

Merchants Report Business Volume Is Showing Gain

Christmas Sales Running Ahead of Last Year's Volume

The height of Christmas shopping activity will be reached this week and continue through next week according to a consensus of opinion expressed by merchants who report a steadily increasing volume of business.

As to predictions, the 1934 Christmas business will surpass that of 1932 or 1933. The sale of expensive items of merchandise has been better, but a larger number of persons are buying inexpensive gift merchandise, shopkeepers report. Although the present season has no earmarks of boom, it is encouraging due to the fact that it is definitely better than last year's season.

Merchants are finding a pleasing amount of gifts at reasonable prices and are taking advantage of the opportunities.

To facilitate buying, they have had advertisements in the Review. A directory of shops advertising this week follows:

Park Avenue Cost Totals $3582.43, Paid by Gas Tax

The Park Avenue paving project has been completed at a cost of $3582.43, according to a report made at the village board meeting Tuesday night by Carter Jenkins, resident engineer in charge of the work. Of this amount, $170 will be paid by the village, the gas tax fund falls a little short of covering all the costs.

Mr. Jenkins commended the village board, describing it as a fine piece of work. Many changes in plans and the cold weather account for the increase of cost over what was anticipated, he said.

The board voted to pay out the amount of the gas tax fund payment of the bills of the project.

Following is a list of the separate items making up the total:

Engineering	$1,072.35
Excavating	221.03
Gravel and cement	1,590.34
Gravel, fuel, and misc.	698.71
Total	$3,582.43

The street will be opened a second time, the last one to be on Wednesday, Dec. 19.

Lions Committee Abandons Plan of Christmas Trees

Large, Growing Spruce May Be Planted in Railroad Park

The project of decorating the downtown section of Barrington with small lighted Christmas trees erected in the flag pole sockets along both sides of the streets has been abandoned, Roy Wilmering, general chairman of the Lions club committee in charge of the project, announced Thursday evening.

The decision was reached by the committee following a complete survey of the entire business section.

More than 40 business places contributed $2.50 each to a fund to pay for the following items: small trees, pipe extensions to elevate the trees two feet above the sidewalks, a large growing spruce to be planted in Railroad Park, and labor expense involved in erecting the small trees and planting the large one. The cooperation of at least 75 business firms was needed to make the plan an unqualified success, it was decided.

The committee has not given up the plan of buying a large tree to be planted in the park. Prior to Thursday night, a suitable spruce which would be purchased with the available funds had not been located. If the committee members can find a good 20 or 25 foot tree for sale at a figure they believe is reasonable, they will buy it and arrange for setting it up near the west end of the park. The original plan called for planting the tree in the triangle near the flag pole, but soil condition plus presence of the pole, convinced the committee that this place is unsuitable.

As soon as the matter of a large tree is settled, the committee members will retrace their steps through the business district refunding the collections in part or whole.

Legion, Auxiliary to Have New Hall in Groff Building

Legionnaires will move into new rooms in the Groff building the latter part of December so that their first meeting in January, a joint session with the Auxiliary, may be held in the larger place, it was decided Thursday evening.

The new Legion hall is to be in the Groff building on Park avenue, above the King store. For the past year, it had been on Station street.

M. H. Schreiber and Arthur Martens attended a state school commanders and adjutants at Bloomington Saturday and Sunday. In addition to schools of instruction, there were inspiring talks by national officers and a fine banquet, Commander Schreiber said.

Projects of various district groups were among the items discussed. The Barrington post will have charge of trimming the village Christmas tree and distributing candy to local children Christmas eve again this year.

Members of the Legion Auxiliary are busy sewing doll clothes for dolls which boy scouts are mending for poor children of the community. Several hundred toys were collected in a canvass of the village last week and all will be put in order, painted, repaired and cleaned by the scouts. Any excess of toys will be shipped to orphanages.

As formerly, members of the Auxiliary will meet at Legion hall for evening programs each month and all joint sessions with the Legion will be held there. Afternoon meetings of the Auxiliary are frequently held at private homes.

Village Refuses to Pay Sales Tax as Separate Item

Board Decides Taxes Cannot Be Paid From Tax Receipts

The village should not pay sales tax charges from tax funds and will not hereafter do so, the board of trustees decided at the regular meeting Monday night. This action came up after a bill for $365 plus 2 per cent on account of occupational sales tax had been presented by the American Well Works.

Trustee Schroeder expressed his opinion that to pay taxes from tax receipts is illegal. He offered a motion that the village refuse to pay the occupational sales tax charges on all purchases it makes. The motion passed.

It was a matter of coincidence for the board to take this stand on the day the attorney general ruled that to pay the sales tax charge separately is legal. Heretofore the Hornor administration has done everything in its power to persuade retailers of tangible personal property to add the amount of the tax inside their charges rather than on top.

Throughout Illinois, outside of Chicago, merchants have generally refused to do this on the grounds that it would be literally deceiving the buying public. The majority of large retail stores in Chicago have abided by the wishes of the governor and have added the tax inside the sale price on merchandise rather than on top as a separate item.

As a result of the attorney general's ruling, Chicago stores adopted the "separate item" plan Wednesday. Shoppers in Chicago are not really affected by the charge as a separate item because they have been paying it as a separate item ever since the occupational sales tax went into effect.

Along the same line, the village of Barrington will not save any money by its decision to refuse to pay the tax except on unpaid bills which have already been tendered the village clerk. Supply houses and other retail firms selling to the village will hereafter raise their prices to cover the 2 per cent item and not show the tax separately.

13-Course Dinner to Be Served to Colored CCC Workers Xmas Day

A thirteen-course Christmas dinner will be served to 189 colored men stationed at the CCC camp in Deer Grove forest preserve, according to the officers in charge. There were 250 men when the camp started last fall but the number has dwindled and unless local residents complain to their congressmen, the commandant of the camp, Col. J. H. Young, will be brought to the camp the first of the year.

It is probable that a large number of the men now at camp will ask permission to return to their homes, in which case the number will be cut 50 per cent according to present plans.

Officers at the camp are white men but the rest are colored.

"Avoid Fire Hazard; Check Tree Lights," Fire Chief Warns

"Check your Christmas tree wiring so that there are no shorts or exposed wires that may cause fires," I. E. Landwer, local fire chief warned Barrington residents in a timely statement to a Review reporter Thursday.

"Since candles have gone out of fashion, there is little danger of fire from Christmas tree lights if adults are careful to check the entire system annually," he said. "In purchasing new equipment it is wise to see that bulbs, wires, fuses, plugs and sockets bear the label of fire underwriters laboratories and are absolutely safe."

Rooms should not be decorated with inflammable materials when it is possible to get inconspicuous ones which are equally as effective, he added.

In discussing toys that might possibly start fires in local homes, he suggested that parents instruct their children in the use of all electrical playthings, then watch the youngsters to be sure they are handling the toys properly.

Ideal Weather Brings Out Devotees of Winter Sports for First Time

Ideal weather for skating, coasting and skiing brought out devotees of winter sports in large numbers this week. For the first time this season, local residents had an opportunity to enjoy their favorite outdoor recreations against a winter background.

They coasted down snow-covered village streets, adult numbers almost equalling that of children. Summit street was closed to traffic Saturday upon order of the village board and will be available for skate coasting as long as the weather permits such sport.

Skaters made use of the la-zooon at North Side park, the park board having announced that it would be open to skaters all season. The creek had been dammed last spring, forming a small pond that is now in good condition for skating.

Amateur skiers have been using small hills around the village for their first efforts this week but members of the Cary Ski club made use of the first snow for some real take-offs from Cary slide Sunday.

new (xibol) that actually dissolves the natural impurities much as soapy water dissolves dirt.

Go to the nearest dealer who displays the Mobiloil sign, or the sign with the Flying Red Horse and refill now with New Mobiloil Arctic.

GOOD OIL is made—not found. Engineers worked for months to find this better way to make motor oil. Big tanks like those at the left contain materials that remove natural impurities which are found in all crude oil.

WHAT MOBILIL ARCTIC DOES FOR YOU

- 1 STARTS EASIER... starts on below zero temperatures.
- 2 LASTS LONGER... lasts as much as 25% longer than other oils.
- 3 RUNS CLEANER... there's no gum, no sludge in this oil.
- 4 FLOWS QUICKLY at low temperatures—preventing the danger of "dry" starts.
- 5 PROTECTS METAL... holds body at high engine temperatures.

attention from the oven discussion for women patrons of a popular Saturday night feature.

"Marie Callande" is a new star, one who will find a place for in memory after seeing her in the role of "Marie Callande," the attraction Sunday and Monday. Spencer Tracy is co-star in this story of intrigue and mystery centering about the case of "Marie Callande." It is listed as one of the best photoplays of the year. With added items of interest such as "Lafayette" and "Hardy and the Blue Bird," "The Conquest," and communism, the Sunday-Monday promises to be unusually interesting.

Robertson's "Lady for a Day" is one of the outstanding films season just past, will make a big bargain offering for next Tuesday. Glenda Farrell, Hobbes, Walter Connolly and John William have important parts. "Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" has been, for more than generations, a hardy perennial treasure of delightful books.
The film version, which is scheduled to play the Catlow
theatre Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, makes even more vivid appeal than lies in this home-side story of the family that lived
the wrong side of the tracks.
The leading lady will play Mrs.
Zaun Pitts, Miss Hazy; and Miss Fields, the mail order soul of the family. Evelyn Jensen, Kent Taylor and Eve clever youngsters complete the roster of leading actors.

The film brings all of the famous episodes from the well-known book to the screen, including the adventures with the animals, the return of Cubby, the day the family was saved, and the death of Jimmie, the curious return of Mr.
Wiggs from his world travels. An "Hollywood" comedy will be an added feature. The program is a benefit for the Altruistic Baptist church.

Junior High Pupils Give

Program for Parents

Members of the junior high school presented their parents at a special school auditorium evening, the high-light of which was a well-done, one-act play, "The Knave of Hearts."

The story and costumes were prepared by the pupils with help from Miss Annette Sheel who directed the play.
The roles were taken by Norman, Harold Johnson, Robert
Walter Pederson, Robert
Bill Saul, Clyde Church,
Meyer, Richard Watson,
Hobbes, and Norris.
Ladies of the court were played by Buckman, Evelyn Joppen, Deborah Durbin,
Following had roles as six
knave: Ellen Jensen, Virginia
Bodilla Plasse, Ida
Bodilla, Regina Herren and Bek. All roles were performed effectively.
The junior orchestra pleased audience with three musical pieces and the junior high chorus sang two songs.

Total Collected

Response to the

amounted to $194, less than the usual collection from this village, according to Mrs. Reuben Plasse, chairman of the drive.

Volunteers worked as hard
as ever in this year as in previous years
and response was much slower.
Plasse said.

Plasse started Armistice

interrupted by several weeks in hospital.

by HAROLD TITUS

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Ben Elliott, from Yonder, signals his entry into the lumbering town of Tincup by defeating Bull Duval, "king of the river," and towns bully, in a leg-biling contest. Elliott has brought along an old time, then Elliott had been eager to reach Tincup, but citizen, resents Stuart's presence. Elliott, resenting the actress, tells him down. Elliott is arrested.

3RD. INSTALLMENT

He overtook the two he followed
just in time to hear Stuart say:
"—ain't long to . . . live, Nick
I'd like . . . stay here. . . .
Ain't pleasant to . . . sick
and not . . . among friends."
"Never mind," the other said as one might to a protesting child.
"I've told you any number of times
to stay away."

On this reply Elliott moved abreast of the man.
"Hello, old timer," he said, addressing Stuart. "Going some place?"
He did not look at the man said to be Nicholas Brandon. His manner on the question was almost casual.

"Oh . . . hello," Dan pointed.
"I . . . Mister Brandon, here
I . . . won't let me . . . stay."
Elliott looked at Brandon.
A man of undetermined age; not old, neither young. Powerfully built, with a peculiarly white face and eyes as black as night. These eyes bored into Elliott's now, now, intelligently, with the look of a man who is accustomed to gauging
others without delay or hesitation.

"Oh, this man doesn't want you to stay," Ben said softly. And then with a smile, to Brandon: "I sort of took the old man's stay here quite badly. I'll look after him."
"There's no place for him here," Brandon said positively. "Come,
Stuart, it's almost train time."

He twitched at the old man's arm
but Ben broke in, brow wrinkled as if he wanted to handle a perplexing matter fairly.
"Well, now, say! No place? Suppose a place was made for him a few days? I'd sort of planned on that. There's a hotel here, and I'd be willing to take him in."

"I don't know you," Brandon interrupted and irritably crept into his voice. "I've never even seen
you. I've known this man for years.
He's an old employee of mine. This is my affair. I never have others, especially strangers, meddling."

A low whisper came from Stuart and Ben rubbed his chin with one knuckle.
"Yeah. I am butting in, I guess.
But you see, the old timer told me a little about himself. He's been here a long time. I take it.
He's not what you'd call in robust health. I figure that if it was his shape I'd like to be with a few old friends myself and if—"

In the distance a train whistled
and on the sound Brandon's eyes snapped.
"I've no time to argue my affairs,"
he said sharply. "Come, Stuart."

"That, Nick! See . . . here, Nick . . . I'll never get back again. It's loomsome, lein' sick . . . alone, where you can't hurt my wrist!"

He winced from the grasp and on that the last shadow of a smile went out of Ben Elliott's face. He put himself squarely before Brandon.
"Let him go," he said quietly, but his look drove hard into those black eyes.

The man hesitated and flushed.
"If you aren't looking for trouble,"
he said, voice edged with wrath,
"you'll keep out of this!"
"Fair enough. But unless you've got a better reason than I know about, let the old timer alone! Let go of his wrist," he added sharply,
as Stuart stepped again.

"I'll thank you to keep out of—"
"Let go—his wrist, you d—d—!"
He had grasped Brandon's forearm with both hands, letting his jerk slip to the sidewalk. The clutch on Don Stuart's arm loosened.
With a snarl Brandon drew back and swung for Ben's jaw. Elliott bucked, snarled forward and bending his sturdy body caught Bran-

head into the man's chest, raised a knee to his groin, lifted him from his feet, swung, showed and flung him free.

With a sharp oath Brandon went down in the half-thawed mire of the street, sprawling ignominiously on his back.

Well, now! That was something else again. Men had been coming, yawning cautiously near during the brief argument between Elliott and Nicholas Brandon. But when Bran-

Clayton Smith Head of Forest Preserve Board

A forest preserve district almost a decade in advance of its original improvement program is what Emmett Whealan, president of the board of forest preserve commissioners, elected to member of the board of tax appeals,
will turn over to Clayton F. Smith, who will become president of the board of forest preserve commissioners next Monday.

This was achieved by the observance of strict economy, plus assistance given by the CWA, Emergency Relief and CCC, and the intelligent distribution of these organizations throughout the $3,000 acres comprising the forest preserve by Charles G. Sauters, general superintendent of the forest preserve district, to translate draftsmen's blue prints into new bridges, trail shelter houses, picnic shelter houses, warming shelters and construction of various forms, it was reported.

Improvement is seen on all sides
as one drives through the district.
The 175 miles of bridge and hiking trails are greatly improved.
Sixty-six trail shelter houses each containing fire places, a half dozen picnic shelter houses, warming shelters at the popular winter
sports areas—Palos Hills and Dan Ryan Woods, planting of hundreds of thousands of trees and shrubs, cleaning of 75 miles of streams traversing the forest preserve, and a major improvement project at Skokie valley where ten companies of CCC are transforming an erstwhile marsh into a series of lagoons and beautiful landscape.

Pamphlets containing maps of the 175 miles of hiking and bridge trails with detailed data on interesting scenes and indicating the starting and finishing points of the trails may be had free by sending name and address to Emmett Whealan, forest preserve headquarters, River Forest, Ill.

Chinese Jews

The only known Chinese Jews
have lived in Kaining, China, since 1103 A.D. For several hundred years they kept their colony apart from numerous generations of intermar-

almost entirely lost their original racial characteristics. — Collier's

Lecture on Christmas Trees Fascinates Local School Children Wednesday

Mrs. Charles Beaman of Chicago gave a series of delightful lectures concerning nature study at Barrington public school Wednesday morning and afternoon under the auspices of the Barrington Woman's club. She addressed the children of the lower grades Wednesday morning and higher grades and high school pupils that afternoon.

In describing pine and fir trees, Mrs. Beaman told her audience the balsam fir makes the ideal Christmas tree since it retains its needles longest. It can be recognized by the base of the tree, gray in color and having small blisters on the trunk which give off a sap when broken, she said. The needles are at right angles on the branches.

Her information concerning growth of pines and firs was supplemented by interesting slides showing the planting of seeds by forest rangers and care of seedlings until large enough to be transplanted to the forest. The speaker told how spruce trees should never be trimmed around the roots and that tall cedars should be taped so that they will not spread when heavy snow lay on their branches. Taping makes them grow tall and slender. Colorado blue spruce are expensive because it is difficult to find perfectly shaped ones, she added.

The last slides pertained to planting of formal gardens.

Growth of Brazil

Brazil has an estimated population of nearly 50,000,000 and is growing at the rate of a million a year. It has more than half of all the people in South America. It has nearly one-half of the whole Latin population in the Western Hemisphere, from the Straits of Magellan to the Rio Grande. In area it is a couple of hundred thousand square miles larger than the United States without Alaska and the Philippines.

NEW DEAL EDITS THE NEWS

"Publishers are now cognizant of the efforts to control our news by indirection, instead of by the direction of censorship," the American Newspaper Association was told by its Washington attorney at a recent meeting. The lawyer-mind is startled by the fact that nearly half a hundred public bureau of the government are sending out newspaper copy in a way that has never been known before.

From an editorial point of view there is not much to worry about the lawyer's statement that "there cannot be a democracy without a free press," because the government is not trying to censor the press even though it is sending out censored news by the carload.

But the editor who falls back upon government propaganda and uses it in preference to the copy supplied by independent news bureaus and correspondents is giving his readers a bad break and doing a great injustice to what our lawyer friend proclaims to be the real democracy.

HELPING BOYS

"No man stands so straight as when he stoops to help a boy."

With so many million of men out of work it is such an easy matter to become careless and pay no attention to boys. Men are doubly busy with the affairs of business and trying to figure out how they can live up to their codes. Worrying details occupy one's mind. Yet, all about us, are boys who need help—the help that comes from encouraging words, a helping hand, a little boost—and yet they mean so much to a boy.

It does not take long for a boy to grow and develop into a man. It may be that what we say today will have a big influence on what kind of a man he will be. Are we doing the thing that will help the boy? Just a cordial word of greeting in the morning as the boy is on his way to school will frequently give the lad just the needed encouragement for that particular day. Do we do that? Can we truthfully say that we have been the means and channel by which a boy gets inspiration to do better things?

There is so much we can do in boy's work without ever having to take any time to do it. Most men are willing to do this if they only realize how easily it can be done.

"No man stands so straight as when he stoops to help a boy."—Times-Herald, Alliance, Neb.

Just as long as there are men who deep in their hearts have the desire to leave the world a little better place than they found it, just that long will service clubs flourish.

Delightful Occupations During Walks With Children

Walks and talks foster a desire for wholesome recreation that can be enjoyed whether the purse is full or empty, that is of benefit physically, morally, and mentally, and that can be shared with others.

On your walks point out the trees that make a strong appeal to children; those that bear fruits, also the hickory and chestnut trees; the maples with their keys that fit so snugly on the nose; the oaks with their acorns that can be hollowed out and used as cups or pipes.

Collect milkweed pods and bit-terweed with its bright berries to beautify the children's room. Pick wild flowers, each in its dip-peon, spring beauty, violet, wild geranium, daisies, black-eyed Susans, and goldens, and you will soon be asked to tell them the best hooter over the flowers, and you will also watch the bees at work.

Keep your eyes open for cocoons in the fall; put them into a wide lantern chimney resting upon a saucer, the top covered with mus-quito netting, and await develop-ment. When the butterfly emer-ges the children will have had an experience more deeply impressed because more intimate, than any classroom illustration.

As the children grow older, you will try different caterpillars in this same chimney device, and will watch the spinning of the cocoons as the pupae into the chrysalis state. The children's sharp eyes (usually sooner than your own) will discover eggs already laid on leaves, and you will watch them emerge into wriggling little bodies.

One little girl was fortunate enough to see the eggs hatch about 10 minutes after she had gathered the leaf, and ever since she has kept her eyes open for another such "find." Frogs, toads, and tadpoles are sure to be noticed by the child, and will afford much interesting study if an aquarium can be provided for them at home.

Get acquainted with the birds. Begin in the late fall and winter when there are so few species that they can be easily learned and their notes readily distinguished—the woodpecker, the nuthatch, the chickadee, the junco, the Eng-lish sparrow, and the white-throated sparrow. When these have become familiar the early spring birds will soon be added to the list—the robin, the grack-les, the flicker, the meadow lark, the song sparrow, the bluebird. With these birds well known, the child will possess sufficient knowledge to discover others for himself, and he will find never-ending delight in greeting the birds as the har-bingers of the seasons.

Moonlight walks, despite the disadvantage of exceeding the usual retiring hour, have no equal in imbuing children with a sense of the mystery and the power and the glory of the universe, and this experience should not be denied our children. They should be per-mitted this walk with parents at-mitted once each season, when the moon is full and seems to bathe not only the earth, but the in-fernal most soul in soft, healing light.

Then, if you will add a few nar-tive walks in the summertime, you will be certain of having stored up in your children and in yourself memories and delights that will remain forever.

The MAN from YONDER

there, scramble to his feet. Their voices were raised in incredulity. In two decades and more so man even bird-eye Blaine had dared lift even his voice in Tincup, and now this stranger had dared do that in respect for Nicholas Brandon. And now this stranger had picked him up and thrown him away!

But Brandon was up, lurching for the sidewalk where Ben Elliott stood, legs spread, dust clenched but with good humor repossessed and grinning as he had grinned at Bull Duvall; grinning at a man who who loves combat for its own sake and not at all as one who fights in red rage.

His smile faded and his jaw settled as Brandon uplifted his face to that ruck. Murder was there, in the back eyes, in the loose hanging of the lower lip, in the purple flush of his cheeks. Murder, and no less. As quickly as that homicidal look had come, it passed. Something like four weary, those eyes, driving it away. Not fear of this encounter, Ben knew; not fear of a stronger, younger man. Some-thing else again; something acutely different. It was the sort of fear that comes from within; the kind of fear a man has for his own im-pulse.

Brandon halted abruptly. His fists relaxed into hands and with one of them he brushed rather sinis-terly at his own cheeks.

A dozen men were close, then, holding back, watching, waiting, listening. Others were coming. And as Brandon halted, looking up into Elliott's face and evidently fighting for self-control, one of these new arrivals pushed to the front and came up importantly.

"What's the matter, Mr. Bran- don?" he asked sharply, with the manner of one ready to render serv-ice.

Brandon did not reply at once. He settled his coat on his shoulders.

"Sheriff, arrest this young man immediately," he said then. "I'll swear to a complaint of assault and battery myself."

A sigh of relief, of disappoint-ment, of lax tension, of at ease, of these combined, went up from the growing group. The sheriff turned to Elliott and touched his arm sig-nificantly.

"You'd better come along, Ell- iott," he said. "You took in too much territory."

Ben looked about almost furi-ously. He was embarrassed and sur-prised. He had expected a rough-and-tumble fight in what he con-sidered a righteous cause and sure-ly he was the sort who would have been on familiar ground in such an encounter. But here he was, with a sheriff plucking at his sleeve!

He laughed a bit sheepishly. "All right, Sheriff. If it's arrest- ing you run to here in Tincup, Willy I'm it."

He turned for his pack-sack and as he did so observed old Don Stuart sitting wearily on the step of the vacant store building behind which the scene had been enacted. He was obviously a sick man and trouble clouded Elliott's eyes.

"Minute, Sheriff," he said and groaned to Don, thrusting one hand into a pants pocket.

"Here, old timer," he said gen- tly. The hand came out, and into Stuart's palm he pressed a thin packet of bills and some change. "Here, one of your old buddies . . . there, you'll—straightening out."

Brandon, Bird-Eye, who ap- proached with alacrity, "Get the old timer to a hotel. Better get a doc- tor, too. He's seeled enough to take carp of himself a few days after that . . . we'll see."

He turned then and fastened a se- vere gaze on Brandon.

"And you, cum, let him alone!" he warned. "Until a doctor says he can travel, you watch your step with him!"

Get Brandon ignored this. He was buttoning his coat, pushing his way through the group, which fell aside respectfully.

"All right, Sheriff," said Ben to that worthy. "Let's go!"

CHAPTER II

A BLE ARMYADE, justice of the peace in Tincup, looked over his spectacles into the face of the prisoner before him and a twinkle appeared in his keen blue eyes. He asked:

"Now, young man, you've charged with assault and battery on the per- son of Nicholas Brandon. Are you guilty?"

in an official capacity. When the door opened, Duvall, and Ben Elliott, followed. The sheriff, followed. It seemed by the local male popu- lation of the county, surged through the doorway, the district's squawking leaped into a shrill squeal and died away. The judge's feet dropped in the floor and he swung his chair to face the entrance.

The sheriff stated his errand, the complaint was drawn, Nicholas Bran- don, affixed his signature and then for the first time Able looked close- ly into the face of the defendant. It was a long and searching look and was met steadily by a pair of clear steel-gray eyes.

"Are you guilty or not?" Able re- peated and Ben Elliott who had stood at ease before him, slouch hat in his great brown hands, gave him a head a grave twist.

"Well, if pitching a man off the sidewalk into the mud is called as- sault and battery in Tincup, then I'm about a hundred per cent guilty," he said.

A stir in the room followed that and Able frowned, a convincingly judicial frown.

"Guilty, eh?" He cleared his throat at length. "Now how about this disruption of the peace, any- how?"

The sheriff spoke.

"You see, Able, 'twas this way. Mr. . . ."

"Now, just a minute, Art. This accused has pleaded guilty, as I un- derstand it. I don't see any need of anybody else saying anything. He's thrown himself on the mercy of the court, you might say, and it's regular and proper and according to the spirit of the statute that I ques- tion him before passing sentence."

The sheriff smiled and subse- quently.

Clearly, there was little friendship between him and the justice.

"Now, Mr. . . . Able glanced at the complaint again. "Mr. Ben Elliott, how come that you go about the country, teasing reputable citi- zens into the mud?"

"Why, he was trying to make a friend of mine do something he didn't want to do. That's all. I baited it, I guess; he got hard and set—sharp—I lost my head for a minute and put him in his place."

"In the mud, you mean?"

"Yeah, in the mud."

"You go on; go on. Go back to the beginning. I want to know all about this affair."

Elliott drew a long breath.

The Continental Divide

The continental divide has been so carefully surveyed by topograph- ers that there are places in south- ern New Mexico where the line is established although the slope in either direction is indiscernible to the naked eye.

The Word "Pamphlet"

The word pamphlet was original- ly Pamphlet, the name of a Greek lady who left behind her a vast quantity of literary material in the form of short notes and essays, and this proved to be of such value that it gave a name to a new style of publication.

Site of Garden of Eden

Archaeologists and biblical stu- dents, according to the New York Herald, the first in this country, de- clared Ohio to be the site of the Garden of Eden—in Adams county, to be exact, where lies the great suspect mound, upon which they based their belief.

Races Have Odds

It is quite possible that other races can detect the odor of the white race. Deniker, in his "The Races of Man," refers to the fact that certain travelers have asserted they could recognize a population by its odor. The author admits that some ethnic profiles have their specific odor, which gets fainter with scrupulous cleanliness, but never disappears.

Turning the Tables

In the days of Imperial Rome there was a crane named "table man." Pliny called it, for the collection of rare tables made of Mauritania wood and inlaid with ivory. Competition among the wealthy made the tables costly and, so the story goes, when husbands accused their ladies of extravagance the ladies retorted with: "What about your tables?" It is supposed to have originated the phrase "turning the tables on them."
