Continent of Atlantis

Was Surrounded by Sea

The lost continent of Atlantis was entirely surrounded by sea. It existed, supposedly, between the Straits of Gibraltar and the Mexican gulf. It had been a great empire of tall, fair-haired, blue-eyed men and women. Alleged historical accounts agree that it was inhabited by supermen who lived peacefully and happily over a long period of years. The arts of civilization of the present race were acquired, according to historians, from this lost race before it vanished beneath the sea. A description of the lost continent has been furnished by Plato.

"The whole country," he relates, "was very lofty and precipitous on the side of the sea, but the country immediately about and surrounding city was a level plain, itself surrounded by mountains. It was smooth and even, but an oblong shape, extending in one direction 2,000 stadia, and going up the country from the sea through the center of the island 2,000 stadia; the whole region of the island lies toward the south and is sheltered from the north. The surrounding mountains were celebrated for their height and size and beauty, in which they exceeded all that are to be seen anywhere."

Old Army Game

Jud T. Tamm says it's the old Army game to ask you to ask him a question, the object being to conceal the fact that he doesn't know the answer.

The Tosses of China believe that finding fault with the weather continually is a sin which will be punished in purgatory.

Lighting experts would say this boy is reading under insufficient light. Poor light causes eye strain. Unless lighting conditions are corrected, he is likely to become near sighted.

Public Service Co. Has 'Sight Meter' to Protect Eyes

Artificial lighting which will insure maximum human efficiency, not only in terms of safety but also in terms of health and welfare, now is possible.

Dr. Matthew Luckiesh, director of the Nola Park Laboratories, Cleveland, O., points the way out for the half-seeing indoor world with its tired eyes and nerves. This new science makes its possible the use of the illuminating engineer to write lighting prescriptions based on exact scientific data.

"We found that the visibility of an object depends upon several factors," the director says, "These factors are: the distance of the object; the time available for seeing; the ability of the human seeing machine which depends upon many factors; and various other physical and lighting factors, such as glare and brightness."

Further experiments confirmed that common sense had already told investigators—that light glare increased nervous muscular tension and eye strain, and decreased efficiency. The time has come, say scientists, for the home to catch up with the twentieth century, in lighting matters. Home

Chinese Charity

Chinese charity dispenses more than necessities. Sometimes the destitute, starved for opium, can secure it at a Buddhist temple. There is one in Lichow in which a life-sized idol always has a handful for those who are too poor to buy their own. The supply is maintained by the wealthy citizens of the city—Collier's Weekly.

Counterfeit Money

Almost all counterfeit currency is the result of some photographic process. It is hurried, it is the wrong color. Some one of scores of variations is ignored. Even the most competent professional counterfeiter makes some mistake that exposes him and his product. The great majority of them do their work so poorly that government experts are amazed that they are able to get rid of it so easily. Once in a great while an excellent imitation will turn up. However, there never has been one that was absolutely perfect. The better the counterfeit the harder the effort to run down its perpetrator.

When Publicity Is Advertising

Although the large majority of newspaper patrons understand perfectly the difference between ADVERTISING and NEWS, a few do not, and occasionally call at The Review office with purely advertising material with request that it be published as news. The basis of their mistake is usually a simple misunderstanding of the difference between advertising and news.

Mistaken ideas on advertising frequently concern publicity for public performances, public meetings and benefit suppers, and open cards of thanks and letters of condolence.

A Rule of Thumb followed by editors and advertising managers for many years is briefly:

WHERE ADMISSION IS CHARGED OR COLLECTIONS TAKEN UP FOR A PUBLIC ENTERTAINMENT, PARTY, DINNER, ETC., THE PUBLICITY IS ADVERTISING AND SHOULD BE PAID FOR. WHERE NO ADMISSION IS CHARGED AND NO COLLECTION TAKEN, BRIEF PUBLICITY CAN BE TREATED AS NEWS.
