Trustee Daescher Presents
New Measure to Board
Tuesday Night

Those injured most seriously

Hattie, and their son, Thomas.
The others are Walter Lysik, 1822

According to Lysik, with whom Gaul and Jenes were riding, he was traveling in the same direction
as the others and another car going in the same direction passed him and sideswiped the car simultaneously. Lysik's car was hurled across the road by the impact and crashed into the Kamm

The car was passed off as being driven by Trustee Daescher by Trustee Breschler, who took under advisement warning signs to put up in metal and cardboard which have been considered.

W. C. Fields Will Play at Catlow Sunday, Monday

"The Irish in Us" Featuring James Cagney Here for Three Days

"Naughty Marietta" is being shown at the Catlow Theatre tonight in response to the many requests for a return showing of this film.

Jeannette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy and Frank Morgan have the leading roles in this capricious adventure of the French who join a engagement of aristocrats for the New Orleans marriage mart. The amiable medeville of Victor Herbert enriches the story, and the singing of MacDonald and Eddy built the whole into a captivating entertainment.

Friday night, "The Man from Laramie" at the Catlow, direct from its week's run at the Oriental. Errol Flynn, Robert Young and Frank Craven are starred.

Tells the story of a prodigal son returning from a world cruise to upset the family applicant in the main aisle of his father's department. The top is bright, farcial fun.

Picture fans will be happy to see Fred MacMurray and Madge Evans, both stars of outstanding merit, heading the large cast which will present "Meet Without a Gun," the feature number of the Saturday program.

It is the tremendously exciting story of the efforts of one G-Man to round up an underworld gang, and holds its own in interest along with any of the dramatized pictures offered to date.

W. C. Fields, who has developed a desire to provide entertainment which is true comedy. His gags are the best, his situations the most hilarious, his performances the most varied of any of the screen comedians.

In "Man on the Flying Trapeze," Charles LaSalle and Moe Howard, comedy construction is just about perfect. There's no end to the cunningly-contrived build-up of things that get funnier as the picture goes on, gags that are priceless.

In his latest comedy he portrays the part of a submitted, blushing husband constantly tormented by his wife and mother-in-law, in fact by everyone but his daughter, who is the apple of his eye. His attempt to get to a wrestling match is only one of many mirth-provoking dilemmas in which Fields finds himself.

Mr. Brian, Kathleen Howard, Lucia Littlefield are in the cast.

Everyone who goes to the movies—and everyone does—knows that James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Frank McHugh and Allen Jenkins would make any picture interesting.

In the picture, "The Irish in Us," early autumn's leading production, which plays the local theatre Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week, they rise to even new heights.

As the name would indicate,

"The Irish in Us" is a comedy drama.

Mary Gordon, a 55 year old Irish widow whose step from a job as a maid to a star in Hollywood is in itself a romance, portrays the part of an Irish mother whose three sons are Pat O'Brien, a cop; Frank McHugh, a fireman, and James Cagney, who refuses to take a steady job but devotes himself to repairing broken down fire fighters.

Mac's catering to the one non-producer of her breed keeps the family in constant turmoil, but the tempest breaks in earnest when Cagney takes O'Brien's girl, Miss de Havilland, away from him.

Party at Library Saturday
Miss Olive Dobsen, local librarian, will be hostess at a party Saturday afternoon for members of the Vacation Reading Club who finished at least eight books during the summer. Many of the children read many more, and it is to the credit of Miss Dobsen that they are developing a taste for good literature. According to rules of the contest, only books of a high standard of literary excellence were eligible. In another section of this week's paper, printed earlier, an account of the contest failed to name Miss Dobsen as organizer and supervisor of the competition.

Fake Antiques Volumes

An interesting trial of the makers of antique volumes is to be held in Illinois and other books on old paper. To make such spurious volumes convincingly aged appearance, the plates from which they are printed are taken from photographic copies of the original pages of the literary work being imitated. The best bibliophiles have ways, however, of easily detecting such counterfeits—Montreal Herald.

British in Palestine Is Important Mission Point

British in Palestine is the port of Haifa and Damascene. The city is located on a hill that faces the Mediterranean Sea, backed by the mountains. It is the principal center of the American mission, which has built many schools and colleges. The ruler of Haifa, while taking the name from Haifa, the sun god, is credited with being the first in the city.

The state of Baulk is older than Damascene, the latter generally believed to be the oldest in the world. Tradition has it that Adam lived there and that the rising of Abel took place somewhere between the two cities. The Arabs proudly claim that the Tower of Babel, which was built to reach the sky, was started and lead them to the location of the Tower of Babel. Solomon built a temple here and is the only castle which has survived to the lonely peak of Skiat.

Such is the land of Palestine, a land that is microscopic in size, yet it brings a new experience in history, religion, and art to life in the making. No other place has produced so many great men who have greatly shaped the history of mankind.

"Hell Columbia"

The state of Baulk is the seat of great political excitement in 1935 by Judge Joseph Hopkins and were set to the melody of the "President's March" composed the same in honor of the President of Washington, D. C., the theatrical leader of the John Street Theater, New York. The composition, first used in a theatrical benefit, attained great popularity, and on account of its patriotic sentiment has become a representative national song.

College
The term "college" is thus defined by the National Education Committee on Standards of Colleges and Secondary Schools: A college is an institution requiring for admission matriculation from a standard secondary school, the equivalent, and degree; a college curriculum leading to the first degree in arts or science, of such character as to qualify for admission to a graduate school of recognized standing.

Crete Farmer Wins Pure Milk Contest for 'Neatest Farm'

George Ohlendorf, Crete, won the singular honor of having the "neatest farm" in competition with 18,000 farmers in Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota. This award is presented annually by the Pure Milk Association amongst its members and is restricted to dairy farms.

Mr. Ohlendorf has been farming at Crete for the last 20 years and has devoted much time to improving his farm on the place.

Spin-and-spin in every respect, the dairy farm covers an area of 187 acres. He maintains a herd of 12 Brown Swiss cows as well as producing crops familiar to this section of the country.

Modern convenience that a farm can have available, electricity plays a predominant part in running the place. Starting from a "mudhole," Mr. Ohlendorf has carefully planned his buildings, with the result that his dairy farm is a fine example of efficiency.

Mrs. Ohlendorf has taken her part well in maintaining congenial surroundings. She has devoted a great deal of time to the cultivation of flowers and in consequence shrubs and beds beautify the grounds.

With the exception of the farmhouse, the buildings are painted a cherry red with white trim. The farm home is a fresh clean white and fenced around it is a rock garden.

Domestic Pressure

Domestic pressure is a common form of insanity, developing usually late in adolescence or early adult life, and characterized by loss of interest in people and things, lack of interest in personal participation in practical or social life, incoherence of thought and action, and blunting of emotion. Ontario is a severe type of dementia praecox, characterized by negativism, and incoherence and often by catatony with alternating periods of stupor and of activity.

Plaibiscite Long in Use in European Arguments

In 1802, Bonaparte, when the senate refused to make him consul for life, determined to "consult the people" on the subject of his status. It was unrepresented by a simple decree that it did not warrant a plebiscite. The fact that it did was rather a coup d'etat. The results of the plebiscite were a singular success for Bonaparte, observes a writer in the New York Times.

The right to name his successor was granted by a decree of the senate in 1804. There were 3,572,329 affirmative and 2,000 negative votes.

Probably the best known example of the use of the plebiscite in French history was in 1852, when the coup d'etat of 1851 was confirmed and the title of emperor was given to Napoleon III. It was his use of the plebiscite that made the term "dictator" connect it with the idea of despotism, poison as an illustration.

Probably the best known single example of the use of the plebiscite in France was in 1870, when the final step was taken in 1875 when the first consular election was held.

The right to name his successor was granted by a decree of the senate in 1871. The results of the plebiscite were a singular success for Napoleon III. It was his use of the plebiscite that made the term "dictator" connect it with the idea of despotism, poison as an illustration.

Cause of Red Sea Being Red

The cause of the narrow body of water, since the opening of the Suez canal, the chief thoroughfare of trade between Europe and Asia, is flanked on each side by arid wastes of reddish sand, writes G. T. Turner in the "Kansan City Citizen." This sand, which is red clay, is a form of sandal, combining to impart to the waters of the sea a reddish tint much of the time and thus enable it to justify its name.

TELEPHONE, BARRINGTON NO. 1

CHILDREN'S CRIME HOUR

Listening, as we do, to repeated complaints of parents who object to the penny-dreadful type of broadcasting that comes over the radio to their children at supper time we wonder at the shortsightedness of many advertisers and radio stations.

Concern over this type of program finds reflection not only in the ill will of potential customers toward the sponsors and the advertised product, but also in a statement by Anning S. Pratt, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission. Mr. Pratt is certain that some of the dime novels of the air are injuring children. And he offers the reminder that "about half a dozen stations have been taken off the air in recent years for failure to live up to the proper standards of public service."

The resentment against this type of program is not of the negative sort that is received and forgotten with an indifferent shrug; an embattled parent is a dangerous adversary for any institution, no matter how big, to face. School officials and educators in general have repeatedly emphasized the demoralizing effects of these programs. Highly strung children are keyed up to an uncomfortable pitch by radio shrieks and horror stories; and even the most phlegmatic child is apt to have his vocabulary corrupted and his standards warped in formative years by what might well be described as the Children's Crime Hour.

Many of these programs are a nuisance to parents also, and to a degree which it is hard for adults without children of their own to appreciate. Once a child's sympathy has been aroused by the sponsor of a product, it will plead and beg incessantly for the purchase of that product. In a current radio sequence, children were made to believe, though it was not actually stated, that purchase of a certain article would aid the fictional hero in securing money to pay for the necessary operation on his ailing mother!

The sheer impudence of an appeal to any child in the home over the parents' heads, in behalf of an advertised product might be enough to give the sponsors pause; but combined with the ill effects of such programs upon the child, as shown by Professor Busse of New York University and others, and the resentment enkindled in grown-ups, it would seem that, even if advertisers do not, the radio powers that be would take heed in their own interest.—Christian Science Monitor.

A disease which thickens the human skull may eventually be identified as nature's effort to evolve a more durable taxpayer.

WHAT'S GOING ON WASHINGTON

(Courtesy The United States News)

Gavel-banged through the session so fast that smiling Senator Glass was not even able to offer a word of explanation; the conference report, the banking bill went to the white house devoid of a number of features the vigilante Virginia senator sought to keep out of it. With a continuing smile, the senator registered satisfaction as the bill was signed into law.

Among provisions about which the two houses disagreed, senators conferred in maintaining direct open-market purchases of government securities and 14-year terms for federal reserve board members. The conference report was a victory in extending till 1949 the time when insured banks having a million of deposit must join the federal reserve system. House banking committee chairman Stearns called this a forced engagement but postponed most of the other changes until the bill was re-submitted.

Missing from the conference report are signatures of the three senate republicans. They refused to sign what they termed "this legislative absurdity."

In a collision of kogs and bolts, all alcohol control legislation seemed wrecked in conference for this session. The house insisted on permitting bulk liquor sales, the senate as a result insisted.

Then eleven-hour presidential proclamations late Friday broke the deadlock. House conferees ceded on the main point.

Liquor, under the agreement reached, would continue to be prohibited in the home, but the sale of kogs or other bulk containers, which treasury and FA officials had contended would make enforcement against bootlegging more difficult.

But senate conferees gave way to the house's insistence that legislation be vested in a single administrator operating under the treasury department. The senate, backing views of treasury secretary Morgenthau and alcohol administrator Choate, had wanted a commission independent of any existing authority.

Last-minute passage of the Third Dredge Bill brings total congress spending for this session to $8,250,000,000. On the other side of the ledger congress expects a quarter billion of new revenue from the "so-called" tax measure.uriel, though the conference wringer, the tax bill fails to meet all presidential specifications. Eliminated in conference were inheritance taxes. Mr. Roosevelt demanded. Offsetting this omission are increased estate taxes.

Another major deviation from

Brewers escape direct control under the bill, but may voluntarily submit themselves to federal regulations.

Snatched in the nick of time from seeming certain death, the much disputed utility holding company bill at last was approved by congress.

Only thinly camouflaged by compromise, the "dumb" bill, which the house had voted down and steadfastly instructed its conferees to keep out of the measure. The bill now gives the SEC power after January 1, 1938, to eliminate holding companies more than two degrees removed from the original subvention. Remaining holding companies will be forced to operate in geographically and economically integrated areas.

Mutual service companies are banned save where such service is provided at cost-and-control contracts with operating companies. The SEC gets complete discretion to decide whether holding companies may issue bonds against outstanding stock or physical assets only.

On one side, a threat of an adverse supreme court decision; on the other, a threat of a soft coal strike in September. Facing these two horns of dilemma, congress chose the former.

In jamming through the Gulf-Sayre coal bill, lawmakers did in with greater finality than in the "dumb" bill.

That this in "soft coal" industry will have been temporarily fore stalled by this attempt to fulfill administration promises to the miners.

Not a Bribe
RUTH NICKEL

Mark was not accustomed to being bribed to do things for her own good. It was our feeling that she should be helped to understand why she must do them, for we knew that in later life she would often be faced with difficult tasks which carried no reward except in the satisfaction of work well done.

The depression brought a number of changes in to her life. Moving from the suburbs into the city was a shock to her from her friends, but it took her away from a very pleasant place.

That night we discussed what we could do. At last we decided to give Marian something pleasant to think about. She was fond of parties, particularly of the fun of preparing for them. However, we did not want to offer her one as a reward for not crying.

Mark was a school teacher and in school the classes were small, there was opportunity for individual attention and for study periods, so that she had often left school with her homework done.

Now she had so much to do that she had little time for play. Furthermore, the school she was asked to attend had a daily schedule which required her to go to bed half an hour earlier than she had been accustomed.

During the first week we realized that she was not happy, but we were not prepared for the end by thinking even the new storm that broke on the Monday morning of the second. She did not want to go to school! After a good cry she pulled herself together, but she was a pathetic figure as she left the house.

That night she finished her lessons shortly before her new bed was made.

When the clock struck she paid no attention, and finally we had to remind her that it was time to go to bed. Mark closed the book with a snap.

"Good gracious," she said, "I can't do anything more but go to school and go to bed. I wish I hadn't been born." And then she burst into tears.
