garage buildings, in which employes can park their cars while at work and then drive them to and from homes in other communities. We doubt if any attempt to raise rents now will be successful. Rents in Barrington are already slightly above the level of rents in other communities.

BETTER HOMES FOR FARMERS

BETTER HOMES FOR FARMERS

Changes in living conditions on American farms during the past decade call for a new system of house planning. Nobody knows exactly what the ideal American farm house would look like, but a pretty close approximation to it has just been constructed on the grounds of the World's fair, under the sponsorship of a national farm magazine, The Country Home. This "model farm house" will be visited by hundreds of thousands of American farm folks, and studied with the highest interest—for every indication points to the expenditure during the next ten years of more than a billion dollars on new farm homes.

expenditure during the next ten years of more than a billion dollars on new farm homes.

It is easy enough to make light of something new, but when the experts show that farm house architecture is not keeping up with factory and city architecture, that farm-house builders pay a lot of money for something they don't get, that they build a lot of waste space they don't use, that the average farm house wastes heat, time, human energy and health, it's time to see what can be done about it.

The World's fair model farm house is an answer. It is, in fact, a common sense answer, one of the only model farm houses ever designed in this way for a real farm family making its living from the soil.
