Wm. Gottschalk Is New Treasurer of School Township

William Gottschalk, Barrington contractor, has succeeded F. L. Waterman as treasurer of school township 43 (Cuba township) as a result of election by the township board of school trustees. Mr. Gottschalk took office as of July 1. F. L. Waterman resigned his position last week explaining that he has been having eye trouble which made book work difficult for him. He had served the township nearly 35 years, having been elected in October, 1895, to succeed A. K. Townsend who resigned to move to Elgin. In 1908 Mr. Waterman was appointed village treasurer which office he held until June, 1933, simultaneously with his position of school treasurer. When he accepted the position of treasurer, the school township had a loanable fund of $2500. He built this up with interest to $7750. In this year, the largest township loanable fund in Lake county.

M. Karker to Talk to Employees in 81 Cities on Sunday

Largest Telephone Hook-Up on Record to Transmit His Address

Talking with the largest telephone hook-up on record, M. H. Karker, president of Jewel Tea company, will address persons at 80 branch offices throughout the United States Sunday morning. Mr. Karker will talk from his private office in the local building directly to New York City from where his talk will be transmitted to 40 cities in the country. A hook-up of the telephone company's toll lines, in four different sections of the country, will make it possible for Mr. Karker to talk to offices in 20 different cities each time. He will make four talks of 10-minute periods. It is estimated that about 5000 persons will hear him since employees and their families will be assembled at the branch offices to listen. After the talk, police officers will clear the way for groups in each city to a picnic ground and the day will be devoted to Jewel picnics. Photographers will take pictures of the various groups as they leave the home office can employ a composite picture of employees and their families throughout the United States.

Hot Weather Care of Babies Requires Special Attention

Infant Association Lists Diet, Baths, Rest as Essentials

During hot weather, the care of infants has become a problem of great importance. The Infant Association of Barrington, Ill., has issued a list of essentials for the proper care of babies during the summer months. These essentials are: Diet, Baths, Rest, and Special Attention.

The diet of a baby should be carefully watched. It should be given proper food, and the mother should be careful not to overfeed the child. The baby should be bathed regularly, and the water should be kept at a comfortable temperature.

Rest is also very important for the baby. The mother should try to keep the baby as comfortable as possible, and avoid any unnecessary excitement or disturbance.

Special attention should be given to the baby's health. The mother should watch for any signs of illness, and consult a doctor if necessary. The baby should be kept clean and dry, and the mother should avoid any contact with the child that might cause an infection.

The Infant Association of Barrington, Ill., is a voluntary organization that is dedicated to the care and welfare of infants. It provides a variety of services, including a day nursery, a hospital, and a home for the aged.

The association is open to all women who are interested in the care of infants. It holds regular meetings, and anyone who is interested can attend. The association is located at 1234 Main Street, Barrington, Ill.

For more information, contact the Infant Association of Barrington, Ill. at 1234 Main Street. The association is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays.

The association is a non-profit organization, and all of its services are provided free of charge. It is a wonderful organization that is dedicated to the care and welfare of infants.

Art Exhibit on Display at Public Library; New Rules for Withdrawals

Many lovely art exhibits are being shown at the Barrington public library. Along with the works of Frances Badger this week, Richard Dwyer will exhibit architectural designs. A ship model of the U.S.S. Chicago, designed by R. A. Carr, Barrington, is also on display. Later the interesting stamp collection of Charles Elsner Sr. will be included.

Books make good traveling companions if you are going away, and even better companions if you are staying at home. Violet W. Burridge, librarian, reminded Barrington people today. During the summer as many as five books may be borrowed from the public library for a period of four weeks without charge.

A vacation which cost nothing but a trip to the public library was taken last summer by an ingenious library patron whose husband was out of work, according to Mrs. Burridge.

Young people who have no studying to do and no work for the summer have been urged to visit the library. There is no charge for a borrower's card, and there are many good books which they are welcome to borrow.

Ed Groff Retires, Rents Store Space to Charles H. Miller

"I've had the satisfaction of selling groceries during the past year to a woman to whom I delivered when I started on my first job back in 1933. And she came in to see me to patronize my store."

Miller's Confectionery store will move to its new location at soon as the space is in readiness, probably the latter part of next week.

Out of Quarantine

The Noel Staynor family, 203 N. Cook street, is no longer in quarantine, the youngest child's illness having been diagnosed not scarlet fever as it was first reported.

Canals, Bridges in Venice

There are about 150 canals dividing the city of Venice into 117 large and small islands, and about 380 bridges, three of which, including the famous Rialto, span the Grand canal.

Rev. H. L. Eagle Elected President of Ministers' Union at Meet Friday

Rev. H. L. Eagle was elected president of the local Ministers' Union at a meeting held at Salem church Friday evening. Other officers elected to manage the work of the organization were Rev. Charles Drusell, vice president, and Rev. Hermann Koenig, superintendent of religious education. Rev. Eagle will serve as councilor at the Young People's Christian commission, it was reported, and Rev. Drusell will represent the Union in work of the local relief committee.

Members of this group manage union services at various local churches Thanksgiving day, Armistice day and during the last week of Lent. They also supply speakers for Memorial day services and supervise a course in religious education which is optional for pupils in Barrington public school.

Receives Degree

Daniel Woodhead Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Woodhead of West Main street, received a degree of bachelor of arts at Wesleyan university, Middletown, Conn., in June. He was a member of the Cardinal football team that won the Little Three championship this past season, a member of the varsity track team, Setawlers club and Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Lake Zurich Firemen Buy Fire Truck, Sirens, and Emblems for Cars

Lake Zurich's newly organized fire department increased its efficiency last week by the purchase of a fire truck and installation of a siren on the village water tank. Fire department emblems have been added to Bremen's cars and a siren to the automobile owned by W. F. Buhr, fire chief. Albert Heybeck, assistant fire chief, will be driver of the truck since it is to be kept in Mr. Heybeck's garage.

Plans are being made for a carnival in August to help defray expenses of the new equipment.

Where Squirrels Live

Chickadees, the common little red squirrels, live at home in almost any place, even in the attic, about the barn, or in the attic, about the barn, or in the attic, about the barn.

But the large gray squirrel is a shy and timid creature of the forest, of the hardwood ridges and the wooded heights, where there is plenty of oak, hickory, beech, and nut trees, where they will forage in considerable numbers, living amicably together.

During the winter, the squirrels live in their holes, and in the spring they come out to forage for food.

The squirrels are very intelligent animals, and they are very curious. They will often come out to look at you, and they will often come out to play with you.

The squirrels are very useful animals, and they are very important. They help to keep the forest healthy, and they help to keep the forest beautiful.

The squirrels are very cute animals, and they are very funny. They will often come out to play with you, and they will often come out to look at you.

The squirrels are very smart animals, and they are very clever. They will often come out to play with you, and they will often come out to look at you.

The squirrels are very brave animals, and they are very strong. They will often come out to play with you, and they will often come out to look at you.

The squirrels are very kind animals, and they are very gentle. They will often come out to play with you, and they will often come out to look at you.

The squirrels are very happy animals, and they are very content. They will often come out to play with you, and they will often come out to look at you.

The squirrels are very loyal animals, and they are very devoted. They will often come out to play with you, and they will often come out to look at you.

The squirrels are very honest animals, and they are very truthful. They will often come out to play with you, and they will often come out to look at you.

ARE YOU BETTER OFF?

"Are you not better off today than you were a year ago?" Thus President Roosevelt opened the democratic party campaign for re-election of "new deal" congressmen in a nation-wide radio broadcast last Thursday night.

No doubt that question in itself will create a lot of votes for new deal congressmen next fall. Many persons who are temporarily enjoying more luxuries and necessities of life than they were a year ago will not take the trouble to figure out that in the near future they will have to pay a heavy price in loss of prosperity because of America's greatly increased debt burden. So they will answer, "Yes, I am better off" and wave a little flag and should "Viva Roosevelt!" or actions and words to that effect.

But is not the average American who thinks he is better off because he enjoyed a little direct employment from CWA or a little indirect business from the same source similar to the man who discovered his credit was good and bought a lot of luxuries beyond his ability to pay? That new automobile, that new radio, the new electric refrigerator and the new rugs—all purchased on open charge account or time payment plan—furnished a lot of enjoyment to the buyer and actually made him feel prosperous. Eventually the bills came in. They could not be met. The automobile, the radio and the refrigerator were reclaimed by finance companies. Some creditor sued and attached the rugs. The flimsy castle of prosperity for this man collapsed. His fun was ended.

Mr. Roosevelt might have asked: "Do you think you will be better off a year or two in the future when you begin to help reduce the national debt which I have increased to 29 billion dollars and intend to further increase to 33 billion?" But of course he did not.

The greatest mistake of the ordinary middle class man earning a small salary is to think that he does not help pay for federal expenses. Surely his income may be small enough to be exempt from direct income taxation. But nevertheless he pays a lot of taxes indirectly. Every dollar that he spends for merchandise of any description includes several cents for the federal tax collector. The producers of raw material, the manufacturers, the wholesalers, the retailers pay income tax to the federal government and pass those taxes along to the consumer in the form of higher prices for merchandise. So the consumer pays the bill ultimately whether his income is $500 a year or $50,000. And the added billions of federal debt will be paid by the consumer.

GOVERNMENT'S SPHERE

"Our rulers will best promote the improvement of the people by strictly confining themselves to their own legitimate duties—by leaving capital to find its most lucrative course, commodities their fair price, industry and intelligence their natural reward, idleness and folly their natural punishment—by maintaining peace, by defending property, by diminishing the price of law, and by observing strict economy in every department of the state. Let the government do this—the people will assuredly do the rest."—McCauley.

HE'S LEARNING

General Johnson was pleased with the statement of important industrialists gathered recently at Hot Springs that much of the NRA should be retained after next year . . . but almost simultaneously he ran into difficulties with the unions over his dismissal of the head of the union organized in his administration . . . there is a general feeling in Washington that both the administrator and President Roosevelt have found out many things about labor organizations in the last year; namely, that to meet one demand is not to satisfy this group but is fuel for fresh demands.

FALL ELECTIONS

The fall congressional elections are generally recognized as among the most important in history . . . re-election of election anew of "Left Wing" members would be accepted as an encouragement for the government to run further that way . . . on the other hand, the election of liberal conservatives will do much to strengthen the cause of strict constitutionalism without the importation of foreign ideas in our government.

Quite a few children wouldn't be so bad if it weren't for the parents they have to live with. Other children wouldn't be so bad if their parents would stay home long enough to live with them.

Now that commencement is over several fathers likely have the same feeling they would have been the mortgage on the old homestead paid off.

One of the hardest speeches in the world to make convincing is the one setting forth the reasons why your son can't buy a dog.

Whether one considers the world round, flat, square or crooked depends on the part he has bumped against.

WHAT'S GOING ON

The federal government at last is prepared for a gigantic effort to borrow and spend itself into a boom. It entered the new book-keeping year today with $10,000,000,000 to spend in 12 months. The plans call for using all of this money. Two billion more dollars are on hand for spending when needed. These dollars are in a currency stabilization fund.

An estimate is that about $150,000,000 of them may be used between now and next July 1 for purchasing silver bullion. At the same time private funds are to be enticed into use by government guarantees of loans for home building and home repair and for business operations. If the plan is carried out all paid out, peace time spending records are, and officials say that they will be, to be broken. The best that is any government spending agencies could do during the past year was to spend $7,000,000,000.

But about $3,500,000,000 under the record that President Roosevelt expected. Now this carry-over is to be added to the other funds provided by congress and used for a broad spending drive. Where is all of this money to come from? Is there a chance that the treasury here in Washington might run dry before the year is out? The answer given by the first question by officials is that about $4,000,000,000 of money should come from taxes and about $6,000,000,000 from borrowing. The answer to the second, from the same source, is that there is no foreseeable prospect of the treasury running out of money. Even if it should, the government is prepared for any emergency.

Mr. Roosevelt is planning to help elect new dealers. He will not do by party appeal as did the late President Wilson in 1918. He will do it by indirectness. His record adds last week was the beginning of a series of maneuvers looking forward toward the re-election of a democratic congress. Plans are somewhat tentative, but they are somewhat indicative of his party background. This is only another way of saying that Mr. Roosevelt believes he can ask the country to elect a new democratic congress and not ostensibly a democratic congress. Even if he should sacrifice the feelings of a few democratic aspirants in states like California and Wisconsin and openly support the republicans who are bound to win any way the record of adherence to a fundamental philosophy rather than a party would stand him in good stead if he wishes at the last.

They are inclined to smile over at the NRA headquarters when they hear that whether General Hugh S. Johnson is cracking under the strain. Administrator Johnson himself laughs aloud at the thought of cracking up from cracking down. Yet three times in less than 12 months the general has been a patient in Walter Reed, a government hospital in Washington. He later returned to his desk after a week-end in that institution. Around the NRA office they point to the general as a man who has sense enough to quit when he's tired instead of waiting to collapse. A year ago Administrator Johnson started upon one of the hardest jobs the world has ever known, that of spreading the blue eagle among American manufacturers and making them like it. He has aged a bit in those 12 months. So have some of the manufacturers.

felt that you had betrayed his confidence. Maybe sometime one of the children got into trouble. He founders into it because of his inexperience and his uncontrolled impulse. He was frightened and came to you with his difficulty. You were so angry to think of all the trouble this thing was going to bring to him and to you that you lost your head and stormed like a pirate. The child decided it was no use to try to tell him of his trouble and left home, making a bad matter worse. The worst part being that he had decided that you were not the one to help him, that you were not a trustworthy friend in time of need.

The experiences children have with us are what set their attitudes toward us and other people. No child ever grew up without giving his people some trouble. The trouble is cleared away sooner, the child redirected earlier and with greater certainty, if he found an understanding mind and a helping hand ready for him. Anger, fear, selfishness, will drive children away from us.

Oddest Horse Race in World. The most thrilling and peculiar horse race in the world is the Palio. It occurs twice yearly at Siena, a medieval little Italian town, which has witnessed this event for centuries. It was a writer in the Cape Argus. The king of Italy and other members of the royal family usually honor the race. The race is run between different communities of the town, each of which provides a horse and a jockey. The popularity of the event together with the fiery enthusiasm of the spectators is mainly due to the great risk of injury entailed by those taking part. Nothing in the race is adjudged foul. Supporters of the different entrants are allowed to throw stones, and a rival crowd of horse and jockey is offered thousands of pounds in bribes to tamper with the animals. Coarsened pits have been dug in exercise grounds so that the beasts would injure themselves.

St. Peter's Church Said to Hold Record for Age. The oldest church in the western hemisphere is St. Peter's church in the ancient capital of the Bermuda, St. George's. Founded in 1612 with a structure of native timber and rebuilt in 1619, St. Peter's has seen almost three and a quarter centuries of continuous religious service, almost half a century more than any other church in the world today.

Its closest rival are the cathedral of Mexico, built in 1607, and the Old South Meeting house in Boston, which was built in 1609. St. Luke's church in the Isle of Wight, Virginia, is abandoned, after being destroyed in 1672, and the First Church of Salem, Mass., constructed in the same year, was recently restored for religious service.

St. Peter's, in its history and within the church itself and its crowded, shady churchyard, runs up the long and steeply rising hill. The physical structure of the church reflects the changes, social and political, of the island, for it has been added to and repaired many times in its long career. The first church was built of the native cedar, but to quote an old record, "it was blown down by a tempest so that he (the governor) built another in a more close place at Palmetto leaves." This in its turn was replaced by a stone structure in 1619, much of the masonry being utilized in the present walls, which were raised in 1715.

Although it has no desire to become the country's banker, the government will lend to deserving borrowers as long as private lenders will do so. This was the warning given last week by Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the reconstruction finance corporation, as the government prepared to launch its direct loans to industry. Mr. Jones, in an address, told the banks that they should be making the loans which the government was about to undertake, and, in effect, cautioned them to resume their normal operations or see the RFC do their lending for them.

Colored Girls Bleach

Men of the Guajira tribe, in tropical America, prefer girls with pale faces. So Guajira mothers with eight daughters shut the girls up in dark rooms to bleach out their complexions and make them attractive to prospective suitors. This unique custom is reported by a representative of the University of Arizona, who made a study of the primitive Guajira Indians of northern Venezuela. Describing these Indians, she said that in Guajira households the mothers are supreme. Guajira girls are put on the marriage market. The mothers have a system of selling their daughters to eligible young men of the tribe. Blood revenge holds a dominating place in the life of this primitive tribe. The number of the population meeting a violent death because of the payment of wrongs demanded in blood is something appalling, she declared.

Baritone Christoforo was an Italian harpsichord maker and the inventor of the hammer action and the modern pianoforte. He was born in Padua about 1650, and served an apprenticeship as an instrument maker. After following that work for some years in Padua about 1687 Prince Frederick of Grand Duke Cosimo III, persuaded him to remove to Florence, that he made the first piano. Descriptions and engravings of the line show that the invention is due to be preserved in Florence. He died in that city in 1731.

Many Names Originated

With Hebrews, Teutons
Names are so intimately associated with personalities that their traditions, their derivations, and their evolutions from one language into another provide an absorbing topic—especially to parents seeking appropriate names for the most recent additions to the family circle.

In the dawn of history in the Old Testament era, notes a writer in the Chicago Tribune, names conferred by parents on the eventual patriarchs of the Hebrews were descriptive phrases, which have been handed down from generation to generation. Thus Joseph was so called because he was not the first child, the old Hebrew translation of the name being "Addition." When Benjamin was born, his mother, Rachel, feeling that his birth must cost her own life, called him Benoni, meaning "Son of sorrow," which his father modified to Benjamin, interpreted "Son of my right hand."

Thus many names in use today originated in the old Hebrew tongue, being varied somewhat in spelling and pronunciation as they were adopted by other nations and races. Many more have been traced to the Teutons and reflect meanings closely associated with the deities and the warlike spirit of the people who first used them. These include many references to battle and to animals. The various traits of the latter—strength, courage or speed—were commemorated in Teutonic titles. Few names in this category were suggested by compiles, which frequently inspired the Keltic clans—the "roddy," the "yellow," the "dark," the "white," being applied in numerous instances to distinguish a man or a maid.

E Pluribus Unum, Motto on U. S. Seal and Coins

"E Pluribus Unum"—One out of many—is the Latin motto which appears on the obverse of the great seal of the United States. It is thus the "official" motto of the government, and by act of congress is also inscribed on the coins.

The motto was originally proposed on August 1, 1776, by a committee of three which had been appointed by the Continental congress to prepare a device for a state seal. The committee consisted, incidentally, of Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson.

Their suggested seal was not accepted, however, and it was not until June 20, 1782, that the motto adopted as part of the second and successful device, which was submitted by Charles Thompson, secretary of congress.

It was in 1796 that congress directed the employment of "E Pluribus Unum" on the coinage. On the great seal it was inscribed upon a scroll, flowing from an eagle's mouth. It also appears on many coins.

The motto itself is an ancient turn of phrase, to be found in a number of the classical authors.

will work at a height of 20,000 feet, so that the pilots will have to wear electrically-heated suits. The intense cold at this altitude will, however, have certain advantages. The smoke will be at least partially frozen on coming in contact with the air, and this will enable the messages to remain legible for a longer period. Also, at 20,000 feet up, atmospheric disturbances will be less, which will be an additional help in keeping the image clear.

First Greyhound Race
The museum at the Guildhall, London, contains a cup which proves that even eighteen hundred years ago the Londoner was fond of greyhounds. The border at the top is made of a circle of men chasing each other around the rim. Its unusual shape suggests that it was given as a prize probably for some sort of greyhound race. So it is possible that greyhound racing took place in London about 100 A. D. when the cup was made—The Bells Magazine.

"Fool's Gold"
Gold is not usually found with coal or iron formations. The yellow crystals and flakes of fool's gold, or pyrites, a sulphide of iron commonly found with coal and most minerals. Its crystallizations are well marked and often of much beauty, while its brilliant luster and golden color have given it a fictitious resemblance to gold. Hence its name, "fool's gold."

Poison Hemlock Common
The hemlock plant, source of the favorite poison of the Greeks, is also the source of valuable medicines made from the leaves and the fruit. The plant is common, the spotted hemlock being most generally seen along roadsides and on dumps. It grows from two to five feet high and has a green hollow stem. The Greeks used the hemlock to execute prisoners condemned to death, a distillation being given the unhappy victim to drink.

Cash Register Stolen

5 Years Ago at Grove Recovered From River

The cash register stolen five years ago from John Smith's bridge resort at Fox River Grove was lifted from its long resting place a short distance from the resort last week by Gilbert Willey, William Derlach, and H. Brewer.

It was discovered by Eleanor Brychta, a summer resident, while she was swimming near the bridge. The register was at once identified by Mrs. Smith.

When the robbery occurred the register contained considerable money and valuable papers. Mr. Smith used that same. Mrs. Smith went to considerable expense to get duplicates for the papers which remained here water soaked and scarcely readable. The papers could be read well enough.

The handits of five years ago must have thrown the register into the river after removing the cash.

Moving Date Uncertain
Officers of the Chesterfield Tailors, Inc. will be in Barrington Saturday to determine a definite date for moving the company from Chicago to the East Main street location. They will discuss building plans with the contractors to set a date when construction work must be completed. The basement for the new north section of the building has been excavated. The foundation will be completed by the first of next week. The company will move after both the new and old sections of the building are finished.

Misprision of treason consists in general of having knowledge of, concealing and not disclosing the treason of others. It is punishable by imprisonment for not more than seven years, and a fine of not more than $10,000, or both.

The Sable
The term sable belonged originally to the tree-climbing woad for less numbers, northeastern Asia and Siberia. It is represented in western Europe by an animal similar animal known since ancient times as the marten. When English New England they found it in the woods that they naturally called it by the same name. In fact, the marten is practically the same creature as that in northern Europe, and the same name, Hedondia, is properly borne by it. In color this weasel is variable.

Carry All Burdens on Head
In Panamario, Dutch Guiana the native women carry everything from milk bottles to coffins—on their heads. In fact, their aversion to using their hands is so strong that they even carry letters in this manner, weighted down by a brick. —Collier's Weekly.

Sanitary Engineer Explains Delay in Local Sewer Plans

Sanitary Water Board With Approval Pending Supreme Court Decision

A sanitary district is impractical, an open ditch along the Northwest highway for flowage of sewage to the Fox river probably would not be permitted by the state and condemnation of Fifth creek bed to the Fox river might be prohibitively expensive, according to opinions expressed at a joint meeting of the village trustees, the state sanitary water board, the village attorney and engineer held Wednesday night.

The meeting was held for the purpose of discussing the sanitary sewer predicament of Barrington and of working towards a solution of the problem. It was attended by Harry Ferguson, state sanitary water board engineer; David H. Maloney, village attorney; Arthur Conner, engineer engaged by the village to prepare plans for improving the system; and by the village president, clerk and trustees.

Mr. Ferguson discouraged the proposal to form a sanitary district. The territory benefited by a district would not be large enough to warrant its expense, he said. Mr. Maloney asked the engineer why Barrington's amended engineering plan has not been acted on by the state sanitary water board. Mr. Ferguson replied that the board awaited a final decision by the state supreme court and added that the plan probably will be acted on in the near future.

The plan includes a proposal to condemn land for a pipe line in the Fox river. It is probable that the plan, subject to minor changes, will be approved by the water board and forwarded to the Chicago office of the federal public works administration together with the application for a federal loan. The fate of the application is in the public works office is problematical. Nearly all of the PWA funds have been allotted already and a great many applications for loans necessarily will be rejected.

In case the plan is approved, the village may get its only feasible solution for the predicament.

Mr. Ferguson declined to say that the sanitary water board will approve of a plan for dumping treated effluent into the Fox river or into Fifth creek below the property of the persons who have obtained a permanent injunction against the village.

Street Lighting Cost Reduced in Village $1166.40

A reduction of 18.1 per cent in cost of street lighting which will save the village $1166.40 per year was announced by the Public Service Co. this week. M. H. Rehrer, district manager, informed the village trustees of the reduction at the regular board meeting Monday night.

Trustee John Carroll suggested that some of the residence street lighting on the Lake county side of the village which previously had been reduced by the board to trim expenses be restored so that the service company's voluntary cost reduction be used for better service in the form of more illumination. He called attention to the necessity of light along the Northwest highway west of House street and along other streets in the north part of the village.

Trustee Schroeder and Trustee Rehrer objected to additional lighting on the grounds that the reduction in lighting costs should be a factor in helping the village pay off its delinquent bill to the service company, which now amounts to approximately $8600.

No action was taken at the board meeting.

The quality of electric service being rendered in Barrington by the Public Service Company was recently inspected by the Illinois Commission and found to be 91.96 per cent perfect. This grade shows improvement over the time of 91.88 assigned at the time of the last previous inspection by the commission in the winter of 1932. A 2.5 per cent decline in spite of various additions.
