Growing Days Arc Busy Days

Spring and summer days are long on the farm. Spring plowing, intensive cultivation during the growing season, the fight against weeds and insects, care of the precious livestock—these important things fill the farmer's waking hours. There is scant time for trips to town or anything else that takes a member of the family away from home tasks. For outside contacts at this busy time the farmer depends on his telephone. It runs his errands, orders his supplies and makes trips away from the farm unnecessary. It does these tasks and is a comfort, a protection and a convenience to the whole family as well. Every farm home should have a telephone. The cost is small.
