

U. S. Botanical Garden
The United States Botanical Garden in Washington has no connection with the Carnegie Institution. It was established by the Columbia Association of the Promotion of Arts and Sciences, and the site was granted by congress in 1883. No improvements were made until 1900, and the nucleus of the collection was then collected by tropical seeds and cuttings brought from the Pacific by the Wilkes exploring expedition of 1838-42. The collection now contains rare and beautiful specimens from all over the world.

Trustees Plan to Pass Ordinance to Regulate Peddling

2 Measures on Transient Selling at Next Meeting of Board

The board of trustees in regular session next Monday evening probably will pass anti-peddling and soliciting ordinances.

Village Attorney Malone was instructed to draw up two ordinance measures, one to cover peddling and the other soliciting. The measure to regulate peddling probably will require $2 a day fee or $200 a year license for peddling in the village. The soliciting measure may completely prohibit house to house soliciting in the village.

Complaints Not Necessary for Assessment Cut

All Cook County Home Owners Get 15 Per Cent Reduction

All home owners in Cook county will benefit alike from the 15 per cent reduction in four year taxes on homes and two and three flat buildings, according to the rating of house 166, passed at the last session of the legislature.

However, many home owners in the state do not understand the statute, and it is believed that George F. Nixon, the head of appeals has written a detailed explanation of the cut to all assessors in the county. The explanation received by Miss Louise G. Johnson.

"You, of course, know that the 15 per cent reduction is on the improvement only, and not on the land."

The board of appeals' original plan, giving 15 per cent reduction to all taxes, where property falls within classes I and II, which includes homes, two and three flat buildings, has been agreed upon, and it is not necessary to file a protest or coupons to get this reduction.

P. L. Z. & W. Operating and Northwest Hy. Only an Idea 15 Years Ago

How quickly private automobiles, traveling over concrete roads have taken over a great deal of the transportation load handled by public carriers just 15 years ago, is revealed by excerpts from news items published in the September 4, 1919, issue of the Barrington Review.

"At the joint good roads meeting held in Catlow's hall Tuesday evening and sponsored by the new town of Barrington Road Improvement association, representatives of 12 villages and townships along the C. & N. W. railroad and from various local roads, were present, having the highest total of grades in their school work in spite of having completed the course in three years instead of four. The guards were open to all beginners, regardless of age. The life saving lessons will be open to persons over 12 years of age. The instruction will begin at 7 p. m. every evening from June 25 to July 14. Only the guards on regular duty will give lessons."

Sheep Business

Sheep are raised on every continent except Antarctica. Australia is the biggest producer of wool, while India and China are leading sheep countries, says Pathfinder Magazine. Argentina leads other South American countries in the production of wool and mutton. Sheep flocks graze mainly over its two extremes, along the Mediterranean seas on the north and in South Africa. The country in Europe raises sheep, but the United States is relatively scarce in the northern countries of Norway, Sweden and Finland. The United States, with more than 50,000,000 head, leads the North American countries.

Few Centuries May Show Food Supply Inadequate

Limitation of life, in other words death, has naturally been much debated by scientists and a recent theory has suggested that there is a definite relationship between the theory of natural selection and survival of the fittest—that death was an adaptation advantageous to the race.

Death, which has thus been evolved in the process of selection, might be held to be the higher metazoan standard of existence, might be regarded as a provision against overpopulation and famine from insufficiency of the food supplies of the world, and so the natural selection to modern artificial birth control.

Miles Symer, professor of mathematics in Trinity college, Dublin, in the Seventeenth century, calculated that in 1400 years between the creation and the flood there would not have been standing room on the earth's surface if the patriarchs, with an average breeding period of 400 years, began a new race 100 years ago.

With the rapid increase of the world's population, due to improved sanitation, there have not been wanting estimations that should change occur, a few centuries will show the food supply of the world inadequate for its inhabitants—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Turpentine
Turpentine is derived from the sap of various trees, and can be made from some which grow in the Northwest, but the majority of commerce in the United States comes almost entirely from certain pine trees which are distributed throughout the southern states. Georgia is the leading state.

SOLVENT GOVERNMENT ONLY CURE

The only sure road to a normal economic condition is removal of uncertainty about the future through restoration of government economy, David Lawrence pointed out in a recent editorial in the United States News. Long term credit is needed to bolster up industry. But long term credit will remain absent until individuals and financial institutions who have money to lend are assured of sound general economic conditions in the future when long term loans are to be repaid.

Mr. Lawrence summarizes:

"As we examine the legislation of congress we find much of it enacted in a spirit of reprisal against those who mulated the public. This indignation was inevitable. But much of the reform spirit has only brought on more evils and economic disturbances. The difficulties of getting long term money in circulation have been increased instead of diminished. It is not a question of financing steel companies or the railroads. It is a matter of helping the many thousands of small business men throughout the country who use the steel or who send their freight in car loading that yield return to the owners or creditors of our transportation system."

"There are literally myriads of transactions that develop from the proper adjustment of the capital markets. It is those transactions which we lack and which are failing to bring the employment relief that government spending so desperately trying to attain.

"Normally, engineering departments are asked to find new ways of producing goods at lower expense. Today manufacturers are discouraging any plans for replacement of old machinery or equipment or old plants. Everybody knows that lower costs are essential if a small profit is to be made on a large turnover. Yet the facilities to bring down cost are lacking because of the circumstances that exist today in the use of long-term money."

"One reason, of course, is the legislation which paralyzes the long term money market. But even if there were no restrictive laws, would people invest their money in anything that matures ten years from now? They used to do it. Today they fear what will happen a decade hence."

"This is largely because our government is pursuing policies that seem absolutely to disregard the fact that a decade from now the long term money borrowed now must be repaid."

POPULATION TREND TOWARD RURAL TOWNS

About the best proof that our small towns, villages and rural communities are the best places in which to live is the fact that Americans continue to flock back to them. Following the World war our population made its fateful cityward movement. For a whole decade or more the people made a desperate effort to embrace the swift, artificial modes of life in our big cities. The 1930 census showed that the urban population in this country was 56.2 per cent of the total, while the rural population was credited with 43.8 per cent. But the great exodus to the country and small towns since then has made it almost a 50-50 proposition.

It took only a short period of the four year depression to send many ex-villagers and many of their city cousins back to the wholesome life in our villages and rural communities. We say "wholesome" because no less an authority than the New York State College of Agriculture has listed the advantages of village life as follows: "Quiet, fresh air; cooler temperature in summer; better conditions for children's play; the opportunity for flowers and a garden; cheaper taxes, cheaper living, greater opportunity to own a home; and greater security, especially in the present times."

When we balance this up with the places cities live in, we readily understand these advantages. City folks live in a world of a billion noises. And when it comes to fresh air they seldom breathe anything but dust filled air and fumes.

This movement back to the land and the villages continues despite the fact that conditions of employment, etc., in the big cities have improved vastly since last March. The administration is encouraging it and is doing its share by establishing subsistence farms and communities where workers may help support themselves and their families.

Dr. Oliver E. Baker, the famous economist and publisher who, by the way, was born in a small town, has said that "the road of our nation's destiny is now turned back to the village." If we remember our history correctly, it has always been the products of village and rural America, who have more or less directed the nation's destiny since 1776.—The Pathfinder.

COST OF "WHITE PLAGUES"

Tuberculosis cost the United States government more than $46,000,000 in 1932 for service-connected compensation alone. A total of $40,000,176 was paid out in compensation to World war veterans afflicted with tuberculosis for the period 1923 to 1932. This is 33 1/3 per cent of the total amount paid in compensation, and it does not include hospitalization.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN WASHINGTON

Clouds over Europe threaten to give the world a crisis similar to that which precipitated the Hoover administration. Germany's repudiation of private debt is but the start of another series of nationalistic conflicts which can only end in the exhaustion of nationalism and a return to a sensible basis of international cooperation, but that is a long way off.

The problem of the world is self-preservation at all cost. Germany cannot live on a domestic ration. Her currency is rapidly vanishing again to the zero mark. The repercussions are felt in France and Britain. Meantime, talk of a new convention though just how there could be a clash now in the face of the economic disintegration which threatens Europe is hard to see. Messrs. Hitler and Mussolini are talking peace, not war.

A blank check of authority, given to President Roosevelt, was left behind by congress when it adjourned. Even more readily than that did the 110-day special session of the 73rd congress that followed. Mr. Roosevelt's president now can write his own ticket for the nation in facing the emergency problems of the next seven months. The additions to his authority include: Power to purchase and coin silver until the end of the year; Power to coin gold, 25 per cent silver. Power to raise or lower any part of the country's tariffs by as much as 50 per cent, free from the interference of congress. Power to spend, principally, what he sees, about $7 billion dollars, for relief and recovery, including $455,000,000 for drought relief. These powers are in addition to those previously granted by congress in its earlier special session, which included the following: Authority to fix prices of farm and factory products and to control the output and marketing of farm and factory products through the national defense, recovery administration and the national recovery administration. Authority to use government funds to buy farm lands, to purchase factories for use by the unemployed, to make loans to private industry, to issue bonds, to sell or lease of securities, to issue bonds and to flow of funds into housing. Authority, in short, to meet almost every emergency that might be considered to have arisen from the depression, without need to wait for specific authority from congress. While granting new powers and permitting old powers to continue, the session of congress now evidently refused some funds for additional and made some moves to take back grants of power previously given.

The session of congress is the first and last regular session of the 73rd congress. That concluded last year but did not end with a special session called by the president. In order to bring this congress back again the president would have to call another special session which he is not likely to do unless there is a great emergency. But all members of the house and all members of the senate have campaigns for reelection on their hands this year.

The NRA celebrated its first anniversary on Saturday and President Roosevelt addressed a special message to General Hugh Johnson, who said it could "rightfully and properly celebrate" because it had spread employment and raised pay. "And we are not through yet," added the president.

President Roosevelt plans to be very far from the radio and telegraph in the next few weeks. His visit to Hawaii is a gesture of good will toward Japan. Mr. Roosevelt's belief in the old fashioned idea that personal contact between heads of governments are beneficial. It would not be surprising if the Premier of Japan met the president of the United States in Hawaii. Also it will be the first time that Roosevelt will be the first to make a visit to a South American country. He will stop off for a day in Columbia. This will add to the already constructive policy which Mr. Roosevelt has followed toward Latin America.

America's war debts have gone into a state of suspended animation from which they may or may not emerge. On Friday, June 15, when 13 nations should have paid up and paid the United States $74,000,000 in war debts, only one, Argentina, paid in. Franklin, actually paid its full share, $166,000. The rest allowed their debts to go into complete default. In a series of notes paid to Argentina, informed the United States that they were not able to meet their obligations at the start. The financial situation is so bad that the country is on the alert to prevent it. The means we should not make remarks about a child's personal characteristics in a way that would hurt his spirit.

If a child is born with a pronounced and the family likes straighter hair, he has freckles and mother prides herself on her clear skin. If he has bluish hands and feet and father has dainty ones, if he is a bit of a runt in the family, what of it? What can he do about it? Or you, for that matter?

The child was born with characteristic physical features, with certain strong traits and tendencies. Any parent to make his life miserable because of this is a different set for him. Or are you going to accept him good humoredly and do your best to help him grow to his own advantage?

Next time you feel tempted to suffer because your child has some annoying characteristic, one that is not truly fundamental to his mental and physical health, just ask yourself, "What of it?" Keep asking until the answer comes to you. "Just nothing at all." This child is going to make his mark in the world in spite of his red hair, or his awkwardness or his weight. What counts is his mind, if that is strong, it is beautiful, and mental beauty illuminates the body with a radiance that wipes out all crudities, even absurdities. If a child is made to feel unfit, his mind suffers. I am against mental suffering for children—adults, too, for that matter. I believe that it is our duty to save children from mental distress and suffering. We must do our best to the child to prevent it. The means we should not make remarks about a child's personal characteristics in a way that would hurt his spirit.

The first negro woman to prepare for the profession of nursing was Miss Mary Mahoney, who was graduated from the New England School for Women and Children in 1873. Through her efforts and the cooperation of graduates of the New England school, the National Association of Colored Graduate Nurses was organized.
