(Courtesy The United States News)

Not since the speculative spurt in 1913, before the NRA codes went into effect, has the index of industrial production stood so high a level as in November of this year.

The reserve board's index for last month—97 per cent of the 1923-1925 level. July 1933 saw it rise to 106.

Here are some differences between then and now in the industrial scene:

Then, speculation in anticipation of a price rise; now, output being absorbed steadily in consuming channels.

Then, pay rolls at only 60 per cent normal; now, earnings of workers at more than 75 per cent of normal.

Then, heavy industry and residential building in a state of paralysis; now, a steady sustained rise in these back legs of recovery.

Element showing the least improvement is employment, the index rising by only 5 points from 80 to 85.

The labor department learns, through a special report, how federal aid for training of apprentices in industry has miscarried in its primary purpose of aiding young workers.

The program is financed by rector money and administered under the department of labor, to which the national youth administration has now been made a part of.

Says the report, covering a survey in the textile industry:

Learners working without pay have frequently been made to produce goods sold in regular marketing channels. When their contracts in apprenticeship have been completed, they have then been hired as learners at low rates of pay.

Not rarely is said to be subsided to the companies at the expense of the government and workers.

Stung to a resolve for action, Representative Jennings Randolph (Dem.) of West Virginia, chairman of a special committee on crime study, this committee on Charles A. Lindbergh's departure from England so as to avoid kidnapping of his son Jon.

"Congress will fall in its duty to its citizens if it allows the justice department to remain crippled in its power to stop crime."

The justice department enters the crime prevention picture when federal property is involved or crime, notably kidnaping, certain state laws, state authorities having proved to match for desperadoes who may traverse half a dozen states in a day. Beyond this limit, "it may not go beyond the constitution."

Reasons advanced for greater federal control in the case of violence:

1. The central government is not hampered by state lines.
2. It is unlawful and exceedingly difficult for private persons to obtain firearms.

The administration's attitude hardens on the matter of relief expenditures.

Barrington Hills

The Country club was a gay and festive place New Year's Eve, and friends eager to meet their share of enthusiasm to the entertainment of the evening. The dinner was followed by a floor show and music for dancing. Many cocktail parties were given before the dinner. One was held at the Selden White home for dinner guests at the party. The Warren McCrackens had a large group of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Zander entertained a number, too, before the dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Beyer gave a cocktail party before the dinner to a number of friends and had no house guests over the holiday Mr. and Mrs. Vance Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Snyder from Chicago. The Beyer's have been making an extended visit in St. Louis with their daughter.

Mr. Edward Karstrom was at home Sunday afternoon to her friends from Chicago and the North Shore and also from Barrington. It is pleasant to have more and Mrs. Karstrom in the community.

The William Horne's kept open house New Year's day and received a large number of friends from Barrington and Chicago.

Last Friday Mrs. F. A. Record gave a tea for a few friends in compliment to Mrs. Alexander Heilmann. The Christmas tree still displayed its good cheer, and by a generously laden tea table the guests wished the Reichmanns all the pleasures and thrills that could be piled into the coming months.

Thursday afternoon Mrs. H. S. Hart is opening her home for the book review by Mrs. Hammond "Silas Crockett," by Mary Ellen Chase, will be reviewed.

Friday afternoon Mrs. James R. Cardwell is entertaining at tea for her niece, Miss Fannie Bradshaw, who is visiting her relatives in Chicago. Miss Bradshaw is in New York and has a school in Dramatic Art in that city. She also has a home in England at Stratford-on-Avon and takes her pupils over in the summer to abserch theatrical lore in that interesting Shakespearean atmosphere.

Patricia Durbin had a luncheon Tuesday for a number of her little friends. It boded her ninth birthday. In the afternoon the children went tobogganing and enjoyed other outdoor and indoor games.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex F. Reichmann are giving a cocktail party Sunday afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock to many of their friends. The Garden Club of Barrington has a large group of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Zander entertained a number, too, before the dinner.

Pen's Burial Place
William Pen is buried in the cemetery of the old Quaker meeting house at Jordan, in Buckinghamshire. The grave of the founder of Pennsylvania stands hardly knee-high.

Mrs. Arthur Crosby will talk on state parks and beauty spots of Illinois.

Mr. and Mrs. John Edmond will leave for Florida January 5 for an extended stay.

The Countywide Garden club will meet Friday, Jan. 3, with Mrs. Frank Bernard.

Hendee Fails to Gain From Early Returns of Election Vote

If the results of the Lake county clerk election recount of votes continue as in Cuba, E. A. Verson and precinct 1 of Deerfield County Clerk Russ Alford will not lose the office which was recently passed on to him after more than a year of court action. In these first precincts he recounted, the former clerk, Lew Hendee, received 1416 votes while Alford was credited with 971 votes and 9 objected ballots. This showed little variation from the official canvass return.

While the recount is in progress, Hendee, who is contesting the election of Alford, has been charged of alleged contempt of court return.

Judge Perry L. Persons yesterday dismissed the petition filed by Alford to have Hendee show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court for permitting the canvass board to make the Nov. 6, 1934, election returns show that he did not. Alford was elected county clerk.

Dancing All Day Annual Affair in Cornish Town

There is a town in England where, punctually at seven o'clock on a May morning every year the doors of the house are thrown open. And thereafter, until six in the evening, the people of the town, Helston, in Cornwall, high and low alike, dance through every house in the place and through the streets, all at a single tune, played by the village band.

The dancing marathon is known as the Purry, or Floral dance. It is lost in the mists of antiquity. It is at least as old as the town itself.

But Helston doesn't concern it. It is a writer in the New York Times. It dances and goes on dancing after the early morning hours of the day. It is a dance for children, all in their Sunday best, and their mothers. By mid-day the steps are set for the star turn. The couples for this part of the festivities dance by invitation only, and among them are usually a number of nobles. The men wear top hats, dress coats and ill-favored bow-ties; the women their smartest day gowns.

The one time to when the Helston dance is held is on the "antox." The words are sung to it by the dancers.

W.R.C. Installation

The officers of General Thomas Snowsby W.R.C. will meet Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Weaver, 111 W. Station street, to make final arrangements for the installation of officers to be held at a special meeting Wednesday evening in the Masonic temple. Mrs. Laura Robey, past department president of Illinois, will be installing officers. A special program will be given and refreshments served during the social hour.

Italy's Kings

King Bomba died in the fall of 1935 and his son, Francis II, dubbed "Bombino" by his subjects, succeeded him. The Bombino, however, was not the match for the revolutionists that his half-brother and his father had been, and consequently the landing of Garibaldi in Sicily in May, 1860, was the signal for a general uprising which in a few months had the Bourbon party in complete retreat. Garibaldi was hailed as the liberator, and by 1861 he was a mob-dictator. A junction with other Italian states under Victor Emmanuel followed.

Plan Dance

A Legion dance will be conducted some time during January, according to Harry Brand, chairman of the dance committee, who will make a report at the post meeting Thursday evening. All day was to make a report on the Christmas activities conducted by the Legion for boys and girls in Lake Zurich and Barrington.
