Musical Triumph Plays at Catlow Sunday, Monday

"Naughty Marietta" and "Our Little Girl" Feature Week's Bill

To night, "Private Worlds" with Claudette Colbert, will be screened for the last time at the Catlow theatre.

This will be followed by the Friday and Saturday night showing of Shirley Temple's, "Our Little Girl." In this picture, her newest, Shirley plays at being happy to rebuild a shattered home.

It is a story that could happen to any child anywhere. When those who loves are groping in the shadows of misunderstanding, she meets the crisis with a brave smile.

An "Our Gang" comedy featuring Spunky Ma-Farland, Pathe News, Cartoon and Sportspian will precede the showing of "Our Little Girl."

Drama, romance, thrills, and the gorgeous music of Victor Herbert's greatest opera are blended in "Naughty Marietta," spectacular romance of Creole days in New Orleans, which brings to the screen Sunday and Monday, Jeanette MacDonald, glamorous heroine of "This Merry Widow," and Nelson Eddy, eminent American operatic baritone.

"Naughty Marietta" tells a graphic story of the settlement of New Orleans by the French in the days of Louis XV and of the love of a disguised French princess, seeking escape from a marriage of state, and an English officer.

The dramatic side of the adventure, thrills and perils of the period is stressed as a thundering background for the glamorous music.

"Naughty Marietta" was produced in new "High Fidelity" recording, which can be reproduced to the best advantage only on "High Fidelity" theatre equipment such as has been installed in the local theatre.

Feature hours for Sunday are 2:15, 5:25, 7:35 and 9:45 p. m.; Monday night the feature will open at 7:15 and 9:45 p. m.

The attraction offered for next Tuesday, bargain line, is "The Casino Murder Case" with Paul Lukas and Allison Skipworth starred.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week will be given over to a special Independence program.

The fifth spot of the bill will be occupied by Jackie Cooper in "Dinky."

This is a story with a military school background in which Jack battles against odds in the classroom, on the football field and in his family relations, to win finally with flying colors.

Special, color cartoon, color scenic and "kid" comedy are added subjects of interest.

UNDERSTAND YOUR TIME

"There are no educated men. There never have been. There never will be."

Considering the millions of dollars expended on public education in the United States annually, this quotation might lead many persons to conclude that we might as well cut appropriations abruptly—with the objective of educated men called so unreachable.

But Glenn Frank, even now tussling with budget problems to keep the University of Wisconsin operating as he believes it should, did not mean to express futility when he gave expression to the words quoted above.

He meant, rather, to help people to see education with an adjusted point of view—to inspire them to new understandings of its place in life.

"The men we may most justifiably call educated are simply the men who have never stopped in their pursuit of the flying goals of information and insight," amplified the Badger state's university head.

And he went on to point out that "Education suffers from calendaritis."

"Diplomas and degrees carry the subtle suggestion that a man's education is finished at a certain age and that he can then stop learning and begin living," he explains.

"But, when all is said and done, learning is a life job. Education is endless. A true education registers men at the cradle and graduates them at the grave."

Here is an important point that Mr. Frank makes:

"In many ways the adult years are better than youth for learning. There are things we learn more effectively when years have enriched us with experience. Research has proved that the best time to learn anything is just before we need to use it. And, finally, there are no better clues to learning than the difficulties that vex our personal, professional and public lives.

"An effort to understand one's time makes learning a living adventure."

Use a Pattern

MARY STARCK KERR

"It seems to me that half of the parents of the present day are failures," said a woman in a group discussing social conditions.

"Most of them don't seem to realize the importance of home influences, and the children grow up with little idea of good manners, and scarcely any good morals."

"Don't you think it has always been that way?" asked another member of the group.

"It seems to me, the very fact that so many parents of today are failures, shows that their parents were not really successful."

"No," said the first speaker.

"I don't think it has always been as bad as it is now. It seems to me that the parents of the past generation tried to guide their children and to bring them up right."

"Then how do you explain the fact that so many of their children are failures as parents?" asked the friend.

"I have never thought of that," was the reply.

The other woman smiled. Then she said, "I have given this problem a good deal of consideration, and have come to the conclusion that many of the failures in bringing up children, are due to not using a pattern."

"What do you mean?" asked her friend.

"A pattern in child training is a new idea to me."

"You remember we used to have two kinds of rag carpets or rugs, hit and miss, and the pattern or striped kind. Now the way I see it, many parents bring up their children on the hit and miss plan, following no pattern, but just letting whatever comes along go into the child's experience. Their discipline is haphazard. Sometimes the child is severely punished for not responding promptly to a command, while at another time, when the parent is in a happier mood, the same fault is apparently unnoticed.

A whipping is given for some small misdemeanor and later, for a more serious offense which does not happen to annoy.

Not even a rebuke is given. When results can none expect from such a lack of method."

"Now that I think of it," said the other woman, "that is a correct picture of the discipline in many homes of the past as well as the present, and I suppose that is one reason for failure. But give me an example of what you mean by the pattern method."

"The mother who has a pattern," answered her friend, "is consistent. The Golden Rule is the pattern by which she seeks to have her children model their lives, and the children are helped to do this by the constant application of the Rule in all relations between parents and children. According to this Rule, the mother will not treat her child in any way which she would not like to be treated if she were in the child's place, taking into account all the effects of any action.

"The result is, that reason and confidence instead of inconsistency and uncertainty rule the household. The child who spills milk on the floor is not scolded, but is given a cloth to wipe it up. If he breaks a window or a dish, whether in his own home or in the home of someone else, the penalty is not a whipping, but some other way. He and the person whose property he has injured or destroyed must consult together. Each such experience helps the child to understand the logical results of mistakes in conduct, and is a lesson in 'fair play,' one of the designs in the pattern she is encouraging him to follow."

Collective bargaining enforced

struck from the federal statute books by invalidation of the NRA code, is once more assured a place on their pages as the house, after previous senate approval, passes, 130 to 48, the National Labor Relations Bill.

It continues the National Labor Relations Board, granting it enforcement powers far beyond those it formerly had. Company-supported unions are outlawed. The majority rule prevails in the choice of bargaining agencies. Discrimination and coercion by employers for union activity are banned.

Replicates the National Association of Manufacturers "Plainly unconstitutional, the measure will not survive a test in the courts."

All is quiet on the dollar front, thanks to swift, silent action by Uncle Sam. The story as revealed by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau:

In the closing days of May, France clung to the gold standard by the most tenuous of threads, the calls for gold exceeding shipment facilities. Devaluation impended, with a race indicated among the franc, pound, and dollar as a drop in value of competing units tended to drag internal prices lower.

Into the breach stepped the American Treasury, with presidential approval, and advanced to the Bank of France many millions of dollars, leaving the gold so purchased in Paris vaults.

The hour of decisive action approached regarding the "death sentence" to utility holding companies passed by the committee reports the Wheeler-Rayburn bill in a form leaving elimination of such units to the discretion of the Securities and Exchange commission.

The measure as passed by the senate would make mandatory the dissolution of all intermediate holding units and the regional integration of properties held by those remaining.

Mundelein Foo of Bears Sunday in Game Here; Ph. Bensenville on 4th

Team created Barrington's softball team defeated Barrington's softball team at a rather unprofitable afternoon here. The game was a total of 4 hits, 1 run, 1 error and 1 walk. The Bears won the game by the rather wide margin of 3 to 1. It was the fourth loss in six games for the Bears this season.

The Bears just could not locate the hitting punch that got them 21 hits and 11 runs in their last game with the Bensenville team six weeks ago, and then on Saturday through with six hits in a game at Barrington. The Bears, on this slumping team, had their hits well scored in the 2nd, 3rd, 5th and 6th innings.

Heads Weakened

Although not to detract from the well-earned victory, it might be added that the Bears were plainly weakened by the loss of three regulars, Charlie and Rudy Berg, and Art Wood, who had been in the game. They had helped the Bears to a much better scoring.

Willie Altenburg, who has been a regular in the Bensenville team, had a season's batting average to the high mark of .520. He was far ahead of the rest of his team mates in this department.

Need Players

The Bears have a well-earned victory, but they are short-handed in the number of active players on the squad lately and as a result manager, R. W. Wichman has announced that any players who wish to join the club should get in touch with him immediately.

On next Sunday the Bears play Bensenville again, taking on the Mundelein nine at the local ballpark. Bensenville has been booked for the fourth of July combat next Thursday.

Local Runner to Compete in 2 Races Over Week-End

Bill Dreyer, local distance star, will try his luck in two races this week-end. Tomorrow afternoon he is to compete in an individual 10,000 meter run, one of the features of the O'Leary A.U. meet at St. Louis; and on Saturday he will face a strong field in a four mile road race sponsored by the Ancient Order of Hibernians at Pilsen park, Chicago.

Little Known Delhi Street Is the Richest in the World

What is the richest street in the world? Without taking into account the contents of the London Stock Exchange and Wall Street, New York, where unseen fortunes change hands, the little-known Chandi Chowk in Delhi has substantial claims. It has often been referred to as the richest street in Asia, and, unlike our own commercial thoroughfares, the greater part of its wealth is there for all to see. But many are the treasures which are hidden away in secret recesses of the shops of curio dealers and jewelers in that picturesque street.

One of the dealers, the walls of whose establishment are covered with letters of appointment from highnesses and excellencies of all descriptions, has manufactured countless wonderful golden and jeweled embroideries for crowned heads and ruling princes. He was responsible for the historic peacock gown, costing no less than $1,000, which the late Lady Curzon wore at the Durbar ball, attended by 4,000 guests in the Delhi fort in 1908. Here also are all the richest of the embroidery merchants, whose cloths and cloaks, acclimating with costly ornaments, are not only intended for reigning princes, but for state elephants. Here, too, are the carvers of ivory, and the traveler can see them exhibiting their skill in evolving delicate figures and animals from solid blocks of ivory, sawn from elephants' trunks.—Montreal Herald.

Home of the Flamigos
Flamigos are natives of the mangrove swamps of Cuba and the islands in the Bahamas. Contrary to popular belief they are not migratory birds. They formerly were found in overwhelming numbers in Cuba and the Bahamas, but so many were killed for their beautiful plumage and because they are such tender food that they are rapidly becoming extinct.

Blaze Demolishes 2-Story Garage on Nestlerode Estate

A two-story frame garage belonging to Norman B. Nestlerode was destroyed by fire on the Nestlerode estate in Cuba town ship early Sunday evening.

Quick action on the part of the local fire department saved surrounding buildings, including a large barn. It was reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Nestlerode were not at home when the fire broke out. They first noticed the blaze and notified the gardener who went in an alarm.

Origin of the fire is unknown and one of the contractors have submitted figures covering cost of reconstruction, according to the report. Mr. Nestlerode plans to replace the garage with an identical one.
