

Swarthout, Boles Star in "Rose of the Rancho" Show

Two Singing Stars in Feature at Catlow; May Robson
Coming Tuesday

Operative favorites, of a type never brought to the screen before, are an important part of the glamour and excitement of the new 26th Century production, "Metropolitan." The picture, starring Lawrence Tibbett, closes at the Catlow theatre tonight.

The operative selections sung by Tibbett in the first run the entire gamut of emotions.

First, there is the pithy scene finale of "Faust," with its ecstasy and despair; then the vibrant and amusing "Largo al Factotum" from "The Barber of Seville," followed by the tragic "Prologue" from "Macbeth," and finally the stirring, jubilant and romantic "Toreador Song" from "Carmen."

Commanded by Lela Wilson, Edward Everett Horton is starred in the Fox picture, "Your Uncle Dudley," which comes to the Catlow theatre Friday.

He enacts the role of a small-town booster who was just a flat tire to his girl until he woke up and ceased being a public nuisance.

Burgess Ford directed the picture, which also features John McGuire, Rosina Lawrence, Marjorie Gordon and Alan Dinehart.

More than 1000 players, in costumes ranging in type from debauchees of the "gay nineties" to whooping Indians, participate in one of the major scenes of "Annie Oakley." Barbara Stanwyck's new starring film based on occurrences in the life of the famous married woman. This feature is billed for Saturday.

The scene is a graphic illustration of the appearance of Buffalo Bill's Wild West show in Washington, D. C., almost 50 years ago. Seven hundred motion picture extras act as show spectators, while 50 exact the roles of ticket sellers, eldorado barkers and other attendants. In the arena, hundreds of Indians and cowboys portray a battle on the Western plains.

Four cameras were used to photograph the wildlife man, and four assistants add director George Stevens for the colorful scenes.

Prison Foster appears opposite Miss Stanwyck in "Annie Oakley." The role of "Jim Kearney" in Paramount's new musical romance "Rose of the Rancho," which comes to the Catlow theatre Sunday and Monday, is well suited to the handsome singing actor, John Boles, who is co-starred with Gladys Swarthout, the noted opera star.

Boles, in the picture, essays the part of a government agent, sent to Southern California to break up a band of land-grabbing desperadoes who are preying on the Spanish Dons.

During the World War, Boles served as a secret agent with the American army.

May Robson's latest starring vehicle, "Three Kids and a Queen" has been booked to play the Catlow theatre Tuesday, according to announcement made by Manager W. Catlow.

The picture is a fast-moving, comedy-drama by Chester Beckett and Harry Poppo, in which Miss Robson has a part which fits her like a glove. She is accompanied by wealthy old maid, whose relations attempt to have her adjudged insane in order that they may get control of her money, but who cunningly evades them and comes out.

Saving Time and Temper

LOUIE E. BRANDON

It was raining, so John and Mary were forced to remain in the house. It was also one of Mrs. Hopkins' busiest days, and she did not have much time for special attention to the children.

It would doubtless have been a trying time for all of them had not Mrs. Hopkins been the thoughtful mother and efficient manager that she was.

"I wish the rain would go away," wailed Mary, while John asked plaintively, "Mother, what can we play?"

Mrs. Hopkins was equal to the emergency. With very little loss of time from her work, she suggested interesting things for them to do.

"Make some canoes," she said. "As I shall these peas I will lay the largest shells here beside you. Get some toothpicks, Mary, and John will show you how to make a whole fleet of canoes by placing short cross-pieces of toothpicks inside the pea shells to hold them open."

This started the fun. After the canoes were floating in a shallow basin of water, wigwags were made from brown paper and ornamented with colored crayons.

These wigwags the children had often made before. The Indians, also, were as usual cut from paper. Then at their mother's suggestion short cross-pieces of toothpicks were followed for kettles. These were suspended from a tripod over a very real-looking fire of grey and orange crumpled paper.

The construction of the Indian village occupied a whole hour and by that time Mrs. Hopkins' work had taken her to the sewing room.

"What is in that paper bag you brought upstairs from the kitchen," asked her kidnappers with the help of Henry Armetta and his three kids.

Frankie Darro, William Benedict, and Billy Burrad, a new child discovery, play the three kids, while others in the cast are Charlotte Henry, John Miljan, Hale Hamilton, Herman Bing, Hedda Hopper, Laurence Grant, Harry Kolker, Tom Dugan, and Lillian Harmer.

On June 27, 1935, Pauline de Narvaez sailed from Spain under orders to explore and subdue Florida, then believed to be rich in gold and other treasure. Landing at Tampa Bay in April, 1528, with 400 men, he struggled overland to the mouth of the Apalachicola, where, in September, the survivors built fire-frail barges and in these attempted to reach the east coast of Mexico.

All perished except Alvar Nunez Cabeza de Vaca and three companions, who made their way inland and, after indescribable suffering, emerged, in 1536, on the Pacific, in northern Mexico. The story of their eight-year journey is one of the most dramatic chapters of the early history of travel and communication in America.

Mother?" asked John, as Mrs. Hopkins seated herself at the sewing machine.

"Dried beans," she answered, smiling. "And here is some pretty cretonne from which you can make the bags that are to hold the beans. Blue material for your bag; brown, and pink for Mary's."

"Oh, new bean bags!" they both cried with delight.

How happily the children worked! When the bags were finished, their mother showed them how to cut three holes in the top of a cardboard box and how to number the holes—10, 15 and 20—so they could have a new game of bean bag tossing.

Lunch time came before the children had tired of their bean bags, but when Mrs. Hopkins made the materials for sandwiches on the table and told them they might make their own, they were happy to change their occupation.

"Mother, why did you put these cookie cutters here?" Mary was all interest.

"So you could make your sandwiches heart-shaped, round, or like diamonds. They are very pretty made in that way. You may put the trimmings in the dish; I can find a use for them. Or, if you prefer, you may eat them. I have put your milk in these funny little fat bottles and you may drink it through these straws. Now I have some telephone to do, and when you have finished your lunch we will write several letters. Then I will show you some new games to play while I am preparing the evening meal."

"O, good! We like your games, Mother! We don't care if it rains every day! Do we, John?" John shook his head, and both children turned happily to their sandwich-making.

The author would like to call your attention to a book on Abyssinia and Edwin B. Frost's book for young people.

Ludmila Parzo, the author of "Abyssinia On the Eve," was sent to Abyssinia as a press correspondent when that country began to be the center of world interest. He spent three months there, visited the people of the interior, met the emperor and political leaders and also visited the desolated frontiers.

He found that this country has an interesting history and tradition and found it no easy task to investigate present conditions. The information he obtained is contained in his book.

"Let's Look at the Stars," by Edwin B. Frost. In this book the wonders of the sky are described in simple vivid language for boys and girls of 12 to 15 years by one of the world's most famous astronomers.

The author tells about the sun, moon, eclipses, planets, comets, meteors and constellations. Also the book has much fascinating information on observatories, telescopes and the methods of studying the skies.

It is lavishly illustrated from photographs made at the Yerkes observatory.

Snake's Venom Glands

The fangs of a poisonous snake consist of a pair of hypodermic teeth in the upper jaw connected with the venom glands in the temples. In some of the vipers they are long, slender needles, but others, such as the cobra, have stubby needles, like thorns on wild pig tusks.

Handshake is an Ancient

Gesture of Friendliness

The handshake is an outgrowth of the old custom custom of extending the right hand, the weapon hand, unarmed, as evidence of peaceful intentions. It is an instinctive gesture of friendliness, and it carries the same significance today, writes Helen Bartlett in the Chicago Tribune.

Your handshake expresses your personality and disposition quite as much as other actions or words. It should be warm, firm, friendly, and express pleasure and cordiality.

It is a spontaneous gesture and it carries the same significance today, writes Helen Bartlett in the Chicago Tribune. Your handshake expresses your personality and disposition quite as much as other actions or words. It should be warm, firm, friendly, and express pleasure and cordiality.

Bierster Outlines Educational Needs at P.-T.-A. Meeting

Speaker Criticizes Legislature for School Appropriation Measure

Emphasizing the state's need for a regular program of public school financing, adequate for every child in Illinois, Bierster, principal of the local high school, described the legislative enactments to the local Parent-Teacher association at a meeting of the school auditorium Wednesday.

That session's addition of the state fund for the purpose of maintaining a standard of education in all of the state, rather than the contributions, would insure adequate schooling for each child at present, only would the state legislators would be toward the solution of the problem, the speaker pointed out.

Regular appropriation of the state fund to maintain a standard of education in all of the state, rather than the contributions, would insure adequate schooling for each child at present, only would the state legislators would be toward the solution of the problem, the speaker pointed out.

Col. A. V. Smith, Prominent Man in Lake County, Dies

Colonel A. V. Smith, prominent figure in Lake county politics and member of the Lake county bar association, died suddenly Saturday night of a heart attack at the Victory Memorial hospital.

Colonel Smith served three times as state's attorney in Lake county and was president of the Lake County Bar association in 1933. He was a veteran of the World war and the 1916 expedition into Mexico.

He was first elected to office in 1920. He attained prominence in the prosecution of Leo Small, former governor, in a fraud charge case. Small was acquitted, but Smith later produced evidence for investigation on jury tampering charges. He ran for the office of representative in the Tenth congressional district but was defeated.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon in Waukegan with full military honors. He is survived by his widow, Bella, his mother, Mrs. W. B. Smith, and sister, Mrs. Cyrus Blodgett.

Forty members were present. Hostesses were: Mrs. Lee Landwehr, Mrs. Emma Heidman, Mrs. Henry Tonne, Mrs. Charles Henschberger, and Mrs. Clarence Sietzinger.

Mrs. William Nolte and baby son returned home from the Good Memorial hospital at Libertyville, Monday.

The supper which was to be given by Division 1 of the Ladies' Aid February 11 was postponed until February 14, and also the Ladies' Aid day in church was postponed until February 16 because of bad weather.

More Rats Than People

A single rat does far less harm in a year than one of the larger mammals, such as a lion, tiger or wolf; but the larger mammals of prey are comparatively few in number, while rats are exceedingly abundant. North America, or any other continent, has probably as many rats as people—possibly two or three times as many. The destruction wrought by this pest of rodents is far greater than that wrought by lions, tigers, wolves and all other animals mammals together.

Deaths

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Jeffries, 204 Coolidge avenue, are the parents of a daughter, Ann Lee, born Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hartley of Raymond avenue are the parents of a daughter, born Friday, Feb. 7.

Highway Patrolmen

Battle 20 Hours to Reach Injured Farmer

A 20 hour battle against storm was waged by Cook county highway patrolmen Sunday night at medical aid was pushed through blocked roads to the home of Melvyn Humphrey, Palestine township farmer, whose hands, feet, and face had been frozen Saturday night while he was searching desperately for his two young sons.

The boys, Thomas, 13 years old, and Melvyn Jr., 11 years old, attended a Boy Scout meeting in Palestine Saturday afternoon. They started for their home, about two and one-half miles from town, about the time the snow was struck, and their parents became anxious when they failed to arrive home.

Mr. Humphrey donned his heaviest clothing, took a shovel and on foot battled through the drifts to Palestine. He then turned back, still seeking his youngsters.

He fell exhausted into his front door, Mrs. Humphrey, realizing his condition was anxious called a doctor from Palestine, who endeavored to get through but failed.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN NEXT?

There is a deep interest in the question often asked now, What is to become of the unemployed when government aid quits or what is to become of the future generations with science and invention increasing the lessening need of labor? Looking back over the history of man in comparison to the present situation it is evident there is not and never has been any need of a world depression. They have come and gone in irregular succession of years measured always by the relentless indiscretion of the people of the age in which the depression occurred.

There is an abundance of labor needed now and there always has been. The law that governs necessary production is shortened only by the people of the age who have wasted or wrongly used surpluses in better times. If every improvement, repair or construction needed or desired could be taken care of, that is, if the people who desired to have work done could afford to have it done and pay for it, there would be little unemployment especially if people worked on a more equal basis of hours and wages. Education, training and apprenticeship has had a great deal to do in creating this change. When times were good it was difficult to get apprentices to work up in many lines of endeavor. It is surprising how many laborers there are now who do not know how to do ordinary work as it should be done or who are too careless to try.

When we are willing to admit it we find that debt, interest, taxes and competition, social as well as industrial have had more to do with creating our present state of affairs than over production of foodstuff or machinery. The creating of unequal opportunity through too great profits and accumulations, however, may be the result of indiscreet spending and investment by the producing classes, when there is no curb on industrial power.

Intellectual development and inventive progress should be to our advantage in civilization and they will always be if rightly used, and if not we will pay the price of our unrighteousness, judgment and manner of dealing with each other. The most unfortunate thing about the whole matter is that there are those who are not guilty who must of a consequence suffer along with the guilty. The future generation will either suffer or change conditions of social service.—Advertiser, Eldon, Mo.

NEWSPAPER MISTAKES

Lehigh Independent-Argus: Errors in newspapers are frequent, though it is the goal of one and all who claim to be journalists to eradicate the disease of mistakes. An editorial in the Lehigh, Nebraska World, published some time ago, expressed the situation and gives some advice which could be read over with profit every once in a while, both by newspaper folk and subscribers.

"Yes, newspapers make mistakes. There is no concealing the fact, because the errors themselves are spread where all the world may see them. But is there as much inaccuracy as people think? Probably not. Frank R. Kent of the Baltimore Sun, speaking at William and Mary College, makes a striking statement of the case, which may interest readers as much as it interests newspapermen. 'In no business and in no profession save that of the pure scientist,' he declares, 'is the premium of accuracy so high, the penalty for inaccuracy so prompt and the proportion of accuracy so great. There isn't a newspaperman anywhere who does not know that, trivial though his error may be, someone will catch it. Even when it escapes the watchful editorial gaze, even when no one in the office picks it up, even when he himself is unaware of it, there are still the old subscribers—thousands of them—vigilant, alert, aggressive, resentful, eager to put their finger on the 'break,' communicate with the editor and 'show up' the writer and the paper. These old subscribers, in my judgment, are by far the most valuable asset a newspaperman can have. Their militant, microscopic scrutiny is the finest possible corrective influence.'"

EDITORIAL SHORTS

Reputations wear out quickly when not taken care of. Nature can be improved a little, but not radically changed.

Some folks don't tell what they know, while other folks tell what they don't know.

The year 1936 may be a break for the girls, but to the pedestrian it is just another leap year.

The season is at hand when we shall see some of our most esteemed citizens and some not so highly esteemed, either "viewing with alarm" or "pointing with pride."

While safety slogans will help in making our streets and roads safer, we're going to have to go much farther than that.

B. C. Forbes, financial writer, points out that one Chicago business firm pays $10,000 in taxes every day, while another has to dig up 25,000 from men as its daily tax subscription. Sooner or later those business houses pay it, but the customer foots the bill in the long run, so no wonder we are all wondering where it will finally end.

Those who get things for nothing never fail to come back for another supply on the same terms.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN WASHINGTON

(Courtesy The United States News)

Is the "emergency" over—the emergency which was the declared occasion for many new deal laws? One tentative answer comes from the president, who announces the intention of cancelling more than a billion dollars of loanable funds authorized but unused. Half of this is in the account of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, which finds a demand for its funds practically over. These funds are borrowed from the public, not from the treasury, although the treasury guarantees repayment.

Another answer is provided by the stimulus of the expenditure for the relief of destitute unemployed are pouring out at a rate little diminished despite a quickened rate of industrial operations.

The American Federation of Labor reports an employment increase in the year of 4 per cent, a business increase of 21 per cent. Its estimate of jobs, 11,401,000.

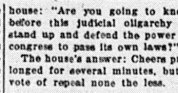

To clear up the debris left by the supreme court after its wreck, the new deal's farm control program, congress at the present suggestion, repeals three laws.

They are the Bankhead act for taxing cotton production in excess of 100,000 pounds, the act for limiting tobacco production and the Potato control act.

On none of these has the supreme court directly ruled, but its sweeping decision invalidating the processing tax and benefit payments as means of controlling farm production left no doubt of its attitude toward these laws.

The senate voted repeal unanimously in the year, against 351 votes for repeal, ten cast votes for no repeal.

One of the ten is Representative W. M. C. (Rep.) of New York, who thus questions the house: "Are you going to kneel before the judicial oligarchy or stand up and defend the power of congress to pass its own laws?"

The house's answer: Cheers prolonged for several minutes, but a vote of repeal none the less.

The battle over codes in industry, fought once under the NRA was struck down, is resurgent before the supreme court—but with the argument and industry in reversed roles.

This time the department of justice is suing the sugar institute to compel it to cease a system of open price announcements, which in effect, permits the fixing of prices by the 15 corporations belonging to the institute. Much is said that this action violates the antitrust laws, which were partially in the rights under the NRA.

The companies contend for the right to cooperate in protection of prices and to prevent "chiselers" from bringing about a price decline in the market.

Population of the United States as estimated for last July 1 by the bureau of the census, 137,521,000. It is an increase of 4,520,000 over the census of 1930.

Behind these figures lies a story of interest to business and to education.

That story is that in the past year, the average yearly increase in population has been only 304,000, contrasted with an average increase of 1,665,000 in the decade of the census, 1921-1930. It is an increase of 1,361,000 less than the average increase of 1,665,000 in the decade of the census, 1921-1930.
