"Marine Store Dealer"

When a sailing ship came into port in the old days a man used to go aboard and bid for the old sails that had been torn by tropical storms. He was also given odd lengths of rope and all the junk accumulated during a voyage of many months. "Marine store dealer" was the man's title, and he dealt with ships which sailed the Seven seas. Later there was little for the marine store dealer to do—the big shipping lines managed their own affairs. As his trade with ships waned, the dealer started to buy rag, old bottles and the like from houses in neighborhood towns. Now he had become the unromantic rag-and-bone man—though still his official name is marine store dealer.—Pearson's Weekly.

Silver-smith's Guide

The Chinese silver-smith's guide is reported to have a history dating back to the Chin and Han emperors, more than 2,000 years ago, but the large modern silver-smith's shops familiar to the resident in Shanghai did not come into existence until the end of the Eighteenth century.

No Baby Clinic to Be Held This Month

There will be no child health conference this month owing to reports of contagious diseases in the vicinity, it was reported today. The clinic, which would ordinarily be held in the village hall Tuesday afternoon, will be eliminated this month and regular meetings will be resumed in August, according to Mrs. James Heffner, chairman of the child welfare committee of the Barrington Woman's club which sponsors the clinic and assists the rural public health nursing service in charge of the project.

How many left-handed kings are there in the annals of history? The first left-handed king was Sargon, a Scythian, who ruled in the seventh century B.C. (Sargon, the Sargon of Akkad, was a different monarch.)

A German general says bees can be enrolled as spies. They are strong business instincts and can carry messages by means of varying colors painted on their backs.

Former Resident Dies

Word was received here last week of the death of Walter Stratford of Santa Monica, Calif. Mr. Stratford was a former resident of Barrington and is survived by his wife and widow and little daughter. Mrs. Stratford was Amanda Sandman before her marriage.

Motoring East

Dr. and Mrs. Earl E. Kleinwachter left Friday for a motor trip south and east. They were planning to stop at Mammoth Cave, Ky. and Lookout Mt. and to spend several days at Washington, D. C. It was reported.

Cape Hatteras

Cape Hatteras is a low extent of land on the North Carolina coast, forming a part of a sandbar. Here the coastline turns from northeast to due north and severe storms are frequent; so are shipwrecks. The first Hatteras lighthouse was built during John Adams' administration. This first structure of sandstone, 132 feet high, was completed in 1798. It was located more than a mile from the shore, but the Atlantic kept eroding and eating away the sandy hook that forms the dangerous cape until the old tower had to be abandoned in 1870.

How Indians Tanned Hides

One process used by the Indians in tanning deer hides was first to scrape off all fat and flesh adhering to the hide and the skin rinsed out in water repeatedly. It was a long and tedious process to create a really fine piece of buckskin, states a writer in the Detroit News, but the Indians didn't mind for they had plenty of time on their hands and, anyway, the skins were most of the work. Two kinds of buckskins were created; one was white and the other smoky-tanned. The last was repeatedly smoked during the tanning process over a small fire with plenty of smoke. After many weeks of labor the hides would be ready for fashioning in garments.

Alaska's Vegetables

Although the Alaskan summer is short, the country grows everything on a large scale. For instance, potatoes two pounds each, Celibags weigh forty pounds. The blossoms on sweet peas are as large as roses. The violet, as large as a daffodil, grows on a stem a foot high. Plenty of rain with long days of sunshine make up for the short growing season.

Base Milk Raised

By Pure Milk Groom

Pure Milk association members will receive a gross price of 10 cents per hundred pounds over the conditional price for 3 1/2 grade milk. It was announced this week by John P. Case, president of the association, following a conference with Chicago milk distributors. This price applies to 100 percent of base and is effective beginning July 15.

All milk delivered in excess of 100 percent of base will be paid for at ten cents per hundred pounds over conditional price. Case indicated that this agreement will be in effect until further notice. All farmers will the price of the basis of to. b. country plant a leading platform.

Local dealers reported Wednesday that they had taken no action as yet on price increases to consumers as have dairies in other communities.

"Dairy farmers in the Chicago milk shed are facing ruined pastures and an acute feed situation because of drought conditions now existing," declared Case. "Therefore, a price increase is welcome news to our membership."

The agreement with Chicago milk distributors represents an increase of 15 cents over the 35 cent spread over conditional price, or a total of 50 cents over the 25 cent and 20 cents over conditional price spread for the month of June. The base increase represents an increase of 10 percent over the arrangement for first half of the month, and 15 percent over the June method of base payment.
