Animal Suicide

The question of animal suicide has been much debated. It seems more or less clear, however, that the actual intention of self-destruction is absent and that it is merely circumstances beyond the animal's control which cause the apparent deliberate death. One example is the lemming, the small Norwegian rodent, which appears in countless numbers every few years and marches steadily westward, eating everything in its way and finally plunges into the Atlantic to perish. The cause of this is evidently some primal instinct which is connected with the well-known natural law of overproduction in order to perpetuate the species.

What Punk is Made Of

Punk, also called German tinder, is a spongy combustible substance prepared from a mushroomlike fungus found on certain trees. It is manufactured in Germany. The fungus is gathered, peeled and the brown, spongy material remains. It is sliced and beaten until quite soft. It is converted into punk by boiling in a strong solution of alkali and then drying. The punk used in America is compressed into sticks.

About Hog Island

Discovered in 1772 by the French, Hog Island belongs to a group of barren rocks called the Quetzal Islands. It derives its name from the fact that an English captain liberated a few hogs on the tiny island a number of years after its discovery. The hogs promptly died, but the name stuck. Mariners came to know and dread the forbidding rock when several disastrous wrecks occurred on its shores.

Mother of Civilization
Throughout Egypt the mysticism of things wonderful still hangs about the marvelous relics of the past. Here is the real mother of civilization, great before Greece and Rome were born. In the valley of the Nile was reared the stupendous pyramids, temples and monuments in the highest form of architecture. Lost in the history of unknown ages is the strange past. Here is the great relic, its monuments to prehistoric times, its countless works of art, literature and imperishable ruins—these have ennobled the land and shrouded it in mystery.

Mozart, an Infant Prodigy

Mozart, the great composer, must be regarded as the classic example of an infant prodigy. He was only three when he began his study of music. A year later he was writing his first composition. At the age of seven Mozart could play the harpsichord, the organ, and the violin as well as the best-known musicians in Germany. One of his most extraordinary feats—transcribing Allegri's "Miserere" after hearing it only once!—was accomplished shortly after his fourteenth birthday.

High Priestess
In India everything pertaining to a family matter is settled by the older women, usually the grandmother. They are almost high priestesses of the home.

Local Brevities
