Tire Man Repeats Old Warning to Motorists

This is the time of year when J. S. Gieske, local dealer for the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., starts emphasizing safety to motorists.

Some motorists tell me they have heard my story before," Mr. Gieske asserted. "I hate to tell the same story to them year after year, but the same old story tells some mighty important facts."

"Briefly, the story is this: Motorists should pay particular attention to tires when they check over their cars for spring and summer driving. If tires have worn smooth, they should be replaced."

There are many reasons for this—of which safety is paramount. Old, smooth, worn tires first of all offer no positive traction when a sudden stop must be made on a wet road or highway.

Then, too, old, worn tires do not offer the protection against blowouts that new tires provide."

He served the king of Prussia in the Eighteenth century. One of his personal exploits was to ride at a windmill in motion and dash between the sails without touching. He became a lieutenant general when still under forty. It was said he could handle 10,000 caravans with the same ease as he handled his own mount.

DO YOU KNOW ILLINOIS?

By EDWARD J. HUGHES
Secretary of State

The secretary of state of Illinois is the state librarian ex-officio. The state library and archive division under his jurisdiction contains much information concerning your state. Any questions which are of particular interest to readers and which are not covered in this series will be answered immediately. Address all communications to Edward J. Hughes, Secretary of State, Public Information Department, Capitol, Springfield, Illinois.

Q. Which is the largest supreme court district in Illinois?

A. The first supreme court district is the largest. This district is made up of 24 southern counties.

Q. How many circuit courts in Illinois?

A. There are 18 judicial circuits. Cook county comprises one entire circuit and has 29 judges. The other 17 are numbered and have three judges for each circuit. Circuit judges serve a term of six years. The circuit courts have both original and appellate jurisdiction in either civil or criminal cases.

Q. What is the distinction between civil and criminal cases?

A. A civil case is a controversy between private parties over private matters. A criminal case is a controversy in which the state is a party, where society as represented by the state's attorney seeks to enforce its laws regulating the conduct of individuals. A quasi-criminal case partakes of the nature of both the other cases.

Q. How many counties are in the seventh supreme court district of Illinois?

A. The seventh supreme court district is the smallest in the state having but five counties: Lake, Cook, DuPage, Will and Kane counties. For whose was Livingston county named?

A. For Edward Livingston, a lawyer and statesman, mayor of New York City, representative in congress from New York and later from Louisiana, Secretary of State under Jackson and United States Minister to France.

Q. What was the amount collected in Adams county for motor vehicle licenses last year?

A. $117,122.

Q. How many appellate court districts are there in Illinois?

A. There are four appellate court districts to which circuit judges are assigned by the supreme court.

Q. When was the "Rivers and Harbors" convention held?

A. In Chicago in July, 1847. The convention was attended by Abraham Lincoln. This was his first visit to Chicago.

Q. How many colleges and universities are there in Illinois?

A. There are 52 such libraries in the state. The University of Chicago being the largest with 1,077,633 volumes.

Q. When do the Illinois state conventions meet?

A. The Illinois state conventions are held on the first Friday after the first Monday following the April primaries. Each state convention nominates candidates for the electors of president and vice president of the United States and for trustees of the University of Illinois. Each adopts a party platform and selects delegates and alternates to the respective national nominating conventions.

After-Care of Spring Blooming Bulbs and What to Plant in the Bulb Beds

The end of May brings the wane of blooms from even the late tulips, and we must give the spring blooming bulbs some care to insure next year's blooms. Remove flower heads as they wither and thus conserve strength of the plants which would otherwise be thrown into seed production.

In the case of naturalized bulbs in the lawn, such as crocus or poet's narcissus, do not cut off the leaves with the lawn mower until the foliage turns brown.

In the cultivated tulip and hyacinth beds, apply a feeding of a complete balanced plant food immediately after the flowering period; and do not remove the foliage until it has begun to turn brown, thus enabling the bulbs to store up food for next year's bloom.

Now comes the problem of what to plant in bulb beds. Annual phlox, verbena, and petunias are all excellent annuals to sow. Lavender sweet alyssum, lilac queen, is a very good annual for use over bulbs. This variety opens white, but changes to lavender and deepens to purple. It is very hardy and will bloom very late. California poppy is another annual recommended for bulb beds. Portulaca is another shallow rooting little annual which often self-sows and is a satisfactory stand is obtained. replanting is not necessary.

If the fertility of the soil is maintained through feeding with a complete balanced plant food, it is really beneficial to have flowers following the bulbs, for the plants growing on the surface of the soil will help utilize the water in the soil and prevent the soil about the bulbs from becoming too wet.

Early German Violin-Maker

Jacob Stainer, who lived from 1621 to 1683, was a celebrated German violin maker. He was born in Aachen, in the Tyrol, the son of a peasant family. He began making violins when he was very young, and later studied at Cremona under the leading craftsmen of the time. Stainer led an extravagant life, which kept him usually in poverty, and he died insane in an asylum near his birthplace. His violins are very rare.

Junior College Movement

The beginning of the junior college movement reaches far back. As early as 1851 Henry Phillips Tappan recommended a differentiation between what he designated the collegiate and the executive parts of education, terms which meant preparatory and professional education.

Veritable Jane Withers will be the highlight of the Saturday night offering—Booth "Tartington's Gentle Julia." As Cupid's little helper, Jane turns things topsy-turvy in the little Indiana town which Tartington pictures so well.

Tom Brown, Marsha Hunt and Jackie Seale are in the cast with Jane, and together they make this offering of the Alwayr family a delightful piece of reality.

Zooming through the skies at three hundred miles an hour, eight people, passengers on a transatlantic airliner, live in dangerous unforgettable hours. The passengers include a runaway heiress, a fortune-hunting adventurer, a murderer, a mysterious doctor, a spoiled little rich boy, and his nervous governess.

With such a setting, and a cast headed by Fred MacMurray, Joan Bennett, Zasu Pitts, John Howard and Fred Kelsey, "Thirteen Hours By Air" comes to the Catlow theatre Sunday and Monday nights.

"A Night at the Opera," a famous story, becomes Shirley Temple's newest picture. It is scheduled for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights of next week.

Adapted from the beloved tale by Laura R. Richards, the picture is a heart-tugging drama of a lovely little girl and a sweet old sailor, set in a lighthouse on the rocky coast of Maine.

How Guy Kibbee loves and protects this tiny way he had picked out of the sea years before, how losses her to a vicious old Irish officer and eventually wins her back again is revealed in the fascinating plot of "Captain January."

Wallace Beery, Barbara Stanwyck and John Holes have the story in "Message on a String" which will conclude its run to night.

"No S. S. Classes" Ministers Vote to Protect Children

Fully appreciating the splendid effort on the part of our school and village officials to keep under control and at the earliest moment possible to eradicate from our community all cases of scarlet fever, we, the ministers of the cooperating churches of Barrington, wish to go on record as pledging to the above officials our most hearty cooperation.

We, therefore, in this way wish to announce that there will be no meetings of our respective Sunday schools and Young People's organizations on Sunday and during the days that follow until such time when we shall be advised that it is again permissible to convene in Sunday school and Young People's groups.

However, all other regular services of the churches will be held.

THE MERIT SYSTEM TO THE FORE

Interest in governmental affairs, heretofore limited largely to questions of taxation and administrative economy, is more and more being centered on personnel practices in the public service. This enlivened interest is due to the rapid growth in the number, complexity, and cost of governmental activities and to the manner in which those activities impinge upon the lives of all citizens.

National, state and local governments employ lawyers, doctors, educators, engineers, accountants, social workers, nurses, and other professional workers to a greater extent today than they did a decade ago. This is one reason why those engaged in professional work are interested in the quality of the service rendered by government and in the occupational opportunities for those who are trained and experienced in their specialties.

To focus greater attention on the need for following the merit system of public personnel administration, and to get action from policy-forming officials, unity among professional groups in all levels of government and in all geographical areas may be advised. Even greater pressure to eliminate political spoils from governmental operations can be exerted through the association of these professional groups with powerful and socially minded civic organizations. Enactment or adoption of laws and ordinances which would establish or extend the merit system in government is not enough if these laws are to be sympathetically carried out and are not to be sabotaged through poor administration, it is essential that all professional and civic groups in any jurisdiction make their influence felt by demanding that governors, mayors, and other appointing officers name only public-minded citizens of recognized integrity to such posts as civil service commissioners.

It is equally necessary that public personnel agencies be given adequate funds and technically qualified staffs in order to perform properly the many services that are expected of them by the operating department.—Ft. Pierce, Fla., Tribune.

These economists who think competition a bad thing never tried to get service from a man who had no competition.—Detroit Free Press.

HOME EDUCATION

"The Child's First School Is the Family"—Froebel

Issued by National Kindergarten Assn. 8 W. 40th St. New York

Unhappy at School

Have any of you had the problem of moving from a quiet district where the school was a pleasant instruction almost individual, to another district where the school was large and heterogeneous and the instruction necessarily mass instruction? A little boy or girl finds it difficult to adjust to such a change. The stricter discipline on the part of teachers and the difference and even roughness of many of the other pupils is apt to make the bewildered stranger quite unhappy.

Seven-year-old Joyce had just this experience.

"Mother, I can't go back to that school!" she declared on the evening of the first day, as she was being tucked into bed. "The teacher is cross all the time. The children play so roughly and make such a noise! Please, please, don't make me go back," she begged.

Although the mother's heart ached, she concealed her feelings from her unhappy little girl.

"Joyce," she answered, "you work well, and be as good as you can, then the teacher won't be cross with you."

But when the little one went sadly to school morning after morning and cried quietly when in bed at night, the mother felt that something must be done.

"Joyce," she said one morning, "take this bunch of red roses that I've picked in the garden to your teacher. Take this jar to put the flowers in. Fill it with water—your teachers are good people."

"No," the girl shook her head. "I don't like teacher. She's too cross. I don't want to take her flowers!"

"Take them from me, say Mother sent them," answered the woman, with understanding. She had been a teacher herself, once.

"All right, Mother!"

At noon Joyce rushed home to lunch, beaming.

"Teacher loved the roses, Mother. I want to take her some from myself tomorrow, May I?"

"Yes," answered the mother, smiling and feeling satisfied that her plan had worked. She had another. "Who sits next you at school, Joyce?"

"Mary Smith from the corner house. She plays with all the children and has fun. I don't play with any one," wistfully.

"Ask her to come home with you. Tell her to bring her doll."

"But I don't know her. She mightn't come."

"Yes, she will," said the mother, who was sure of her plan.

It required courage to phone this stranger, to tell her how much she wanted a friend for Joyce, but the request was received in a friendly manner. Mary, a large, jolly, wholesome girl of eight, came with her doll. The mother suggested a doll party in the garden and later rejoiced to see the two girls enjoying themselves.

Next morning Joyce's face lit up as she started for school. Mary was calling to her from the corner. This friendship was fostered by the wise mother.

She had still another plan. She sought the teacher's acquaintance, better missing an opportunity to speak to her, not about Joyce, but of things in general, taking pains to show the mother's understanding and sympathy.

This teacher of 50 boys and girls came to connect Joyce with her mother. The child stood next, became a well-known little girl in the teacher's consciousness, not just a pupil in a seat.

Gradually school lost its terrors and Joyce tripped gaily off in the morning, her heart as light as a seven-year-old's should be. One day she ran home breathless.

"Mother, there's a new little girl in the class. She's just as good as I did. She cries behind the door all through recess. May I bring her home to play?"

"Yes, dear, do," answered the mother.

So three little girls romped and played together and went hand in hand to school. Joyce had learned to adjust herself to school life, and best of all, through her own experience, had learned to feel for another. What finer lessons could she have learned?

WHAT'S GOING ON

(Courtesy The United States News)

Every veteran who attends national conventions of legions and vets will recall Sergeant Samuel Woodfill whom General Pershing called the "outstanding American soldier of the World War."

When the war began, Sergeant Woodfill was a Lieutenant in the Fifth (Red Diamond) division.

In the Meuse-Argonne while in charge of a company of infantry, he advanced ahead of his company, destroyed two machine gun nests, killed 19 enemy soldiers. His action so inspired his command that they pressed on and attained their objective. Woodfill was gassed and wounded by shrapnel in the encounter.

Six nations decorated him for bravery and when the war was over he was extensively feted. Congress presented him with a sword, in his honor, the New York stock exchange suspended for 3 minutes when he came on the floor, he occupied a theatre box with President Wilson and was a guest of Marshall Foch.

Thirteen years ago he was retired at his rank of sergeant and drew sergeant's retirement pay. A bill was introduced to retire him with rank of captain and give him captain's retirement pay.

The war department and the pension's committee of the house rejected the bill. It would have meant an increase of $11 per month in his pension. What a fleeting and transitory thing the glory of war really is.

From a vast amount of expert and expert testimony presented to congress in connection with a proposed bill to modernize the legislation governing the handling of the nation's capital can be discerned the unmistakable threat of progress in the handling of children and the changing social attitude toward children.

Hundreds of years ago, children were regarded as the wards of the king. There was no common law procedure to deal with them, so that cases affecting children, went through the king's chancellor who was regarded as keeper of the king's conscience. The attitude of the king and the realm was that children needed no protection from the ruler but rather that the ruler and the state needed protection from children.

Consequently, they were tried for offenses just as an adult criminal was tried, jailed with adults where they became more prone to crime. Children could be hung for 160 separate offenses.

In the last hundred years there has been a change in attitude. First came reformatories to segregate children from adults. Then came the idea of probation and a second chance. Then came the notion of separate courts for the handling of children and child offenders. Chicago and Denver were the pioneers in the setting up of juvenile divisions in the court so that children might be tried apart from adults. This idea has been written into the statutes of 21 jurisdictions but only enough, a rather rigid, inflexible, ancient and criminal procedure still exists in the nation's capital.

When the deficiency appropriation bill, containing appropriations for continuation of the Tennessee Valley authority (Muscle Shoals) was before the house, it was observed that in contravention of the rules, the committee had inserted a legislative provision, changing the name of the Pickwick Landing dam to McHenry's dam in honor of Sam D. McHenry, member of congress from Tennessee.

This proposal irked other members from Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi. It also irked Congressman Moore, chairman of the military affairs committee which had much to do with Muscle Shoals. Then began a concerted effort to direct Mr. McHenry of the honor and if that couldn't be done, then to name some of the other active members of the house who had been active in the TVA development.

There was a suggestion that one dam be named after a dead man. The whole matter ended when Congressman Short of Missouri offered an amendment to the effect that each sitting democratic member should be honored by having a public project costing not less than $10 million dollars named in his honor.

Mists are really money warrens. We have one in Denver.

Warning to Troublemakers

Jud Tunkins says the man who makes trouble must be surprised if he finds he has manufactured a big stake that he can't get off his own hands.

4-H Club an Educational Movement for Boys, Girls

The 4-H club is a rural educational movement for boys and girls between the ages of ten and twenty years, inclusive, each project of which is designed to stimulate interest in more home activities, whether it be raising a garden, raising pets, keeping personal accounts, making a dress, or refurbishing a room.

The movement had its origin in certain of the farmers' institutions and the public schools of Ohio, Illinois and Iowa in 1880, relates a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and is now a part of the co-operative extension system of the United States Department of Agriculture and state agricultural colleges. Dr. S. A. Knapp of the federal Department of Agriculture gave it impetus at the time of the coming of the soil wealth by stressing the demonstration work of boys and girls in the South as a means of improving rural home conditions, and teaching diversified agriculture to meet the problem brought about by this pest.

In 1914 increased funds from federal, state and county sources stimulated the movement, which spread rapidly into all the states.

The club work of the boys and girls is promoted by county agricultural agents, home demonstration agents, county club agents, and the agricultural and home economics extension specialists of the federal and state co-operative agricultural extension system.

The club was named by G. H. Benson of Iowa, in 1904, who was at that time a county superintendent of schools.

Rhodes Founded on a Rock

Rhodes was founded on a Rock, the rock, a sunny, rose-crowned island at the entrance of the Aegean archipelago. For many years as the attraction there has been the "City of the Knights" with its formidable walls and medieval palace.

centuries, inhabited by primitive peoples of the Mycenaean and Thracian civilization, the island was colonized by the Dorians in 1000 B. C. and in the First century came under the Roman influence.

In 1522 the first of the Crusades entered Rhodes. They were followed by the Order of the Knights of St. John, who established the military towns and fortresses and for centuries made the island the bulwark of Christianity in the Near East.

Elgin Parkside

Meet Local Nine Here This Sunday

Sabbath Libertyville 7 to 2

Saturday: Trim Dundee Sunday

The Barrington Bears emerged victors in two contests held over the week-end with teams from Libertyville and Dundee. The Bears beat the Libertyville boys on the local field Saturday by a 7 to 2 score and traveled to Dundee Sunday to take the other contest by a 11 to 2 score. Al Heitman pitched for Barrington Saturday and Charlie Altenburg did the twisting Sunday. The victories over the week-end stretch the win column to four wins with no losses. Willie Altenburg made his first appearance of the season for the Barrington Bears and played in both games. He counted for a homer in the Sunday's game and connected with several other nice shots. Al Heitman pitched Saturday's game and allowed seven hits while two runs were scored. Heitman was never in trouble at any time, bearing down when ever pressed. Altenburg had an easy time in controlling the situation at Dundee Sunday.

Elgin Parkside will meet the Bears on the Barrington field this Sunday in what should be the toughest game so far in the season. Heavily strong, it is expected that the Parkside will cause some trouble for the local boys.

Homes of the Snapping Turtle

The snapping turtle inhabits muddy rivers, lakes and ponds in all parts of America from Canada to the Equator. It will wait for hours on end with only its nostrils above the surface, to allow it to breathe. But when the necessity arises, it can remain below the surface for a long time. It crawls along the bottom seeking food, which mostly consists of fish, with occasional small water fowl. Food is roughly torn to pieces between the jaws and front claws, and this animal seems to be completely carnivorous. Like all the other species which inhabit water, one has long webbed feet, each having long coarse nails.

Painting By Local Girl Wins First Award in Contest

Miss Gwendolyn Wolf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Wolf, 248 W. Lincoln avenue, received a gold medal as first place winner in an art contest sponsored by the northern Illinois district of the Waltham League in the Waltham League Talent Quest held Sunday afternoon at Concordia Teachers' college in River Forest. Several hundred exhibits were shown in various types of work.

Miss Wolf exhibited a water color painting entitled "Dawn". As a result of winning the highest award in the district exhibit, Miss Wolf's picture will be entered in competition in an international show to be held at Houston, Tex., July 12 to 16. She represented the local Waltham League of St. Matthew's church.

Rev. and Mrs. A. T. Kretzmann and Miss Lorraine Maicke of Barrington attended the exhibit. The choir of St. Matthew's church participated in a massed chorus of 2000 voices at the meeting held in River Forest Sunday.

Field Museum Making Survey of Purple Martin Colonies in Community

Residents of Barrington have been asked by Rudyard Boulton, of the Field Museum of National history, to make a survey of Purple Martin houses and colonies in this community. The museum is making the survey to gain information concerning the population of the Martin family.

Mrs. Clifford Scott, member of the Barrington Bird club, will have charge of the local survey and for the convenience of persons interested in the information can be telephoned to her. The survey will be made between the days of June 4 and June 9 and those having Purple Martin houses or knowing of colonies are asked to call her at Barrington 212-W. A careful record will be kept and the totals forwarded to the museum. Mrs. Scott reported.

The location of the bird house, street address, park, or country location, is requested with the number of compartments in each house and the number of individuals in each colony, by actual count if possible. Also a list of unoccupied houses is requested.

Robert Mundhenk of Polo is spending two weeks at the Robert Mundhenk home in Barrington. He will be graduated from Barrington high school this year, having completed his grade and high school work in Barrington with the exception of a few months spent in the school at Polo this spring.

The following young people from Barrington enjoyed a drive over Black Hawk trail Saturday and had dinner in Rockford: Evelyn Grabenker, Amy Anderson, Esther Plieger, Ruth Schulte, Rena Schaefer, Carl Anderson and Russell Brower.

Mr. and Mrs. John Foose returned to Barrington Saturday after spending a two weeks vacation in the West. Mr. Foose formerly lived in Colorado. He is now manager of the A. and P. store of Barrington.

The O. J. Lere family moved from 430 June terrace to 420 June terrace Monday.

Rev. W. L. Whipple of Arlington Heights and Rev. H. L. Eagle of Barrington exchanged pulpits Sunday.

Commencement exercises for graduates of Barrington high school, planned for Wednesday this week and postponed upon the closing of high school, will be held in the school auditorium Sunday evening.

The only change in the program previously outlined will be that Rev. H. L. Eagle, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal church, as commencement speaker, instead of Dr. Charles Gilkey, dean of University chapel, University of Chicago, who was to have given the talk but found the postponement of commencement exercises a hindrance.

The exercises will start at 8 p. m. and P. L. Anderson, president of the school board, will preside. The class will be garbed in grey and gowns.

The complete program for the evening is as follows: Invocation—Rev. C. R. Drueger; Selection—Orchestra; Commencement address—Rev. H. L. Eagle, Barrington Methodist Episcopal church; Vocal solo—Miss Hazel Carter; Presentation of diplomas—W. D. Dettmer, member of board of education; Presentation of awards—Ernest B. Smith, superintendent of schools; Benediction—Rev. H. L. Eagle.

The class program planned for Monday evening will be held in the school gymnasium Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The same list of events as planned at the school given at that time. Following the schedule:

"Meet the Class of '36"—Introduced by our president, Glen H. Ser.

"Take Notice of Our Accomplishments"—Betty Plieger.

"Listen to Our Final Request"—Mary Capelli.

"Be Entertained by One of Our Singers"—Pauline Herger.

"Take a Look into the Future With Us"—Jack Fletcher.

"Watch Us Present Our Class Gift"—Alfred Castle.

"Hark Ye! to the Class Poem"—Written by Jack Fletcher and read by Esther Subr.

"Hear Us Sing Our Songs"—Words by Esther Subr; music by Pauline Herger.

E. B. Smith, superintendent of schools, reported that Sunday's exercises are for adults and children below high school are not attend. He also stated that reports will be delivered to the children's homes and they are not to call for them at the school building.

The decision to hold the exercises was reached Tuesday night after the school board had conferred with health authorities and parents of pupils in the graduating class.

Mrs. R. R. Hammond Tells Club How to Plan Garden Beautification

The Village Garden Club of Barrington held a regular meeting in the home of Mrs. Karl Hajtje Monday afternoon.

Mrs. R. R. Hammond, speaker for the afternoon, discussed the planning of a garden for a succession of blooms.

"Planning for a succession of blooms," said Mrs. Hammond, "is the first accomplishment in the work of art for the gardener. One should plan a garden for beauty the year round." She then listed garden plants according to the season of blooms:

"Evergreens provide bloom in the winter garden and form a lovely background. In the early spring come plants of a bulbous nature, such as tulips, crocuses, snowdrops, violets, narcissi, and finally tulips."

June provides our third period of bloom, and it is here that we have the greatest color assortment. In delphinium, roses, day lilies, cornflowers, salvia, and many other flowering plants.

In midsummer we have big hollyhocks, salvia, and veronica and our final period of bloom the fall, our hardy asters and chrysanthemums."

Assisting Mrs. Hajtje during the social hour that followed the program were Mrs. Collins and Mrs. Schult.
