The bore, 22,150 feet long, begun in 1928 and holed through on February 18, 1927, was opened to train traffic in February, 1929.

Lake County Sale of Seals Reported Slow by Leaders

A survey of the 1935 seal sale reported that of 13,000 letters sent by the Lake County Seals Association Thanksgiving Day only 4,670 have been returned. Of that number, only 1791 have returned money. The seal sale total stands today at $12,919.52. The seal sale by the association is held by N. O. Plazgo, local distributor. It comes in the form of a seal from one to two a month in the coming year. It is necessary to return the seal sale to the total return of the year. This is due to an increase in the number of persons receiving a free chest examination at the clinic.

Village Trustees Estimate $275,000 Needed for Sewers

The trustees reported that contracting for the sewer system is a big job. Under the present plan, both sewer and water department will be required to furnish the funds. The water department is estimated that $17,000 will be required annually on the sewer rental charge with $5,000 coming from the water department. The water department operates with a net profit that could be diverted into the combined units.

A contract was made on Monday night with the H. B. LaRocca and A. S. Huxley bond to sell whatever bonds are necessary at 97 1/2 dollars in the 100.

Afterward the bear digs right down to the royal chamber, licks up the bloated queen and goes on its way.

SENTENCED

"Sentenced to a life-time of poor business and mediocre financial returns."
Counsel for the defense: "If it please your honor, will the court review the findings in the case of the merchant, and explain just why he has been given such a severe sentence?"
His honor: "Yes, gladly! The defendant got up this morning from an advertised mattress, shaved with an advertised razor and put on an advertised underwear, hose, shoes, shirt collar, tie, suit, ate an advertised breakfast, drank advertised coffee, put on an advertised hat, lighted an advertised cigar, drove to his place of business in an advertised car."
"And then turned down a newspaper advertising solicitor on the ground: 'It Doesn't Pay.' Sentence has been passed—case dismissed."

Review Display Advertising for Month Is Record

An increased volume of local retail sales has been reported by several merchants who believe the Christmas shopping season the past year was the best in years. Improved conditions are also reflected by the December display advertising in The Review, as newspaper circulation is generally accepted by economists as a fairly accurate barometer to volume of retail sales.

A substantial amount of display advertising published in The Review during December (including this issue) is the second highest since the newspaper was founded back in 1889 and the highest for any month in which only four issues were published. The total income of 2956 columns inches of paid advertising is greater than that for any month except December, 1932, when 3073 inches.

Teachers on Vacation

The teachers in the local school have gone to their different homes for the holiday season. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Clark and family are at Abington and Brimfield. Mr. and Mrs. Willard Watson and family are at Macomb. Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Hosford and daughter have gone back to Toulon and Hamilton. Miss Mary Heller left for Abington. Miss Beulah Beckley has gone to Nevada. Miss Althea Christensen to Rubicon, Wis. Miss Annie Sirel to Hoopewick. Miss Anabel Leonard to Jacksonville. Miss Esther McKercher to Manly, Ia. and Miss Elizabeth Schwab to Nebraska.

Seed Germination

There is a great variation in seeds with regard to power to germinate after a number of years. The conditions under which they are stored is also of importance. The seeds of some wild plants have been tested and found to germinate after 30 years. In spite of the legends of ancient Egyptian wheat having sprouted there appears no evidence to show that wheat grains can live more than about 25 years. Most of the common farm and garden seeds will keep a few years under favorable conditions.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Davis of Wauconda filed suit in the Lake county circuit court this week against William G. Savage of Chicago for $20,000 damages caused by injuries received in an automobile accident this past summer.
According to the bill filed, Davis and his wife were traveling in their automobile in Libertyville when the accident occurred with Savage's machine at the intersection of Milwaukee and Park avenues. The bill claims that Savage was traveling across the intersection in violation of traffic signals.

Davis seeks $20,000 damages for injuries to himself and $15,000 for those sustained by his wife.

Pennsylvania's Immigrants
During the eighteenth century Pennsylvania was a refuge for European immigrants. No other colony had so many different races and religions—Dutch, Swedish, English, German, Welsh and Irish; Quakers, Presbyterians, Catholics, Lutherans, Methodists and Moravians. Many communities have a dialect showing traces of many of these languages, particularly Rhine-Franconian German, which is known as Pennsylvania Dutch.

State Real and Personal Property Tax Will Be Waived Again in 1936

Governor Henry Horner announced this week that the state property tax will again be waived for next year.
The tax board formally met and decided that the state government, for the third time during the Horner administration, will waive its activities during the coming year without a tax on real and personal property.
Since 1932, the state has financed its major activities through the retail sales tax.

An Oriental Conveyance
The vehicle called a palanquin is an Oriental conveyance, often enclosed, for long distances by travelers where railroads or motor carriage roads do not exist. It is a wooded box, with shutters like Venetian blinds. At each end of the palanquin two rings are fixed, and the palanquin-bearers support the conveyance by a pole passing through these rings.

WE BELIEVE YOU'LL HAVE A HAPPY NEW YEAR

Most of us can look back over the twelve months period which will end at midnight next Tuesday and be pleased with the upward trend in our financial affairs. Some can feel satisfaction, if not elation, from the results of the last 24 months of gradual upward trend.

Two years of slow but steady improvement form a sound and reasonable basis for belief that 1936 will usher in a condition approaching that old time prosperity we like to recollect; and consequently, this New Year period is filled with genuine optimism rather than uncertain hope that was the best of the five preceding New Years could offer.

While hoping that a few national and international perturbing conditions which directly or indirectly affect all citizens can be altered or regulated, we have confidence that 1936 will be the best year in many for the majority of people and expressing that confidence we extend our sincere wishes for success and happiness to all of our readers.

SANTA CLAUS, MASTER-SALESMAN

The master salesman of them all is Santa Claus. Year after year the old gentleman has demonstrated his ability to move goods off the shelves and into the hands of happy and well-pleased customers.

Christmas injects a powerful stimulus into business and provides a new sentiment for buying and selling, transforming the routine business of bartering into a super-occasion.

It is a long cry from the three wise men who bore gifts across the desert to a child and the busy streets of thousands of cities throughout the world, but it is symbolic of the gifts borne by the three wise men that we think of Christmas in terms of gifts today.

Santa Claus is a merry old elf borrowed from Germanic legends, but he has been transmuted through the ages to fit perfectly with the Christmas scene despite the fact he evolved from a pagan belief.

It is interesting to reflect upon the manner in which two wholly dissociated faiths have contributed in a material way to the business done by Mr. Smith during the month of December in a little notion shop down the street . . . or to swell the receipts of the largest stores in New York or Chicago.

If the same enthusiastic relationship between buyer and seller as is exhibited at Christmas time could be maintained throughout the rest of the year, world economic problems would be solved once and for all time.—Daily Reporter, Spencer, Iowa.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN WASHINGTON

(Courtesy The United States News)

Of all new deal agencies, that closest to the heart of President Roosevelt, the Tennessee Valley Authority, meets its fate before the Supreme Court Justices and submits its fate to their judgment. Power represents utility and coal interests, seeking to have declared invalid contracts for disposal of its power to various municipalities and for acquiring distribution facilities of the Alabama Power Company. Their attorneys seek to enlarge the question by declaring the TVA the entering wedge of Socialism.

TVA counsel reply that the sole question at issue is the government's right to dispose of power developed as an incident to navigation improvement, a right long upheld by the court.

Thus is a decision sought on the continuance of the government's major effort to show how cheaply electricity may be produced and distributed so as to spread the use to the largest possible number of customers.

Partly to vindicate his record, partly in an attack on administrative policy, former President Hoover raises the point to assert:

The bank panic of 1933 was caused by fear of the incoming administration—the most political and unnecessary panic in history.

Jobs will quickly return if relief is turned back to states and localities, if the budget is balanced and if the dollar is stabilized.

The nation's welfare demands an end to experimentation, the "dance of the rain makers."

Those on relief have suffered enough from having play-boys take America apart to see how the wheels go round.

Who is lawless—Congress that passes laws of doubtful validity under the constitution, or lawyers associated with the liberty league who advise their clients to disregard laws until the Supreme court passes on them?

There are two answers, one by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, the other by Robert H. Jackson, counsel for the treasury. Says Mr. Jackson: Mass attacks on statutes, as carried out against the farm control and public utility laws, change the essential nature of judicial review. Formerly laws took effect unless and until set aside by the court. Under new Liberty League practices, the law is treated as a complete nullity until the supreme court says it can take effect. This is not orderly government; it is lawlessness. America, Mr. Cummings: The supreme court has reversed itself many times, altering its decisions with change in prevailing opinions and in the light of unforeseen developments in the nation. For congress to refuse to enact a statute because of doubt regarding its validity would mean an end of new types of legislation and would bring many essential activities of government to a standstill.

Who pays the cost of bringing into law purchasing power to the farmer through the farm program?

Answer of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration: No one, since farm prosperity generates more income in industrial centers than the program costs.

It presents these calculations in proof:

Deepth of industrial improvement is directly traceable to farm spending.

Shipment of industrial products from 14 manufacturing states into agricultural states rose between 1932 and 1935 from 32 to 68 per cent.

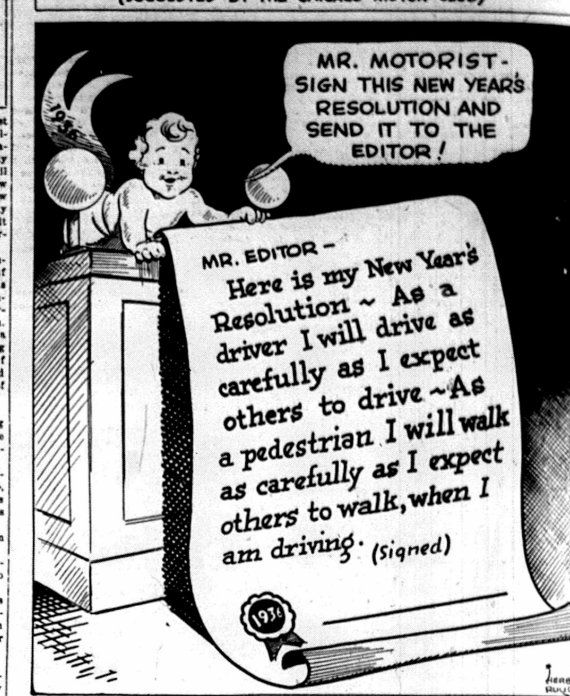

The time is not ripe for applying the brake to business activity through action by the Federal Reserve Board.

So decides the board, despite the voice of its bankers who see nearly 300 million dollars of "excess reserves" lying idle but capable of supporting a huge inflation of bank money.

The board states: "The country is still short of recovery. There is no evidence of over-expansion of business activity or use of business credit." Hence no use at present of the power to raise bank reserve requirements or apply other checks on use of credit.

Explains S. Parker Gilbert, formerly agent general for the collection of reparations from Germany: "The excess reserves come largely from gold sent here as an incident to flight of capital from Europe. If and when this is withdrawn, the present large reserves will cushion American business against the shock."

ESTHER HULL DOOLITTLE

"Mother, may I stay at home from school today? Please, Mother!" Tears were shown in the big blue eyes of Martin Hopkins, Junior, aged six, as he dalled with his oatmeal in the Hopkins' sunny breakfast room.

"Of course not! The 'Ideal' Young Mr. Hopkins, in crisp pink flannel, placed two squares of buttered toast on her son's plate with an air of finality. "Daddy wouldn't want you, would he?"

"Yes, Daddy would," said the little boy. "Don't you want to grow up to be a smart man like Daddy? You like school, don't you, Martin?"

Madeline Maguire, was commoner of the century. The principle of this weapon is the same as that of the common "pea-shooter." Little darts are discharged from it by blowing with the mouth. The darts are usually hard, slender splits of wood, pointed at one end and wrapped at the butt with cotton, thistle down, or some other soft material.

Curious implement, says Pathfinder Magazine, was common in the most southerly parts of the United States, the habitat of the Cherokee, Iroquois and Muskogean Indian tribes used it. The Cherokee, who called the little darts by the same name as that of the thistle, gathered the heads of thistle at the proper season and parted them together in the form of a wheel which they hung in their teepees to be made into darts at some future date. They called the darts of the thistle "wild cat arrows." The northern Iroquois substituted elder stalks for cane in making their blowguns. The Hopi Indians, of central Arizona, blow feathers to the four cardinal points through tubes of cane.

The South American Indian tribes inhabiting the region between the Amazon and Orinoco rivers still use the same both to warfare and the chase.

of frost lay on the grass. Grandma bestirred herself early and awakened her grandson, and very soon they were walking together in the brown woods nearby. They related their tales of the day and breakfast that even the thought of the dreaded school was less distressing. Moreover, hadn't they found in a sheltered fence corner the bluest bird available for sale? Price to put in the yellow bowl? Martin could hardly wait to see his teacher's face when she would notice them, and he ran all the way for they might wait.

Mary Prior rose to the occasion without showing that it was an occasion. Martin was praised for keen-sightedness, and late flowers were used for a painting lesson. Martin felt useful and important. There was a healthy glow of self-respect beneath the small blouse. It was fun, after all, to be noticed sometimes. Next day he triumphantly presented trailing, orange-berried bitternweed.

Grandma stayed ten days and during that time Martin acquired in school a reputation for being the sharpest-eyed, best natured-informed child in the class. He asked insoluble questions of grownups concerning his treasures brought in from woods, streams and fields. He and Grandma studied the book of insects from books they found in the public library.

Found in the public library. The town. After she went, Martin continued his studies with the help of the delighted Sally and Martin, Senior.

Soon it was quite common for Martin to stand before his classmates and tell about his "finds" and his experiences. Gradually, his self-confidence was built up. The world of capable, competent beings that Sally, in her seal to make a strong "the man" of her son, had set before him so diligently, lost its terror. The unsentimental, retiring child had found a place for himself, all because Grandma, from her vantage point of experience, had been so patient in providing an entering wedge, whereby her grandson might work his way into the world of things and earn the respect and admiration of his fellows.

Next morning the sun shone in a cloudless blue sky, and sparkles

New Car Gift for Owner of Oldest Chevrolet in Use

Chevrolet's one millionth car of 1935 production is to be presented to the owner of the oldest Chevrolet licensed and in regular use in the United States. Fred Schaub of Schaumburg, Ill., reported that he and other dealers in this locality have been asked to discover whether the oldest Chevrolet is in this territory.

The one millionth Chevrolet built within the current year came off the assembly line at Flint, Mich., on Dec. 12, just eight days after Chevrolet produced its eleven millionth car since the beginning of the company.

Production of the millionth car of the year—a 1935 standard coach—will be made to the owner whose Chevrolet is discovered, between December 15, 1935, and midnight January 15, 1936, to be the oldest model licensed and in regular service.

It is specified that to win, the old-timer Chevrolet must have been regularly licensed for operation during the current year, possessing its own 1935 license tags issued before December 1. It must also have been licensed as a passenger car, and be equipped with a complete passenger car body. It must bear the original engine and chassis numbers, legible and unaltered.

To enter a Chevrolet for consideration, the owner need only drive it to any Chevrolet dealer's showroom and submit it for examination, receiving a blank on which he will report the engine and chassis numbers of the car to the Chevrolet Motor company at Detroit, where the company's records will determine which is the very oldest in service.

Matiff Is Considered British Isles' Oldest

There may be older breed of dogs than the matiff, but not so in the British Isles, for here this dog is considered the oldest of them all, its origin dating back to the sixteenth century. R. C. At that time, writes Albert Stoll, Jr., in the British News, it was brought into Britain by the adventurous Ptolemaean traders and was adopted by the Britons for hunting and in warfare.

For years the breed was used to hunt the larger wild animals and to bear hailing, but as the centuries passed it was adopted as a guardian for property and as a canine companion for those who fanned the larger breeds of dogs.

Matiffs may be other dogs, with a dark face or blind. They weigh from 150 to 170 pounds and stand about 28 inches high at the shoulders. According to the American standard of perfection they should be large, massive and powerful with a well-knit frame. Their eyes should be wide apart and squarely set. The coat is short and close-lying, but not too fine over the shoulders, neck and back.

Sparta of Century Ago

Is Out of the Picture About a century ago this site of ancient Sparta, capital of Laconia, was a scene of busy activity. The Greek war of independence was over, and patriotic souls were stimulated by the emotions of victory to dream of a resurrected city in the Peloponnese. Baron Jochims was enlisted to prepare designs, and a glorious metropolis was anticipated. But the enterprise was destined to meet with but little success. Today, observes a writer in the Washington Star, Sparta is only a small town, the capital of nothing but a prefecture and the post office address of no more than seven or eight thousand people.

The history of the city may be summarized in a roster of dates: 1600 B. C., town founded; 1204, abdication of Helen of Troy by Paris; 1194, beginning of the Trojan war; 1170, return to Menelaus and Helen; 1104, kingdom seized by Heracleides; 865-50, rule of Lycurgus; 745-724, war with the Messenians; 647, revolt of the Messenians; 547, war with Athens; 491, war with Persia; 480, Leondaris, with 300 Spartans, at the battle of Thermopylae; 468, earthquake destroys 20,000 people; 464, war with Athens; 494, end of the Peloponnesian war, Sparta at the height of its power; 205, beginning of the Corinthian war; 370, Sparta, Laconia domination of the seas; 302, Sparta's domination by the Thebans at the battle of Mantinea; 314, Sparta overthrown by Philip of Macedonia; 147, Sparta, protected by Rome, against a hostile state; 286, A. D., city taken by Alaric; 1800, taken by Mahomet II; 1603, burned by Sigmund Malmstea.
