Handshake Is an Ancient Gesture of Friendliness

The handshake is an outgrowth of the old custom of extending the right hand, the weapon hand, unarmed, as evidence of peaceful intentions. It is an instinctive gesture of friendliness, and it carries the same significance today, writes Helen Bartlett in the Chicago Tribune.

Your handshake expresses your personality and disposition quite as much as other actions or words. It should be warm, firm, friendly, and express pleasure and cordiality. I have said that the hand clasp should be firm. To grasp a limp, characteristic hand is repulsive. But neither should it be so firm as to paralyze. When the art is mastered, the hand clasp is strong and brief without exaggerated pumping.

It is a spontaneous gesture and there are no rules of etiquette which force one to extend his hand if it is contrary to his disposition. It is, of course, exceedingly rude to refuse to shake hands when another offers. Some persons are so afraid of germs that they refuse to shake hands with anyone. The former shake hands far more often than do the latter, who always shake hands with each other when they are introduced or when two friends meet on the street. Women seldom do with men when they are introduced.

When men and women who are friends meet, it is the privilege of the woman to proffer her hand first if she is so inclined, although in the case of good friends, this gesture doubtless would be performed almost simultaneously. However, should a man offer his hand to a woman, she can do nothing but accept his friendly gesture without seeming curt and insulting.

Belgian East Africa
Belgian East Africa is divided into two distinct units—Ruanda and Urundi. Each is supervised by a resident, who supports the authority of the native chiefs and rules through them. The 5,000,000 natives are of Bantu stock, but the ruling caste are of the pastoral Wahima race.

Girl Scout Notes

Troop II at its regular troop meeting Friday afternoon, held an investiture ceremony. The girls who received their pins were Dorothy Frank, Evangelina Moun- dolo, Audrey Cameron and Edith Olson. The guests were furnished with appropriate programs in scout gear bearing a gold tref- fol. The program follows: Patrol corners, weekly dues and attendance takers, announcements, investiture ceremony, pledge of allegiance to the flag, the 19 Girl Scout laws, passing on of troop spirit, candidates invested and given their girl scout pins, new scouts light their candles from the troop flame and were welcomed into the group as the entire troop sang. Miss Grace Wandke, troop captain, was in charge.

Troop III held its regular week- ly meeting in room 19 of the public school because of the impas- sible condition of the cabin. Some of the girls will soon complete their second class work and are studying knots and a review of scout law.

Biester Outline Educational Ne at P-T.A. Mees

Speaker Criticizes Legis for School Appor tion Measure

Emphasizing this state for a regular program of education insuring a schooling for every child, Fred L. Biester, principal of Glen-High school, de- cerned legislative enact- ments of the local Teacher association at a meeting at the school auditorium Friday evening.

The last session's addi- tion of $2,500,000 to the state schools was described as a political juggling rather than appropriation resulting in attainment of educational goals.

A non-partisan, non-commission to develop a plan of public education and to the state legislators was a step toward the solution of school problems, the speaker stated. Regular appor- tion funds needed to maintain a high level of education, school of the state, rather than a political juggle, were needed, according to Biester.

At present, only one school district in the state has a power rate obligation. Miss Louise Laird, room the attendance price for the largest percentage of the present.

Delightful musical num- bers provided by the high school orchestra under the leadership of W. N. Sears and a social completed the program. Re- freshments were served by the second grade pupils.

Waukegan Man Frozen to Death in Storm Satur

James C. Tyrrell, Waukegan, was frozen to death Monday on the Adler estate near Berryville, after searching for the body for him since morning. His body was found for the porch of an unoccupied on the Adler property. The body, which was almost covered by a large snow piled up by the heavy storm night, was found by the Waukegan Police. The body was found on the Adler estate.

It was learned that Tyrrell accompanied by three other Saturday night, in Liberty they hired a cab to take home to Waukegan and a north on Milwaukee avenue, machine became stalled in snow near the county park. Tyrrell complained of the cold turned back for the cab. When it was brought, a stalled car, Tyrrell was in a search was started immediately and continued all through day.

Wells was shoveling on the Adler estate Monday morning and noticed a bit of Tyrrell's coat protruding from the bank. Investigating further uncovered the body.

Tyrrell is well known in county, having conducted a business in Waukegan for some time. He is survived by his widow one son, Jack, 17 years old.
