Most archaic community

For several centuries the natives of the Azores were benighted by reason of the remote location of the islands in Mid-Atlantic. In more recent times this location has been a means of bringing the islands in touch with the other countries of the world. Corvo, the most remote of the group, has a single village of 900 souls dwelling at the base of an extinct volcano, which is perhaps the most archaic community in the western world. Ruled by a council of elders and with a priest as the only physician, Corvo knows no contagion, crime, poverty or vice. Nor is there a lock on any door.

Queen New Zealand Bird

The kiwi—its real name is apteryx, which means "wingless"—is one of the queerest birds. It has wings, but cannot fly; quills instead of feathers; it can roll itself up in a ball like a hedgehog, and has no tail.

Kiwis inhabit New Zealand. They are strange, shy birds, with long, strong beaks and thick legs, and their tiny wings, invisible under their quills, are quite useless. They live in the hills, and in the daytime hide in burrows in the ground, and they dislike the sun as much as owls do.

Kiwis live mostly on worms, which they dig up with their long beaks.

When Mr. and Mrs. Apteryx set up housekeeping, it is the hen bird who builds the nest in the ground. This she does at the end of a tunnel in the soft earth. Here she lays one or two large eggs. The eggs are so large they are equal to one-quarter the weight of the bird.

Having built the home and laid the eggs, the hen retires to a life of leisure and pleasure, while her husband takes charge of affairs. He hatches out the babies and looks after them until they are able to take care of themselves.

Continent of Atlantis

Was Surrounded by Sea

The lost continent of Atlantis was entirely surrounded by sea. It existed, supposedly, between the Straits of Gibraltar and the Straits of Gades, and the Straits of Gades, it was a great empire of tall, fair-haired, blue-eyed men and women. Alleged historical accounts agree that it was inhabited by supermen who lived peacefully and happily over a long period of years. The arts of civilization of the present race were acquired, according to historians, from this lost race before it vanished beneath the sea. A description of the lost continent has been furnished by Plato.

"The whole country," he relates, "was very lofty and precipitous on the side of the sea, but the country immediately about and surrounding city was a level plain, itself surrounded by mountains; it was smooth and even, but an oblong shape, extending in one direction 3,000 stadia, and going up the country from the sea through the center of the island 2,000 stadia; the whole region of the island lies toward the south and is sheltered from the north. The surrounding mountains were celebrated for their number and size and beauty, in which they exceeded all that are to be seen anywhere."

Public Service Co. Has 'Sight Meter' to Protect Eyes

Artificial lighting which will insure maximum human efficiency, not only in terms of safety but also in terms of health and welfare, now is possible.

Dr. Matthew Luckiesh, director of the Nela Park laboratories, Cleveland, O., points the way out for the half-seeing indoor world with its tired eyes and nerves. This new science makes it possible for the illuminating engineer to write lighting prescriptions based on exact scientific data.

"We found that the visibility of an object depends upon several factors," the director says. "These factors are: the intensity of the light source; the distance from the eye; the contrast of the object; the time available for seeing; the ability of the human seeing machine which depends upon many factors; and various other physical and lighting factors, such as glare and brightness."

Further experiments confirmed what common sense had already told investigators—that light glare increased nervous muscular tension and eye strain, and decreased efficiency. The time has come, say scientists, for the home to catch up with the twentieth century, in lighting matters. Home

Lighting often is little better than candle light. Stores of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois are giving away a little device called the "lighting tape measure," which enables a person to tell quickly whether or not each lamp in his home is providing safe light. The stores also have on display the new "sight meter," which indicates the intensity of light easiest on the eye.

Flavor Not in Taste Alone

Taste alone does not give the full flavor of what we eat. The flavor is divided into 25 per cent "feel," 50 per cent odor and 25 per cent taste.

When Publicity Is Advertising

Although the large majority of newspaper patrons understand perfectly the difference between ADVERTISING and NEWS, a few do not, and occasionally call at The Review office with purely advertising material with request that it be published as news. The basis of their mistake is usually a simple misunderstanding of the difference between advertising and news.

Mistaken ideas on advertising frequently concern publicity for public performances, public meetings and benefit suppers, and open cards of thanks and letters of condolence.

A Rule of Thumb followed by editors and advertising managers for many years is briefly:

WHERE ADMISSION IS CHARGED OR COLLECTIONS TAKEN UP FOR A PUBLIC ENTERTAINMENT, PARTY, DINNER, ETC., THE PUBLICITY IS ADVERTISING AND SHOULD BE PAID FOR. WHERE NO ADMISSION IS CHARGED AND NO COLLECTION TAKEN, BRIEF PUBLICITY CAN BE TREATED AS NEWS.

Counterfeit Money
Almost all counterfeit currency is the result of some photographic process. It is blurred. It is the wrong color. Some one of scores of variations is ignored. Even the most competent professional counterfeiter makes some mistake that exposes him and his product. The great majority of them do their work so poorly that government experts are amazed that they are able to get rid of it so easily. Once in a great while an excellent imitation will turn up. However, there never has been one that was absolutely perfect. The better the counterfeit the harder the effort to run down its perpetrator.
