Miss Louise Kuckuck
Bride of Russell Nicolai

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Kuckuck, 317 W. Main street, was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday evening when their daughter, Miss Louise, became the bride of Russell Nicolai of Barrington. Rev. H. L. Eagle officiated using the double ring service. Miss Blanche Nicolai, a sister of the groom was the bride's attendant and Clarence James served as best man. During the service, Miss Vera Cady and Miss Ardith Wente sang "My Dear" and Miss Madeline Kuckuck, violinist and a sister of the bride played "I Love You Truly."

The bride was lovely in a blue transparent velvet gown and silver slippers. She carried an arm bouquet of white chrysanthemums. Miss Nicolai wore transparent maroon velvet and carried yellow roses.

The home was beautifully decorated with baskets of bright fall garlands that formed an artistic background for the bridal party who entered the living room at the strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohegenrin" played by Miss Leone Kotek. Miss Kotek came home from Knox College to be present at the wedding. She was dressed in blue transparent velvet while Miss Cady, Miss Wente and Miss Kuckuck were all in brown silk.

A bridal luncheon was served to family guests immediately after the service which took place at one o'clock. The bridal party then left by motor for a few days at Dubuque, Ia. On their return they will live in Lake Zurich. Mrs. William Fitch of Joliet and Mrs. Garret Kammler of Huntley were among the guests.

Mrs. R. Work to Review
"Last for Life"

The life of Vincent Van Gogh has been written many times but never better than in the new novel "Last for Life" by Irving Stone, which Mrs. Robert Work will review at the home of Mrs. Euden Gieseke Friday afternoon. Mrs. Harold Grebe will assist the hostess.

Van Gogh's life is interesting because of his many different episodes, it was reported. He was an art dealer, a teacher, and an evangelist. In the most desperate mining district of Belgium, he began to paint and worked for years before achieving any success. He was very poor and lonely, spent part of his life in Belgium, Holland and France, and was loved by six women, each of a different type but none giving the love and companionship he desired. His greatest passion was for painting.

As bright as any in her class

But her marks were always low!

It took a wise mother to discover that poor lighting conditions were responsible for her lack of interest in home work.

THERE wasn't a pupil in the whole grade any brighter than Betty. But she hated to do homework. And her marks were always low. Betty's father said, "She's just lazy." But her mother was wiser. She visited her nearest Public Service Store and got from them a marvelous little device called "The Lighting Tape Measure." When she measured Betty's study lamp with this she found it only gave her from $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{1}{3}$ as much light as she needed. A simple change of bulbs made all the difference in the world. And now Betty studies without a bit of coaxing.

What correct lighting is Experts estimate that in two out of three homes, some member of the family suffers from the wrong kind of lighting. To protect eyes you should have from 20 to 30 foot-candles of light falling on the printed page. It should be properly diffused with no glare, no deep shadows, no contrasts to cause eyes to change frequently. Under such lighting eyes are relaxed. Your nerves relax, too.

Most women would be only too glad to protect the eyesight of their children. But they have no way of measuring the kind of light their lamps give. And so, night after night, eyes struggle on with danger of permanent injury.

In the last few years some wonderful discoveries have been made about proper lighting. Lighting engineers have found that just by changing the position of shades, by raising or lowering the height of bulbs, and by designing a special kind of "light reflecting shade," these handicaps to eyesight are completely overcome. Your Public Service Store has a variety of these properly designed lamps for sale. Come down and see them and at the same time learn, from our better lighting display, simple and easy ways in which you can improve the lighting in your home. And get, Free, a marvelous little device called "The Lighting Tape Measure" which enables you to tell quickly whether or not each lamp in your home is providing safe light.

UNNECESSARY WOUND

A rusty nail prodded into flesh causes at least temporary infection. A muckraking article such as that which appeared in Caslow's Weekly of October 13 attacking a man and institution and then circulated in the victim's home town leaves a certain amount of community infection.

Whereas local citizens have attempted to cauterize the wound by talking it down, a certain amount of subsequent discussion is inevitable. For one thing the Lions club had decided to hear Caslow's plan for issue of commercial scrip and arrangements had been made to hold a meeting in the village hall where the plan would be presented and if possible sold to the merchants. These steps had been taken before the malicious propaganda article was circulated. Steps to withdraw use of the village hall and to cancel the meeting naturally resulted in holding open the discussion.

Next to the personal attack on the president of Jewel Tea Co., the most malicious part of the article was that which attempted to line up local merchants against Jewel Tea Co. We have been unable to find even a little justification for this. One merchant who was directly quoted or misquoted in the article, reported the next day after its distribution that he had nothing whatever to do with it.

Muckraking is bad enough when it is based on facts. It is worse when tangled up with malicious fancy.

SOME FAMOUS DUELS

In the early days of the United States dueling was quite common, numerous public men having met their adversaries on the "field of honor," often with fatal results. The most notable of American duels was that in which Vice President Aaron Burr killed Alexander Hamilton, first secretary of the treasury, in 1804.

During the Revolutionary war non-fatal duels were fought between General Charles Lee and Colonel John Laurens, and between General Cadwalader and Conway. General Lachlan McIntosh mortally wounded Button Gwinnett, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, in a duel fought in 1777.

Andrew Jackson fought several duels before he became president, in one of which, in 1806, he killed Charles Dickinson and was himself severely wounded.

While editor of a St. Louis newspaper, Thomas H. Benton was involved in a number of duels, and killed Charles Lucas in 1817. Benton afterwards served 30 years in the United States senate.

Commodore James Barron killed the distinguished Naval officer, Commodore Stephen Decatur, in 1820.

Henry Clay, then secretary of state, fought a harmless duel with Senator John Randolph of Virginia in 1826. Congressman W. J. Graves of Kentucky and Jonathan Ciley of Maine fought in 1838, the latter being killed.

One of the last fatal duels between high officials was fought in 1859, in which Senator David C. Broderick of California was killed by Judge Terry of the same state.

In 1859 congress outlawed dueling in the District of Columbia, and it is now a criminal offense in all states of the union.

ACTUAL EXPERIENCE COUNTS

Sitting in the office of a little country weekly newspaper, far removed from all the big time stuff at Washington, we observe different committees and commissions set up for the curing of the ailments of the nation. And as we study these committees and commissions we sometimes wonder if the whole United States can be centered in Washington, a dozen of the larger cities and a few colleges, more or less, and if all the rest of us are just invisible atoms floating about in the swirl of dust that is being raised in the proposed house settling.

Now take the banking situation which is so closely related to economic progress a whole. Banking in New York and banking in LeRoy are as different as a modern automobile and a one-horse shay. Both provide commercial transportation but in ways vastly different. Rules, regulations and practices that may be highly helpful to a metropolitan bank serve quite the opposite purpose in a country bank. These rules and regulations are formulated in Washington and are presumed to be generally helpful, but has anyone ever heard of a country banker being named on the committee that sets up the formula for banking under the recovery program? Or of any endeavor to get the true picture of the problems of the rural banks?

The same applies to farming, small industry, rural town merchandising and a hundred and one other component parts that go to make up the very life blood of this country, and all of them are quite removed from the metropolitan centers and the chairs of the college professors.

Perhaps some day, instead of functioning in terms of graphs and reports from field agents, those in power in Washington, both republicans and democrats, will utilize the knowledge of those who know from actual experience the formulation of plans and policies to fit emergencies, acute or otherwise.—Gazette-News, LeRoy, N. Y.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN WASHINGTON

(Courtesy The United States News)

The trend is still toward revision of the new deal to make it work. The president is a bit alarmed at the growth of rural sentiment and does not want to be caught between fires of the right and left. His worry over what kind of republicans and what kind of democrats will be elected in November is increasing. Mr. Roosevelt is making a direct hit on conservative supporters of his administration. He wants them to go along with him and help combat radical and irresponsible tendencies. The disposition of most business men is to go along though they cannot easily conceal their resentment. It was the administration itself that encouraged the "wild men" is and out of congress who are politically ambitious.

Is sentiment in favor of the new deal throughout the nation on the wane? A recheck by the Literary Digest in its nation-wide survey of public opinion to determine the popularity of the Rooseveltian efforts, revealed, last week, that 17 states now oppose the president's acts and policies with enough votes registered to make a majority. Voters of these "straw" ballots in 43 states the recheck reveals, do not show a marked increase of dissatisfaction with the president's policies since last spring when the first poll of this kind was started by the Literary Digest.

There will be no revival of the civil works administration this winter. Rumors have been prevalent in many sections that the federal emergency relief administration has plans to revive work projects for the mainly unemployed. The chief of the heads of the CWA projects, which at their peak gave employment to 4,000,000 persons. Federal emergency relief administrator Hopkins definitely dispelled these reports in a statement October 19.

He said that the "old fashioned organization" it has been indicated that grade crossing elimination work may form a major part of the work program this winter, as Mr. Hopkins has held several consultations with railroad executives. Approximately 1,500,000 persons are at work on FERA relief projects, according to the latest estimates made by Mr. Hopkins.

Out in the open now is the country's most racing race. It lies between recovery and the printing presses. Pulling for the printing presses is a group of candidates for congress, who have three big plans in mind if they come out on top.

Thirty-one senators and 422 members of the house (all the house and one-third of the senate, except the senator and three house members elected in Maine on September 10) have come up with a plan. November 6. Some 100,000 to 120,000 to 130,000 to 140,000 to 150,000 to 160,000 to 170,000 to 180,000 to 190,000 to 200,000 to 210,000 to 220,000 to 230,000 to 240,000 to 250,000 to 260,000 to 270,000 to 280,000
