Announce Plans for Luxembourg Day at the Fair Saturday, July 28

The Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, the smallest nation in Europe, is one of the few nations in the world which has a purely governmental exhibit at the 1934 Century of Progress exposition. Luxembourg pavilion has been enlarged to twice its original size and is located on the first floor of the Travel and Transport building. In addition to its tour-promotion section, the exhibit contains products of the little duchy such as champagne, Moselle wine, liqueurs, cordials, leather goods display, statistical placards on banks, financial corporations, holding companies, steel and iron production, etc. Luxembourg, and horticulture is also known as a land of romance on account of its scenic beauties, feudal castles, historic buildings, rugged hills, fantastic country sights, and beautiful roses.

Luxembourg day at the World's Fair has been set for Saturday, July 28, with an official program from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m. and will include a colorful pageant and stage attractions to be held in the spacious court of the federal and states buildings. The main speaker will be Fred A. Gilson, grand president of the American William Caspary will be the master of ceremonies and Captain Perry Daubensfeld marshal of the parade, will be held at 2:30 p. m. starting from the 14th street entrance of the fair.

Steer with Heart in Neck Now on Exhibit

A steer with its heart in its neck arrived July 10 at Charles Doren's freak animal show on the midway boardwalk at A Century of Progress. The steer is a Poll Durham yearling and aside from the fact that it has its heart in its neck is normal in every respect. The animal, which has puzzled doctors all over the country, will be taken to the hospital in the Hall of Science next morning to be x-rayed by Doctor Frank W. Baylor, head of the hospital, in an effort to ascertain the reason for the animal's misplaced heart.

Teazel Growing
One of the curious crops grown in England and in Europe is the teazel. The teazel is used for raising the nap on the best cloth and hosiery, no machinery having been invented that answers this purpose so well. Teazels are the flower heads of the plant that name, and they are very prickly, having long straight bristles all over them. The use of this plant has been carried on for centuries chiefly in Somerset and Gloucestershire. The journey to the Yorkshire mills used to take longer as a week or ten days in olden times was a dangerous undertaking owing to the footpads who infested the highways.

Suburban Building Shows Triple Gain

The suburban building survey for June is a story of gains—a gain of June over May, a gain over June a year ago and a gain of the first six months of 1934 over the same period of 1933.

The June figure, $20,562, represents an increase of 26 per cent over May's total of $16,356. This improvement is largely due to a very striking increase, with Evanston leading in a jump from $1,600 in May to $14,500 in June, an increase of 77 per cent. Highland Park is next with a gain of 263 per cent representing an increase from $20,833 to $72,540. Gary comes next with a 120 per cent gain, the volume figures being $24,145 in May and $57,550 in June. Other communities which have taken lively spurts are Aurora, Elgin, Niles Center, Oak Park, River Forest and Winnetka.

In comparing June of this year with the same month of last, Evanston again takes first place, both in percentage gain and in the amount of permits issued. Evanston's total for June, $144,500 is noteworthy as being the largest turned in by any community this year. Detailed figures of the survey are as follows:

	June '34	June '33
Aurora	$ 18,010	$20,573
Barrington	1,600	475
Des Plaines	1,490	625
Elgin	23,816	10,000
Evanston	144,500	33,600
Highland Park	1,400	None
Park Ridge	1,150	26,000

Use for the Cat
In Russo-Jewish folklore, blood from the tail of a cat is regarded as a cure for erysipelas; while a cat put into the baby's cradle drives away evil spirits from the body.

Trees of Colorado
The tree species that make up the forest stands of Colorado are almost entirely coniferous and evergreen.

THE TIRE SENSATION OF '34 Sells on Sight!

TO SEE it is to buy it! That's the way extra value stands out in the new Firestone Century Progress Tire. We found out what car owners wanted most in a tire—then we gave it to them. Out of more than ten million visitors to the Firestone Factory at the World's Fair last year, we obtained this opinion: "Gives Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long Wear, at a Moderate Price."

So we built the greatest tire ever made to sell at these low prices. Then the wave of buying started—car owners from Coast to Coast bought—not just one or two tires—but a complete set!

Go to the Firestone Service Dealer or Service Store in your community TODAY! See the new Firestone Century Progress Tire—just look at the broad, husky shoulders, massive flat tread, deep-cut non-skid and Gum-Dipped cords. Did you ever see so much tire for so little money? No wonder it's the Tire Sensation of '34 and Sells on Sight! Why not equip your car with a complete set—while prices are still at today's low level. And remember, you get the new Firestone Tire Guarantee

To Give Review at

Mrs. Reichenbach's Home
Mrs. Robert Work will review "Peter Abeldard" by Helen Waddell at a meeting of book lovers to be held at the home of Mrs. Alex Reichenbach at 2 p. m. Friday, July 27. The same study group met at the home of Mrs. William Morf Tuesday to hear a book review by Mrs. R. R. Hammond (the original date, Friday, having been changed because of the Delong funeral services). "Peter Abeldard," which has been called the best novel published in England during the past year, is a retelling of the immortal love story of Abeldard and Heloise. Parts of the 12th century is the background of this true tale of the scholar and philosopher and the young girl from a country convent, a tale which does not grow old though centuries have passed.

Eighty Attend
O.E.S. Banquet

Members of Eastern Star met at the Masonic temple on South Cook street Monday evening for a banquet in honor of the official visit of twenty grand matrons Gussie L. Hart and worthy grand patron Harry X. Cole of Illinois. Eleven grand officers were present and 30 chapters were represented. After dinner two new members were initiated. Sister Rose Holt was soloist. Sister Vivian L. Scott, P.W.G.M., was among the guests which numbered 80. A color scheme of green and white was used effectively, bouquets of lilacs of the valley decorated the tables. Members of the Baptist church served dinner.

AVOID THE AMERICAN DESERT

We have ever believed that the greatest national problem for the United States next to human relations is conservation of its productive lands. In this respect we are printing verbatim a warning report from Dr. H. N. Wheeler, chief lecturer of the United States forest service. It follows:

Science may never positively find the cause of the 1934 drought of the middle west or northwest or of the great drought of 1930 or of the several droughts of more restricted areas that have occurred in recent years.

Although the cause or causes may not be definitely pointed out, there are some things that may at least have contributed to the reason for their occurrence. The great forests of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota were cut. The lands were burned over repeatedly. Then millions of acres of swamp land were drained and the water table lowered throughout the lake states and down into Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. Other drainage projects were carried out in the central states and rain water falling on the surface was, and still is, thrown down into the great water courses and on into the Gulf of Mexico.

How long can this process be continued without seriously drying out the earth? But even if there were no drainage ditches to carry surface water to the streams or miles of tiling to drain off subsurface waters, the cutting and burning of the forests is in itself an important factor in increasing the surface run-off of water.

The central states forest experiment station finds that the leaves, twigs and decaying wood that make up the blanket of organic soil being formed in a hardwood forest, keep the soil porous to such an extent that one inch below the surface of the mineral soil underlying this blanket 50 times as much water is taken in and allowed to sink into the ground and become soil water as is the case in the open field.

This soil water comes out as springs or is secured by drilling wells, but most important of all, the trees and other vegetation take some of this water out of the ground by the root system and let it out into the air through the leaves. An average size hard wood tree will pass out in this way 500 barrels of water in a growing season and an average pine or spruce one-fourth as much.

This water going into the sky comes down again as rain or fog. It is apparent at once that when the trees are destroyed over great areas the water they would put back into the air remains in the ground or is drained away. Water evaporates from the soil also and even from paved roads and goes into the air to come down again as rain in some place where the air currents take it.

The forests keep the atmosphere cool. Cool air will not absorb so much water as hot air and the dew point will be reached more quickly. It is cooler over a forest than an open field. Thus rains are more frequent over a forest than over cultivated land or even over grass land.

When the forest is destroyed the land dries out and heats up, the temperature rises and the heated air takes in more moisture. The wind carries this moisture to some other place, perhaps to great distances before the air cools enough to let it come down as rain and so it is lost to the locality. If the heat is terrific the air absorbs greater quantities of this evaporated water, and when a cool air current does strike it there is a heavy rain or cloud burst.

The great forests of the gulf states have nearly all been slaughtered as were those of the lake states and fire has been rampant for years. Each year from 40 to 50 million acres of forest and woodland are burned in the United States, the bulk of it in the southeastern part of the country. In 1932 fire burned 18 1/2 million acres in Florida, 6 1/2 million in Georgia, of more than 40 million in what is known as the southeastern states. Much rain in former years came to the middle west by the southeast, east and northeast winds.

Mixing of cold and warm air currents no doubt played their part in this rain problem, but it seems reasonable that with the constant destruction of timber and drying out of soil by fires as the years pass there will be less and less moisture to come from the southeast and, therefore there will be less rain to fall in the middle west and northwest.

Immediate stopping of all fires in the woodland should be helpful in making a recovery, but it is not possible that these destructive processes have gone so far that recovery is impossible before an actual desert appears in our great middle and northwest regions?

If fires can be prevented and trees can again be grown on the greater portion of the 462 million acres, east of the great plains that are neither farmed nor pastured, and the drainage ditches can be stopped up, the great desert may be prevented from forming.

But perhaps it is already too late. Possibly too much water has been drained into the gulf that the water table has been lowered beyond recovery. This great drought like the one of 1930 will kill millions of trees. A few more droughts and water courses will be dry as those of the Sahara desert, trees will be dead and the real desert will be an actuality.

The bulk of the 170 million acres of public domain in the west and southwest parts of the United States is overgrazed and vegetation destroyed beyond recovery except through the most drastic recovery program. Desert con-

WHAT'S GOING ON IN WASHINGTON

Very tall, slim pleasant and alert Lloyd Garrison installed chairman of the national labor relations board, is going to have within a few months a struggle between duty and duty. Washington will undoubtedly want him to remain here. The University of Wisconsin is already clamoring to have him return before many months have elapsed; he is dean of their law school. Descending from William Lloyd Garrison, famous antislavery abolitionist, the 37-year-old Lloyd Garrison has earned an enviable reputation for his keen research into the labor conditions and how they affect the public as well as the workman.

The new national labor relations board headed by the secretary of labor, Miss Frances Perkins is in session, watching with growing concern the spread of strikes through the country, particularly on the Pacific coast. The situation in the coast is being handled by a special federal board which is powerless to act under the law, unless both sides to the controversy accept arbitration. The question of union recognition is involved.

The president is avoiding the issue, leaving it to boards to mediate. In the end he will have to take a positive stand and clear up the many academic points in dispute. Otherwise continued labor warfare will wreck the recovery program. But there is not as completely out of touch as might be supposed. The radio in Arlington towers in Washington works with him instantaneously. He gets messages back and forth in a few minutes. He could put down some of the rebellious elements in the longshoremen's strike if he chose. He may be compelled to later on.

Michigan.

Conditions are already appearing there. It will cost billions of dollars and the cooperation of the United States with the states and the best efforts of every individual to bring back a recovery. Will it be done or will our great farming area become another Sahara?

During the past spring the dust storms in the stricken area were tremendous. That dust was borne by strong winds even to the Atlantic coast. As drought succeeds drought these dust storms will increase and even destroy the lands not actually in the desert belt, just as North Africa is being destroyed by dust storms from the Sahara.

Not a bright picture. This is not the time to paint a bright picture, but the time to rise up and try to prevent this great catastrophe. Not only must fires be kept out of the forest and potential forest areas of the lake states, and the southern states and the middle states, as well, but trees must be planted by the billions. The one hundred mile strip of trees to be planted from north to south across the country in the semi-arid regions will help, but that is not enough.

Those drainage ditches must be dammed, lakes must be refilled with water, and reservoirs be constructed. Windbreaks of trees should be planted on every farm of whatever size, all the way from the Rocky mountains on the west to the Allegheny mountains on the east, in the prairie and plains regions and fire kept out of all woods.

Except for the year 1928 Minnesota has had drought in greater or lesser degree each year for 15 years. Surely this is due partly, at least, to man's violation of nature's laws. Will we go complacently back to sleep or will we rise to the occasion and save our country for ourselves and posterity?

In this service Scout Executive C. O. Nims will present troop 29 with its charter.

Our Children

This Leisure

Aside from the lack of work that is causing so much idleness, there is a normal leisure that has to be taken into account in planning the children's education.

Home can use very little of it, as home is organized today. That is, it can't stand this learning and playing and chasing around another minute. Take him outdoors if you want to play.

"I don't want to go outdoors. There's nothing doing."

"Then do something useful. A boy your age ought to be able to do something better than to monkey with a dog or drum on the table."

"Tell me something to do and I'll do it. I'm sick and tired of sticking around with nothing to do. This is a dead house and a dead old town anyway. I'd like to go somewhere and do something. I would."

"Read a book, why don't you?"

"Read a book. Just as if I hadn't read a hundred books. I want to have some fun. Tell me something to do."

"That something to do is the beginning and end of our happiness in this world. We can't have anything to do we are willing to live. When we have nothing to do we have no will to live and that makes for a sad life."

We can save this generation from that by training them to have something they like to do.

All children are active. They never lack something to do, but more often than not, we have to stop them. We cannot have the house raised, the garden ruined, the dog and the cat choked to death.

This is no easy burden for parents to carry. What can they teach children to do? Games come first. Housework, garden work, shop work; animals, collections, are next in order. We begin close at home and gradually extend the field of activity until the child settles upon something he likes to do. This is not intended to be his life work. It is a hobby. If it grows into life work, so much the better. But he must have a strong interest in some field of work, play or study that will offer him contentment in his leisure hours.

Let the little chap collect his cards and his stamps; help the older one to follow his music, his painting, his pottery, whatever his hands find to do. You do not know what good thing is to come of it.

Carp Favored 8000 B. C.

Carp is one of the favorite fishes in Germany, and it was also the chief diet of the people who lived in Baden some 10,000 years ago.

This is shown by finds connected with the Neolithic age which have been made at Trier in the Moselle valley, near the ruins of Falkenstein castle. At a depth of about fourteen feet excavators have found a stratum nearly a yard thick which throws new light on the life of man in the Neolithic age (about 8000 B. C.). Great quantities of carp bones were found, and some 100,000 remains of snails give evidence of the influence of the Mediterranean climate in that age. Among the many flint articles is a polished stone at the transition period from the Mesolithic to the Neolithic age.

Aramaic Language

Aramaic is a Semitic language. It was widely spoken in biblical times, but its spread was checked by Arab conquests in the seventh century. In the village of Malula, Bala, and Jubb Adin, northeast of Damascus, a dialect closely resembling Palestinian Aramaic is still spoken.

Stone Age Village Found

After years of exploration and excavation on a site near Bristol, Crimée, U. S. R., which is believed to have been a large settlement of Stone age men was found. More than 100,000 objects have been collected.

Mexican "Plaza" Babel Citizens

Children born in Mexican cities are Mexican citizens and that country's laws, says the San Francisco Chronicle. Optim Poppies

Optim is obtained from the milky juice of the young capsules of the poppy grown in China, India and Persia.

The climate must be tropical or subtropical, there must not be an excessive rainfall, and the industry can be carried on successfully only where labor and land are sufficiently cheap and abundant.

The cultivation of opium poppies for the production of opium is not possible in this country, even if it were permitted by law. It is said that every species of poppy is capable of yielding opium to a greater or lesser extent.

Strawberry, "Strawberry,"

Known in Victorian Days
No vegetable production of the colder latitudes is at all comparable with the strawberry in point of favor. This was a well-known authority on fruit in early Victorian days. The strawberry was brought under cultivation during the early part of the Nineteenth century, though some who folk attempted it on a small scale previously.

In the days of the expert quoted above, the cultivation of strawberries was largely carried on in London, notably at Camberwell, and a little way out. Large quantities were grown at Isleworth and Twickenham. Women tramped up from Wales and her colliery districts for the season, and between the strawberry grounds and Covent garden, with a heavy load on the head walked about 40 miles a day.

It has been suggested that the strawberry owes its name to the playing habit of the plant. It was certainly pronounced strawberry in early times. The raspberry is said to derive its name from its rough and bristly appearance.—Montreal Herald.

Crawfish Lures Bass

The crawfish, or crayfish as it is sometimes called, is one of the most important forms of bait for fresh water fishermen, being particularly attractive to bass. The crawfish resembles a lobster in form, although, of course, very small. Like the lobster, it is a hearty eater and is not at all select in its diet. The crawfish are usually found hiding under rocks, particularly flat stones. Their ability to go backward or forward at equal speed makes them somewhat difficult to capture, but once captured and properly placed on a hook, they give one the capital of the catch.

Letters H, I, J and K

of Phoenician Origin
Four letters of the alphabet, H, I, J and K, have had interesting developments. The first of them, H, was called het in the Phoenician alphabet, from which it passed into the Greek language. The Greeks of Asia, however, did not appreciate the value of it. The western Greeks retained the aspirate, and it thus passed into the Latin alphabet and down to us.

The next two letters, I and J, are historically the same symbol. The letter J first appeared with an independent value of its own as recently as the fifteenth century. Originally J was only a modification of the Latin I. The letter I, although inherited from the Phoenician alphabet, underwent considerable change in meaning and value to acquire its modern value. In the Phoenician I was yod and had the corresponding value of the English Y. The dot over the small I was a development of the Fifth and Sixth century, A. D.

Perhaps the least change since earliest times of any of the letters of our alphabet is the symbol K. In the Phoenician K was kaph, which in Greek became kappa. Throughout K has represented an unvoiced guttural sound. In Latin K was to a great extent displaced by G, but K never was dropped completely. The letter C also represented K in Latin. K was through Latin influence. In English the use of C with the sound value of K is called the hard C.—Chicago Tribune.

Ranchmen in Oregon Use

Wells as Weather Guide

In the desert-like regions of Oregon, the cattlemen put their ears to the ground when they wish to find out if rain is coming. These arid lands have no surface water and the necessary liquid is secured from artesian wells drilled through hundreds of feet of basaltic rock to the underlying gravel. When the weather is settled these wells are quiet, but, on the approach of a storm, strong air currents are driven off from the underground openings. In this way the wells provide accurate natural barometers for the ranchers. What really happens is that the atmospheric pressure decreases in the region, causing a low pressure area, a term frequently used by the weather experts. This is always associated with rainy conditions. The atmospheric pressure in these deep Oregon wells is, or, at least, the same as that on the surface, but when a low pressure area appears at the surface, the air in the well is then at a high pressure. The high pressure air of the surface, but when a low pressure area appears at the surface, the air in the well is then at a high pressure. The high pressure air of the surface, but when a low pressure area appears at the surface, the air in the well is then at a high pressure.

Switzerland Has Much Snow

Switzerland is an inland mountainous country in the central portion of the Alps and has an area of 15,556 square miles. The northwest of the country, bounding France and Germany, consists of some of the highest ranges and valleys of the Alps. Between Lake Geneva and the Lake of Geneva on the Rhone, are the lakes Neuchâtel, Zurich, Lucerne, Brienz and Biemne, which all drain to the sea. Lake Geneva and Lake Constance each exceed 200 square miles in area. Owing to its elevation much of Switzerland is under permanent snow.

Mr. Crow Condemned

The crow is detrimental to game life because it robs birds' nests of eggs and also eats young birds. It is also considered a menace to agriculture by the average farmer because of its love of corn and corn sprouts as well as other types of farm crops.

Burbank Made Little Profit
Luther Burbank, the plant inventor, who was to the world of plants what Edison was to the world of mechanics and electricity, during his life probably did more in the field of plant experimentation than any other one man. He devoted his life to this work without the stimulus which has resulted from congressional action. In fact, Burbank's only remuneration for following this line of investigation came from his writings and the sale of the use of his name to nursery companies for their purposes of selling the products of his investigations.

Presidents of the Air
Ducks and geese are the feathered presidents of the air, following a course as unerring as if guided by compass or a radio beacon, while the crow is an erratic flyer, holding neither the same altitude nor direction for more than a minute or two at a time.

Attorney to Ask Court to Enforce Sewer Injunction

Seaver Writes to Village Learn What Steps Have Been Taken

Attorney Oscar S. Seaver reports to the Barrington, Ill. Country club and others who brought suit against the village of Barrington for an injunction to stop the sewer system, and subsequently won the case has notified Village Attorney, P. Maloney by letter that he contemplates asking the circuit court of Lake county to enforce the decree.

He stated in the letter that his application for enforcement of the decree will include two parts, one for payment of country club attorney fees and the other for enforcement of the decree. The attorneys' fees will have to be paid by the village. The village has paid the court and $120 allowed by the decree court.

Another point of interest in the village sewer system mixup is the fact that the elevation of the North Hough street main sewer line was not determined, is out of order and must be repaired or replaced. The village has paid the court and $120 allowed by the decree court.

Trustee Blanke at the village board meeting Monday afternoon reported that the elevation pump was out of order and asked the board to pay for repairing it. President of the board, J. H. Blanke, contended that the village should not be responsible for the pump. It will show legal advice of ownership of the pump. Blanke contended that the village already owns the line and is responsible for it.

A meeting of board members with representatives of Jewell T. Co. to attempt to reach an agreement on the Giffelsfeld sewer was scheduled for Tuesday night but nothing was accomplished at the meeting.

Flagpole Removed; Park Avenue Ready for Widening Job

The municipal flagpole was moved from its old standing ground in railroad park to a new and semi-permanent home in the triangle dividing Cook street and Main street and Park avenue Tuesday morning. A crew of workmen accomplished the task in less than two hours' time during which traffic on Cook and Park avenue was suspended.

With removal of the pole, a barrier in the strip of park which will be converted into a wide Park avenue, are out of the way. The water hydrant, the flagpole, ornamental light fixture, a row of shrubbery and several trees have been moved or eliminated.

Grading of the new pavement bed is nearly completed. Actual laying of concrete will be started after the village engineers have checked from the state highway department covering its share of motor fuel tax collected in the community.

Engineer Carter Jenkins, who drew plans for the pavement construction, reported at the village board meeting Monday night that the plans have been finally approved after being delayed in the highway department office. He explained that the state had been examining one certain type of joint connecting concrete sections of pavement. The joint he included in his plans was of a different type. This caused delay, but the state has finally accepted the plan with the joint as originally planned.

Concrete stairway at or near the east end of Park avenue opposite the west side of Grove avenue will be installed if this addition is planned.
