GOUGING THE GROCERS

Grocery stores throughout the Chicago district which fill orders for relief clients have been asked to kick in to the kitty with 5 per cent of their bills, except bills from sale of milk. They have not only been asked to do it, they have or mis. Iney have not only been asked to do it, they have been ordered to do it or give up their relief order business. The excuse given by the administrator is that the Illinois Emergency Relief commission is buying from the retailers instead of saving money by buying from wholesalers. The 5 per cent discount offsets or partly offsets the amount which could be saved by buying direct from the wholesalers, it is argued. Under examination that excuse for chiselling does not hold water. If the relief organization were to hure at not hold water. If the relief organization were to buy at wholesale it would have to pay additional money for distri-bution to those on relief. This looks like a good case for an honest legislative probe.

CHARGES MADE AGAINST UTILITIES

Charges have been made by the federal trade commis-sion that the utilities interests are using propaganda to pre-vent the government from taking over the operation of all public utilities.

It is indeed difficult for the average man who thinks with an open mind and who is not so prejudiced that he cannot give a subject fair and intelligent thought, to get excannot give a subject fair and intelligent thought, to get ex-cited over such charges. As a matter of fact just why should not a company or firm, whether engaged in public utilities or grocery selling, be permitted to do everything possible so long as he neither circumvents nor breaks laws, to keep from losing his business, especially if that business is a paying

Is not a man entitled to the fruits of his labor? Is he to be shorn of his business without a chance to protect him-self simply because it happens to be a utilities business? Such action is comparable only to the unfair procedure taken by the government when prohibition was voted in the land when millions of dollars of property were scrapped by such action without restitution being made to those who had their action without restriction being made to those win had their money invested in legal enterprises. Regardless of one's thoughts or sympathies, such things are not right nor equit-able nor can any amount of argument make them so.

able nor can any amount of argument make them so.

So long as the utilities use methods which are fair, morally as well as legally, certainly there should be no objection to their efforts. As a matter of fact the government should keep its fingers out of private business, public utilities included. If and when interests in the various businesses, whether they be utilities or other, do not follow or conform to the law, certainly there are means of prosecuting those individuals who are guilty of such law evasion.

If and when the laws now in effect are properly enforced and honest officials see that competent engineers properly fix valuations for utilities and set rates accordingly there never will be any reason for governmental interference or ownership of utilities. And if such actions are taken, the people will receive lower rates than they will get under gov ernment operations with the grafting methods used in most political deals extended to the field of public utilities.

But regardless of that or any other angle to the situa-tion, certainly no one should be unjustly accused merely for trying to save a business and property which has taken years of effort and a great amount of money to build into its pres-ent paying state.—Star-Republican, Blanchester, Ohio.

We believe it will be a long time before the people of this country will follow the leadership of the theorists and college economists into government ownership for America.
