(Note—Following is the poem written by Mrs. W. M. Armstrong, 112 E. Liberty street, which recently was awarded honorable mention among 675 poems entered in a state-wide contest sponsored by the Federated Women's Clubs of Illinois.)

Poem of Spring in Two Sonnets

When each bare tree has quickened into life,
Spreading budding branches to the sky,
And rose-breasted robins northward fly;
Memory will stab me like a sharp-edged knife.
So it has been through every year that breaks
Her fiery petals on the patient air,
Since I have borne your love, I still must bear
This agony that spring and beauty wake.

Let me be lonely, I have no real concern with these
Sly anemones that edge the hedge lane,
Nor yet with blue hedges jeweled with April rain,
Nor wind hurrying in the twisted apple-trees.
Let me be lonely, forgotten of the spring.
Unlike the year my heart is wintering.

Watching the rain turning grass to silver threads
In the new-green prairie, and snowdrops blowing
Along the walk where crocus-buds are showing.
I think of how the jonquill's yellow heads
Are nodding down the lane, . . . and my heart cries
With exquisite hunger for the sights and sounds of home,
For April mornings, and the fresh smell of loam,
For fragrant apple boughs, and gentle that rise
Screaming and wheeling above the salt tide.
Spring brings no peace upon my heart.

Only such loneliness does it impart
As knows the bridegroom for his dreamlike bride,
Or such nostalgia as lonely Philoctetes knew
On Lemnos Isle when rainy south winds blew.

Relative of Local Woman Is Killed in Fall From Scaffold

Mrs. A. D. Carmichael, 520 Division street, received word this week of the accidental death of Walter Vivian in Madison, Wis., last Friday morning.

Mr. Vivian fell from a scaffold on which he was standing to put up an awning and was so badly injured that he died ten minutes later. Mrs. Vivian was formerly Miss Edna Walters who lived with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Alverson for several years when they were residents of Barrington. She is a sister of Mrs. Alverson.

Vivian is survived by his widow and five children all of whom are grown except one son ten years of age.

Funeral services were held Sunday at Mineral Point, Wis.

Clubs May Be Formed to Make Instructions in Flying Inexpensive

One or more active flying clubs in every city and town in the United States is the goal of the National Flying clubs association which is helping young men in all parts of the country to get a start in aviation by furnishing airplanes to clubs which cannot afford to buy them.

"Barrington can have a flying club and use the airplanes and nation-wide facilities of the National association," says K. W. Kansas, president, "if there are enough young men who seriously want to learn to fly and who will pledge themselves to aid and build up our national defense."

Under the national plan, groups of thirty or more young men and women in a county or town who have indicated their desire to learn to fly are brought together and when they have received some preliminary instruction in the theory of flying, an airplane is loaned to them by the national air base for the use of the members of the local club.

If there is a licensed commercial transport pilot living in the community who is qualified to instruct beginners and cares to do it, he will get in touch with the association, otherwise an instructor member will be sent from another club. As the members fly the plane they pay only the actual upkeep and depreciation on it.

No Patents for Burbank
Luther Burbank, who crossed a cantaloupe with a watermelon and produced the luscious honeydew melon, could have obtained a patent for this popular fruit had there been a patent law in effect at the time. Or this law would have given him a monopoly for his creation of the honeydew.
