Village Sells at Loss to Heaviest Water Consumers

Relief Shows Only 74 Per Cent of Water Pumped Through Meters

The water department is selling water at a loss to the heaviest consumers, according to a report made by A. L. Chapman, treasurer, at a meeting of the trustees and the board at the village hall Monday night.

Chapman was the fiscal officer for the fiscal year ending April 30, 1934. He said the nine largest water consumers paid only 74 per cent of the cost of the water which they consumed, and which amounted to $216,107.07. The loss to the village is $12,116.16. This loss is the result of the fact that the metering system is not working properly. The water department is selling water at a loss to the heaviest consumers, according to a report made by A. L. Chapman, treasurer, at a meeting of the trustees and the board at the village hall Monday night.

Workmen Busy at Final Touches on School Building

Plan to Hold "Open House" When Redecorating Is Completed

Painters, carpenters and electricians are busy at Barrington public school this week finishing up work which could not be completed in the final rush prior to the opening of school. New electric clocks and modern lighting fixtures are being installed. In addition, the public will be invited to inspect the "open house," Sept. 21. A new suite of offices, arranged in accordance with remodeling plans accepted by the IER this month, is now complete except for lighting fixtures. All wood work is painted white, and the walls are ivory. Linoleum floor covering is in pattern and is awaiting effect of matched wood to be used throughout the room.

Pump and Shovel

Two Symbols of a By-gone day! Automatic gas heat, like the automatic water supply, now replaces inefficient, laborious, old-fashioned methods. KITCHEN toil—long hours in a poorly equipped, hot room has been banished forever by the forward march of progress. The wood-burning stove, the basement cooler, the pump at the sink have passed. In their stead have come the automatic range, the modern refrigerator and the sanitary plumbing system. Pump and shovel—these symbols of a bygone day—are no longer to be found in the truly modern home. The shovel—symbol of hours of furnace worries and basement duddery—has been displaced by a little thermostat on the wall—the only thing you need to regulate the temperature of your home when you have gas heat. Heating with gas is the modern way to end back-breaking shoveling, hauling of ashes, dust, soot and dirt. Gas heat is automatic. Gas heat is clean. And it is so easy. No running up and down basement stairs all hours to tend to your furnace. No fire applies on your favorite easy chair. No grime to cover curtains and walls. No dirty smudge to make woodwork harder to clean. In this modern day the shovel—like the old-fashioned kitchen pump—has no place in your home now that gas heat rates are so low. Get the facts at once. So that you may know the genuine pleasures of gas heat, we make this liberal offer. We'll install gas heat at our expense, remove it at our expense, if you don't like it. You do not invest one cent for equipment. We will install a burner in your present furnace or boiler at our expense. While you are trying it you pay only a small rental during the heating months—only $3 a month for the burner in the average home. This charge is included with the bill for the gas you use. You try it for one month, two months or a year. If within a year you decide to return to your old heating methods, we will replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order. But if you decide to keep gas heat, the rental you have paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment. Call your Public Service Company for complete details.

Meaning of Schwarzwald
Schwarzwald is German for black forest, a mountainous region in southwestern Germany and a favorite resort for tourists. It embraces an area of some 1,500 square miles and is about 100 miles long and from 10 to 20 wide. It has little and is not all wooded but it does derive its name from the dark hue of the firs that grow in the region—Pathfinder Magazine.

Upper Classmen Greet Freshmen at Special Meeting Wednesday

Freshmen of Barrington high school received a welcome and a glimpse of opportunities for self-expression provided during high school life when members of the three other classes, sophomore, junior and senior greeted them at a special assembly meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Ruth Read presided and introduced the speakers, each of whom outlined one phase of activities open to every high school pupil.

Claude Conn described athletic possibilities, Vivian Richter, dramatic, Jack Fletcher, musical, Esther Jeppsen, journalistic and Dorothy Dotterer, scholastic.

15 Enrolled at "Jack and Jill" Nursery School for Toddlers

"Jack and Jill" nursery school, Barrington's latest educational institution and one devoted to that most lovable group of little folks, the toddlers, opened at Salem Evangelical church Monday morning with an enrollment of 15 pupils. Mrs. Harry Hoglund is teacher.

Agas of the pupils vary from the youngest, two years, to several around four years of age.

Sand piles, small books with gay pictures, blocks, a cooking set and little engines are included in the equipment of their school-room. The curriculum will include songs, stories and games.

Constitution Day to Be Observed at School Thursday

Teachers in Civics, History to Stress Study of Constitution

Constitution Day will be observed at Barrington public school Thursday afternoon when a representative of the American Legion and several high school pupils give patriotic address. The meeting will be in the form of an assembly to which the public is invited, according to Supt. E. S. Smith.

Howard Castle will give an oration on the constitution and Elizabeth Wolthausen will describe outstanding characters at the convention which drew it up. Patriotic music is being prepared by Miss Esther Strous of the faculty.

The program will begin at 2 p. m.

Study of the constitution will be stressed during high school classes in civics and American history this year, in trend with the times, Mr. Smith stated. "There is no need for a special course concerning the constitution," he added. "All high school pupils study the constitution in connection with their history and civics courses anyway, but we shall emphasize it this week since Constitution Week is being observed generally."

"Grade children will be informed of it also since a study of the constitution naturally creates respect for all laws."

Father Duffey reported the same plans for St. Anne's school and stated that study of the constitution had been part of the regular curriculum for years.

An Extrovert, Introvert
An extrovert, in psychology, is a person whose emotions pass readily into external expressions and actions, the interest occupying itself upon external objects. An introvert is a person of a brooding, reflective type, tending to withdraw his psychic activity into himself.

Child Needs Health for Rigors of School

Thousands of dollars in taxpayers' money are wasted each year and hundreds of children are handicapped in their development because parents send them to school with physical defects which could be remedied, according to the Illinois Tuberculosis association.

Many children sent to school have defective hearing and often fail to hear much of what the teacher says; others have faulty vision and cannot see what has been written on the blackboard. Many cannot breathe properly because of enlarged adenoids and tonsils and as a result do not get enough oxygen into their systems, become fatigued and seem stupid even though they are not. Such defects sometimes cause a child to repeat a grade which is unfair to the school system and to the child, the association states.

"Let your school child have a complete physical examination by a competent doctor," the association advises. "Once are the days when a new frock or a pair of knickers, a pencil and a tablet, were considered sufficient equipment for a child entering school. Modern parents try to send the whole child to school, physically fit so that he may be mentally alert."

Parents should be on the lookout for such signs as disturbed sleep, poor appetite, temper tantrums, headaches or speech defects.

Effort should be made to provide each child with a proper diet consisting of some protein foods such as meat, fish, cheese or eggs; not less than one pint of milk a day and a quart if possible, plenty of vegetables, both cooked and raw, energy foods such as potato, rice, bread and macaroni. One-third of a child's diet should consist of one food element and too little of others, are unsatisfactory and do not permit a child to function at his best.

Most children need from ten to twelve hours of sleep a night. Fresh air, sunshine, and play out of doors are also requisites of good health, the association states.

Crude Sails Used to Aid Oarsmen to Propel Ships The adaptation of sails came early in the history of navigation, notes a writer in the Chicago Tribune. The Egyptians first used a piece of square matting lashed to a single mast. This crude sail, however, was by no means the chief means of propelling the vessel. For hundreds of years the propelling force for all ships was principally supplied by oarsmen. Sails were in the beginning merely auxiliary assistants to the rowers and were used only when a following wind was present. Egyptian ships of the fifth dynasty represent a more practicable use of sails as a propelling force. Manipulation of the sail was aided by lines attached to the mast. Steering was accomplished by paddles in the hands of steersmen on the stern platform. The command, standing amidships, held a long pole, or a thong with which he prodded the rowers when they were working.

From the primitive stages the art of shipbuilding and the skill of navigating vessels progressed to that stage which was represented by the comparatively huge ships known as galleys. The ancient Greeks and Romans, as well as the famous tribes bordering the Mediterranean and adjoining seas, used galleys effectively in war and peace. Galleys were common in the early centuries of the Christian era. The famous triremes of the Romans had lengths as great as 200 feet and were from 20 to 30 feet in width. They were equipped with large sails, but depended upon oars for the chief means of propulsion.

World's Best Sailer Among the peoples of the earth, the most popular story is "Cinderella." In one form or another of at least 350 versions of the tale have been circulated. It has been published the world over during the last 4,000 years.

First Steam Engine Was Used Away Back in 1698 While James Watt is generally credited with being the inventor responsible for the development of the steam engine, patent records show that an Englishman, Thomas Savery, devised a water-raising engine in 1698. This was really the first steam engine to be put to practical use, being employed in raising water from a coal mine, says Pathfinder Magazine. The first practical piston-type engine was patented by Thomas Newcomen and his assistant, James Cawley, in 1705. This proved immediately that this type was far more practical than Savery's engine, both in number of uses and fuel consumed. Improvements made on the Newcomen engine from 1703 to 1781 by James Watt gradually brought steam into industrial use. In 1782 Watt departed radically from principles of the earlier engines and devised the double action type, the forerunner of the giant engines. The introduction of steam marked the end of supremacy of sailing vessels. In 1790 James Rumsey propelled a boat on the Potomac river at a speed of four miles an hour through use of a power pump. About the same time an Englishman, James Fitch, utilized a steam engine to operate his car-driven steamboats. In 1801 the paddle-wheel was introduced in a steam towboat operating on the Forth and Clyde canal. It was the work of this strange craft that inspired Robert Fulton to build his steamboat, the Clermont, in 1807.

Climacteric Years According to ancient Greek physiologists, the climacteric years of a man's life were respectively his seventh, twenty-first, forty-ninth, sixty-third, and eighty-first. These were regarded as the terminals of marked physical change, and were duly celebrated. The advent of the twenty-first year we still celebrate as the "coming of age" of a man—the end of the period of adolescence. The mystic numbers were seven and nine. Although the Spanish origin of the term "grand climacteria" is not known, it is probable that it arose from the multiplication of the two mystic numbers, and the age sixty-three is supposed to mark the beginning of the period of decline.—Literary Digest.

Chicago Company Asks Approval on Peddling

The representative at first answered that this point was up to the individual salesman to decide, but corrected himself and admitted that it was understood the general plan of the company was to get the first $1 for a stamp at the time the "gift" was "given."

John Carroll, acting president of the board, asked if anyone in the audience had had any dealings with the company. O. P. Olson said he had started purchase of a book of stamps and his objection was the contract signed by the customer which stated that purchase of the book of ten stamps for $10 must be completed within six months.

The soliciting and peddling ordinances were passed for the purpose of protecting housewives and other local citizens from the annoyance of house to house solicitors and peddlers. The trustees will consult these ordinances to determine if their provisions have any bearing on the activities of the furniture company.

Village Sells at Loss to Heaviest Water Consumers

The nine largest users of water include the C. & N. W., the Jefferson Ice Co., Jewel Tea Co., Barrington Laundry, Pedersen Dairy, Park district (for swimming pool), E. J. & E. railroad, school district No. 4, and St. Ann's school.

There are several places which are billed at a flat rate, allowing any quantity of water for a set amount. This also tends to raise the loss, both in water consumed and price per thousand gallons.

It is readily seen in going through the record that the smaller consumers of water pay all the profit realized in the water department, while the larger the consumer, the greater the loss under the present system of rates and billing.

There are two remedies to this condition: 1. Raise the rates to a new low. 2. Eliminate waste.

Eliminating waste will be very difficult unless the "dead-ends" are abolished, and flat rates are done away with.

Raising the rates is probably the better solution, inasmuch as our rates are much lower than in other towns and villages around us.

The cost of operating the plant is about as low as it is possible to get without impairing efficiency.

CONSTITUTION STUDY IN SCHOOLS

The Elgin schools are prepared to inaugurate a required course of study on the American constitution. This reminds us that on several occasions we have heard lecturers deplore the fact that very few American citizens ever memorize the preamble to the constitution which is a legal, literary masterpiece and do not know what one of the amendments, except possibly the eighteenth, pertains to.

The question never presented itself to us before, but now we wonder why the constitution has been given so little attention in high school and academic college study. In our own case, one semester of high school study of civics was required. In that course, we read over the preamble and memorized the dates of the constitutional convention. In college we took an optional subject on American government and politics and reviewed briefly the constitution and amendments. Now that we think of it, we wonder why we did not get a more thorough course on the subject in high school.

In comparison to the constitutions of the various states, which are voluminous, repetitious, and in some cases vague and contradictory, the federal basic law is a concise masterpiece. It is often described as the most complete, clear and concise basic law ever written for a democracy, with just enough flexibility to allow for alterations to meet changing conditions after reflection by a majority of the citizens.

We believe it is subject matter for a required separate course of study in every public high school in the country and eventually will be included in all high school curriculums.

Along the same lines, constitution day will be observed throughout the nation next Monday. An open meeting with an interesting program will be held in the school auditorium. This meeting will offer a great opportunity for citizens living in this community to become acquainted with the growing demand for more study of the American constitution.

WHO BEARS THE BURDEN

It is often said that laborers, including both white collar and hand workmen, have suffered more from depression than have investors, and that most of the burden of hard times has fallen on those least able to bear it. Now recent studies, produced by the national bureau of economic research, decisively destroy this belief. During the years 1930, 1931 and 1932, for which complete statistics have been collected, industrial profits practically ceased to exist. American business did not even break even—it was forced to fall back upon reserves built up during better times to meet its obligations.

In 1929, for example, business paid out $81,800,000,000, while earnings totaled $83,000,000,000, leaving a profit of some $1,800,000,000. In 1930 expenses paid out exceeded income produced by over $5,000,000,000. In 1932, the deficit caused by expenses exceeding earnings amounted to almost $10,000,000,000. No comparable survey has been made for the years since then, but reports indicate that industry has undergone a similar experience.

Both capital and labor have necessarily taken it on the chin during depression, and capital has absorbed most of the losses.

CAREFUL OVER BRIDGES

Driving over narrow bridges and through subways requires extra care, secretary of state Edward J. Hughes pointed out in a safety bulletin issued by the state automobile department today.

When traveling over narrow bridges, the secretary said, "do not use the center of the road, but keep to the right side. Give the motorist coming from the other direction his half of the space."

Highway authorities have recognized narrow bridges as extra-hazardous, and have put warnings up at the approaches. All drivers dislike narrow bridges, and the call of the road is that each driver do as he would be done by, and give the other driver his half.

All such rules are not only for the other fellow but for the safety of all.

GRIST from the MILL

One can order the face lifted, lowered, pushed in or out. Gals sport Mongolian eyebrows, Egyptian lips, and arched brows. The ultra-ultra illuminate their toe nails.

The hair can be made straight, crinkly, or wavy, in puzzling cases a transformation does the trick.

When children have to hurry to get out to school in the morning they are in poor shape to begin with. It is not only your child's day, it is your child's day, too. The half-eaten breakfast, the clothes tossed on any way, the forgotten things, the irritations and the setbacks the morning hurry brings. It all leaves the child breathless and in a state of mental confusion.

The morning start must begin the night before. Things must be laid ready for the morning. Send the children out in a calm rather than in a hurry. The more things the whole day will go better for everybody.

Children are likely to put off things that they must do until the last moment. Then they hurry. That kills all the benefit the work might have conferred upon them.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN WASHINGTON

(Courtesy The United States News)

Out in the strike zone, workers have created a new and mobile weapon in the "flying squadron." This modernized and motorized attacking force is used to close plants that resist the strike.

In the past, a walk out often settled down to attrition between plant operators and their employees. The area of trouble, except for the Pacific coast shipping strike, was most frequent in a small area. Now there is a strike affecting hundreds of thousands of employes and ranging from Maine to the Carolinas. With that wide hinterland, the new method of attack was created.

Utilizing cars and trucks, groups of from 300 to 600 strikers would speed from one mill town to another seeking to force working mills to close.

Out of that type of modern technique came most of the fatalities of the first week of the battle. Militia and sheriff's forces resisted the sweep of the squadron of strikers with trouble the outcome. At the mill town of Carolina, armed employes of the mill shot and killed six members of a flying squadron and wounded many more.

Another year of experimenting with the NRA may be necessary to determine a wise policy for the future the president indicated in a press conference this week. The recovery act expires next June and the administration may simply prefer to let the act expire for another year with certain changes in organization and procedure which may be decided upon provisionally to that time.

Price fixing is a problem that still is perplexing the government. The president made it clear. Therefore, it may be found advisable to abandon it in administration of all the codes. Much pressure has been brought to bear on the government to restore free competition in lines of industry and to permit the anti-trust laws to operate with full force again. Any measure of price-fixing conflicts with this idea.

Of every dollar held by the national banks, 7 cents is invested in government securities, 21 cents in cash, and 6 cents in miscellaneous assets. These figures, showing exactly what is behind the money in deposits were made public last week by the federal deposit insurance corporation. The FDIC conducted a survey of 30 per cent of the commercial banks as of June 30. Chairman Leo T. Crowley of the federal deposit insurance corporation estimates that these figures show banks to be 54 per cent liquid. By this he means that behind every dollar in deposits the bank has 54 cents in cash or its equivalent in quick assets.

Last week school bells ringing all over the Nation ushered a new scholastic year. In perfect timing with the echoing peals came the announcement from public works administrator Harold Ickes that more than half the public school construction now going on in the United States is being financed through Uncle Sam's money.

Public works administrator Ickes is pointing out that only a negligible amount of school construction would have been possible this year without federal assistance, revealed that more than $219,000,000 has been added to the capital outlay for school building construction. This was made possible by the $3,700,000,000 PWA program.

Currency inflation, often spoken of as a last resort, is nothing more than run on the dollar. It therefore cannot be allowed to happen. It will never be deliberately chosen as the government's course.

Legislators, to be sure, may anticipate inflation but the writer of this article prefers to believe that the Roosevelt administration will not be so inclined to try economic suicide. Hence the long range view must take into consideration the powerful corrective influences of American thought. The administration may choose to the brink with Upton Sinclair but it will rather let him take the plunge over the precipice and wait to see the result.

It will be necessary for the United States to spend more money for the defense of the world next winter than ever before, unless there is more of a business revival than is now in evidence. The budget outlined in recent statements by Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator.

Brought relief in farm states has substantially added to the burden of the relief agencies, but an equally important factor in the situation is the increase in cost of living. It now costs approximately 20 per cent more to furnish relief to each family than a year ago, Mr. Hopkins said.

When he suddenly starts up and shouts, "Gee whiz, I forgot. Our monthly theme has to be in tomorrow. Quick somebody lend me a pen. Got any theme paper, Bens? Ma, I have to go down to the store for theme paper. How do you know he hasn't any? There, I'll have to go down to Billy's house and borrow some from him. Gee whiz, I forgot all about my pen. How do you spell composition? There, that'll have to do. I'll get by anyway." That lesson did not help.

Hurry is born of poor organization. When one plans and follows the plan there is no need for hurry say in the emergencies. The key to the problem is to avoid the appearance of hurry. They can have a schedule and follow it closely enough to save them from this strain. The home that eliminates hurry is a strong force for success in the lives of its children. Hurry's password is Maybe. That is not good enough for us. We need to be certain.

Bears Defeat Elgin Parksides for Fifth Straight

Barrington Beats Elgin 2 to 1 at Carpentersville

Attendance: Bears Parksides 10; Elgin 10; Local 10. Time: 1:30 p.m.

The Bears Parksides team defeated the Elgin team in a football game held at Carpentersville on Sunday afternoon. The Bears won by a score of 2 to 1. The game was a hard-fought affair, with both teams showing excellent play. The Bears Parksides team, coached by Mr. [Name], was led by [Player Name] who scored the winning touchdown in the fourth quarter. The Elgin team, coached by Mr. [Name], put up a valiant fight but was unable to score in the final quarter.

Three Leagues for Bowling Are Being Organized in Town

Competition will be started in a week or two in three bowling leagues at Barrington Recreation Alley.

Three circuits are planned—one eight team men's league, one four team men's league and one four team ladies' league. It is probable that no Lions League will be formed this year, since a majority of the players in last year's league are planning to bowl in the above-mentioned circuits.

A meeting to organize the ladies' group was held Monday night. It was announced that two women instructors, Mrs. Webster and Gerlie Geisler of Elgin will be at the alleys one night a week giving instructions.

Elgin B Team to Meet Barrington in Practice Game

First Conference Game for Bronchos on Local Field Sept. 28

The Bronchos will test their strength for the first time this season when they meet the Elgin B team Saturday morning in a practice scrimmage. Another practice game will be played next Tuesday or Wednesday with some other team not yet arranged. The first conference game will be played at the local field Friday, Sept. 28, against Warren.

Barrington Hills 100 Attend First P.T.A. Meeting in Palatine Tues.

Palatine Parent-Teachers association started its program for the year Tuesday evening when members of the executive board entertained members of the school board and faculty and parents of all school children at a meeting held in the community room of Palatine high school. About 100 guests were present.

Music was furnished by the high school orchestra. The program included an address by the club president, Mrs. Ethel Goddard, introduction of teachers by John Reusser, principal of the grade school, and appointment of committees and room mothers. Refreshments were served by the executive board. The next P.T.A. meeting will be held at 2:30 p. m. Oct. 9.
