WHAT A CAMPAIGN!

The big Barrington Review weekly payroll subscription campaign ended last Saturday afternoon. And what a campaign it was!

From the standpoint of the candidates who worked From the standpoint of the candades when the standpoint of the Barrington Review which underwrote an expensive and valuable group of awards, and from the standpoint of the public which generously supported the workers, the under-taking was an unqualified success.

It was successful for the candidates all of whom received liberal pay for their work. Every one (except the first prize winners) who turned in at least one subscription during the period was paid a 20 per cent commission. Four of the candidates won additional cash bonuses and two of them won valuable major awards.

The contest was a success for The Review primarily through the good will built up by such a clean, stimulating employment-giving undertaking. A much larger family of readers is also compensation for the newspaper. It was a success from the standpoint of the many citizens who accepted the opportunity to subscribe for their home town newspaper at a reduced rate and who may expect to receive an even better newspaper as the result of the expansion brought on by the work.

expansion brought on by the work.

Probably the greatest benefits from this campaign will go to the advertisers, both display and classified, who can reach a large number of additional customers once a week as the result of the subscription list extension. Heretofore an advertising medium beyond comparison in its own community. The Review should and does have additional resultgetting power for the advertisers now.

getting power for the advertisers now.

The Review is grateful to the candidates who entered and worked diligently until the close. We only wish that a major award might have been possible for each one of them, but of course that would have been out of the question. We are grateful that the high type of contestants helped us maintain a fair and clean campaign-one which was a credit to themselves and to The Review. Part of the credit for the strict honesty prevailing throughout is due to E. E. Troxell, manager from Liner Co., who insisted on engaging only men and women of the highest character as candidates.

EDITORIAL SHORTS

Editing a paper without ruffling anybody's feelings is fishing without a hook on your line—you get some recreation but no results.

What if the critic could not do as well himself? You can be a good judge of mules without being a mule.
