"The King Steps Out" Billed for Sunday, Monday

"Bullets or Ballots" Closes Friday; Varied List Scheduled

The leading role in "Bullets or Ballots," now being shown at the local theatre, affords Edw. G. Robinson all the opportunities for characterization which his former success as "Little Caesar" gave him. In this story he plays the part of a hard-boiled detective who puts his skill against the brains behind the racketeers.

Joan Mondell and Frank McHugh head the important cast of featured players; the film closes its run Friday night.

On the Saturday bill, Pathe News editors will devote five minutes to new and intimate scenes in the daily life of the Dionne Quintuplets.

The feature number for the evening is titled "Palm Springs," and has for its stars Frances Langford and Rip Rody.

It offers a modern Arabian Nights setting as a background for the antics, the fun and the music to be found in feature.

Comedy, oddity and the 9 p. m. gift event will round out the Saturday program.

"The King Steps Out," playing Sunday and Monday, has for its stars, Grace Moore, Franchot Tone and Walter Connolly, with a background of hauntingly beautiful music from the pen of Fritz Kreisler.

This new production of Miss Moore's takes her out of the milieu of grand opera and spots her in a madcap adventure in days of Imperial Austria. Vienna then was an enraptured city of light, music, wit, gaiety and romantic adventure.

The film recaptures all this in telling the story of the lyric lark of a divine songstress who stole a king on his wedding day.

A color cartoon, late news, community singing and a new Charlie Chase comedy are added items for this bill.

Much interest centers in the film, "Dracula's Daughter." The eerie, weird and grotesque, add spice and variety to movie fare, and it is with this thought in mind that the Catlow is offering this bizarre incursion into the realm of the supernatural. It will be shown at bargain night prices Tuesday.

Readers of all schools will remember "The Suicide Club," which was and still remains the opening story of editions of Robert Louis Stevenson's group of Arabian Nights translations. "Trouble for Two" is an adaptation of the story.

The fantasy, romance and adventure of the old tale make excellent film fare, especially when Robert Montgomery, Rosalind Russell and Frank Morgan are entrusted with leading roles.

Most everyone will recall the unusual experiences of the reckless young prince who deliberately sets out to get his fill of adventures before a royal decree compels him to marry a princess for whom he has no love.

It is scheduled for screening Wednesday and Thursday.

90 Glimmering Birthday Candles for Mrs. Johanna Krueger Saturday

A host of friends and relatives gathered with interest and excitement to celebrate the birthday of Mrs. Johanna Krueger at the home of E. F. Wichman, 123 Hillside avenue, on Saturday, August 6.

Mrs. Krueger, daughter of E. F. Wichman, assisted by the

Mrs. Krueger's many friends to visit with her.

Mrs. Krueger was born at Granzelitz, Germany August 8, 1846 and was six years of age when her parents died. She was reared and educated by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Meyer. She was united in marriage to Gustav Krueger at Kirchbengendorf October 15, 1865.

The couple moved to America in 1868, arriving here April 22. They settled on a farm near Barrington where they remained until 1879 and then moved into the village.

With the exception of six months spent at Champaign, Ill., the couple lived near or in Barrington until the time of Mrs. Krueger's death March 24, 1916.

Ten children were born to their union. Mrs. Krueger now has 12 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

She enjoys good health and constantly reads or does crocheting. In spite of her many years, it is not necessary for Mrs. Krueger to wear glasses except for fancy-work.

Mrs. Krueger is one of the former members of St. Paul Evangelical church as well as being a charter member of the Women's Union in which she now holds an honorary membership. To prove her spiritiveness she attended the annual outing of the Women's Union Federation held at Bensenville Thursday.

club, the latter players being interscholastic doubles champions. It is expected that exhibitions in men's and women's singles will also be held but the card has not been arranged as yet.

Three Prairie Fires Are Extinguished by Department This Week

Barrington volunteer firemen called out three times during the last week to extinguish prairie fires. Two calls were received Thursday, one for a blaze in the acreage on the east side of the Chicago, Northwestern railroad tracks between Wood street and Northwest highway and another for a prairie fire in Cook's subdivision that was threatening an empty gasoline station on the Northwest highway on the north-west side of the village.

The apparatus was called again Sunday afternoon to extinguish a fire that was burning off brush on the Buckley property in Cuba township.

Village to Accept $10,000 to Help Pay for Outfall

natural condition during the summer months in this area will in all likelihood become purged.

"If the sanitary sewage were to be emptied into the creek at the plant it is entirely likely that the village would be blamed at all times in the future for illegally causing the putrid condition of the stream waters west of the plant when, as a matter of fact, such condition as it exists will be due to causes over which the village will have no control. By separating the outlets and by carrying the effluent further down the stream this condition can be removed.

"The construction of the outfall sewer provides a permanent improvement. Condemnation of the right of way along the creek would only at most be a temporary expedient; until such time as the growth of the community would require a change.

"Further that the outfall sewer is a better improvement because it is more economical. The outfall sewer is to cost approximately $12,000.00, as recently changed. Of this amount, the village has, or will, receive a grant of between $16,000.00 and $20,000.00 in addition to the $10,000.00 provided to be paid by Mr. Cardwell, representative of the estate owners.

"If the village were to empty its sewage effluent into the creek at the plant it would be necessary to condemn the right of way. It is reasonable to suppose that any jury would award for damage to the property at least $10,000.00 and upwards. It is also reasonable to estimate that the cost of this condemnation by legal fees, expert witnesses, etc., would be at least $5,000.00 and $10,000.00.

"Therefore, if we reasonably estimate the relative costs of these two improvements I believe we clearly realize that the building of the outfall is cheaper for the village. As to whether it is better, I am sure that any one must agree that the building of the outfall provides a better and more desirable improvement than emptying the effluent into the creek at the plant.

"Negotiations for this money were underway for a considerable period of time. I am satisfied it is the best settlement that could be obtained from the estate owners at this time. For the reasons above set out I heretofore recommend to the board that this proposition be accepted and I now suggest that the village proceed with the completion of this agreement.

Yours truly,
DAVID B. MALONEY

NO CHANCE?

Horatio Alger made a name for himself by writing books about something that is peculiarly American—the fact that every man in this country has a chance to win fame and fortune no matter what his start in life. In recent years, however, a lot of malcontents and demagogues have been taking advantage of the depression to insist that all that is changed.

The facts are that the depression slowed up the speed with which everybody was getting ahead. But something that happened in West Virginia the other day shows that the country of which Horatio Alger wrote still exists.

Twenty-two years ago, a lad of 15 went to work at the bottom of the ladder in the Carnegie Steel company plant at Sharon, Pa. He served in the World war as an aviator, and afterward for a time travelled around as a "barnstorming" stunt flier.

Later, this same lad, then a young man, worked as a mechanic, a riveter, and a salesman. In 1925, he joined the Weirton Steel company as a salesman. In January, 1929, he became assistant sales manager; in May, 1931, he was appointed assistant to the president, and in July, 1934, he was elected a vice president.

The other day, the Weirton Steel company elected that same man as its president—T. E. Millson. He probably is, at 37, the youngest high executive in the steel industry.

His start from scratch, and his rise to the presidency of one of the biggest steel companies in the land is just one of thousands of similar cases. But the malcontents and demagogues can't afford to admit it for such an admission would make their arguments look as silly as they are.

Children Vs. Spinach
By LOUISE S. QUICKENBUSH
"Oh, I wish I knew how to make Bobby eat spinach, without a fuss," said young Mrs. Bates, with a sigh.

Marty had just stopped in for a neighborly call. She was the community counselor and mother confessor, and a more sensible woman it would be hard to find anywhere. "Why make him?" she asked unexpectedly, from Marty.

"Why?" gasped the younger woman. "Everybody knows children must eat spinach."
"I suppose that's what you tell Bobby with each helping. 'Eat it, it's good for you,' the doctor says so."

Mrs. Bates just stared at her visitor and said nothing.
"Children quite naturally regard everything that's 'good for them' as medicine, and revolt is to be expected. When I was a child I liked asparagus, until I heard some grownup remark: 'It's good for the blood.' Then I changed to lemon soda."

"But, spinach is good for children," insisted Mrs. Bates.
"Certainly," agreed Marty. "As a vegetable, but not as a medicine. Listen," continued the older woman, with a smile. "You know I rarely gossip, but I must tell you of the conversation I overheard the other day from my open window."

A group of youngsters who had congregated in my back yard were discussing Spinach. Little Ruthie exclaimed, 'I eat it when it makes me feel like a hero.' 'That's not true at all,' retorted Jane, 'because I eat spinach and my hair is as straight as can be.' Roger was the next to speak. 'I eat it because my mother cooks it, I suppose.' Then Jack, 'I can hardly swallow the stuff. It isn't bad enough to have to eat the spinach, but my mother puts it on the same plate with the rest of my dinner, so I have to eat everything soaked in green juice.' Marty paused a moment, then asked: "Would you like to hear how my sister solved the spinach problem?"

"Yes," eagerly nodded Mrs. Bates.
"Sister Edith has four children. Three of them have always liked spinach, but Buddy was a reactionary and there was a battle royal every time spinach was served. But a wise general knows when to change tactics, so Edith changed hers. Before she served lunch she asked Buddy if he wished any spinach. Buddy could hardly believe his ears, because heretofore he had not been consulted. So he answered: 'No thank you.'"

"Edith prepared luncheon as usual except that this time she really gloried the dish of spinach. It was well drained and chopped fine, seasoned just right and buttered, and instead of garnishing with merely sliced eggs, she arranged the spinach on a hard boiled egg—yellow center and white petals. It looked so pretty, the children lingered over the meal. Buddy's mouth dropped when he was omitted; no one paid any attention to him. The next time he was asked whether he wanted any spinach he replied, 'Yes, please.'"

"But, I'm nearly five," cried Marty, jumping up to go. "and talking about spinach has given me an appetite. I think I'll cook some."

After Mrs. Bates closed the door upon her caller, she repeated to herself, "It is a good general who knows when to change his tactics." But Marty had returned and was saying, "I came back only to remind you that if all else fails, there are other vegetables that have bulk, iron and salts. Why wrangle?"

WHAT'S GOING ON

WASHINGTON

(Courtesy The United States News)

As crops continue to wither beneath rainless skies and as meadows dry up leaving cattle bellowing amid the dust, state governors and other officials implore the federal government for aid in a catastrophe declared by secretary of agriculture Wallace to be one of the worst in American farm history.

Three regular agencies are directly concerned in rendering help. First, the department of agriculture surveys the need. It modifies its soil conservation program so as to route additional benefit payments to drought-stricken farmers who replace their lost crops by acreage planted to soil-conserving ones.

Second, the works progress administration offers employment to farmers who are left destitute by the ruin of their crops. Road work, transfer of cattle to more favorable areas and similar tasks engaged them in.

Third, the resettlement administration steps in with immediate succor, feeding human beings and farm animals when necessary.

Meanwhile the president's drought area committee prepares a survey and recommends for the longer future. One question which they debate is whether or not this and other recent droughts portend a continuing dedication of certain areas of America. If they believe a semi-desert is in the making, a modification in methods of culture will be advised.

Another broad investigation into a segment of business opens, to take its place with recent historic inquiries into banking, stock market operations and utility holding companies. The new inquiry concerns investment trusts and is conducted by the securities and exchange commission.

Investment trusts are corporations whose sole business is to invest in securities for the benefit of the corporations' stockholders, who are told that only by the use of large sums of money under the management of experts can they obtain the benefits of diversification of risk and vigilant oversight.

Assets of these corporations in the United States now amounting to 350, are between two and three billion dollars, about one-third of the eight billion dollars invested in the 1100 such trusts existing in 1929.

Under questioning of Committee Robert E. Hooley of stock inquiry face, officers of companies later consolidated into the Equity corporation tell of methods used in the consolidations. Affairs of the company itself are left untouched until a court injunction itself against such inquiry is disposed of by the courts.

Deals read into the record include: Purchase by an officer of stock for an investment trust portfolio, and its resale to the trust at a price netting the officer a profit of $261,000. This in the face of memorandum by a director reminding the stock line between making money with stockholders and out of them.

Acquisition by an officer, through arrangement with a broker, of stock in his own trust at less than the cash liquidating value.

First allotment for "big public works" are made by public works administration taken from the 300 million dollars which congress permitted him to use from proceeds of loans made under his former PWA program.

The new program has these limitations in comparison with the earlier ones, under which several billion dollars were spent:

First, it is confined to non-federal projects, and particularly to non-federal projects for which local bodies will advance 55 per cent of the cost. This is due to an administrative ruling of Mr. Ickes, who hopes to expand employment-creating expenditures to the maximum limit.

Second, projects must be ready for operation by October 1 and must be finished within a year from that time.

This requirement of the law bars the construction of the largest scale works such as dams and major bridges.

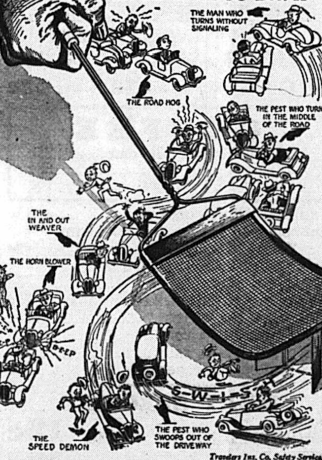

The first 352 of the projects already received Mr. Ickes' approval are in the hands of the president. They will cost 23 million dollars. Another group, involving 50 million dollars, is awaiting the president's word to go ahead.

Largest Plant Under Water
The largest plant and animal life is found in the sea. No land and no air can compare with the whales, but it comes as a surprise to learn that the largest plant in the world is a gigantic seaweed. It beats even the giant trees of California for height and size, growing frequently to a height of more than 400 feet beneath the surface of the sea at extremely deep sections.

"Red Tape"
Lord Minto is said to have used the expression "red tape" as long ago as 1775. It owes its origin to the red tape with which public documents are bound.

Depopulating the Roads of Pests

The Pests YOU LIKE TO SWAT

Most drivers have had the feeling that they would like to run the car faster right off the road, including the road bugs, the weaver, the snatcher of seconds at red lights, the speed demon, the driver who never signals, and also the horn blower.

Until people grow up in their use of motor vehicles, it seems to be a never-ending story of the pest. Watchmen. Here's something funny about the "pests you'd like to swat." There are so many of them, at various times, that if all were driven from the highway, there would be practically no one left. Who are the pests of the road, anyway?

Celsius Thermometer Is Named for Its Inventor

The Celsius thermometer—after its inventor, Anders Celsius, Swedish scientist—is more commonly known as the centigrade. The Celsius scale is one used to some extent in Europe.

Fahrenheit temperature readings may be converted into centigrade by subtracting 32 degrees and multiplying by five-ninths. Thus, states a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, three degrees below zero, Fahrenheit, is 19.4 below zero on the centigrade scale. Centigrade becomes Fahrenheit by multiplying by nine-fifths and adding 32.

Fahrenheit readings may be converted into Fahrenheit by multiplying by nine-fifths and adding 32, or into centigrade by multiplying by five-ninths. To convert Fahrenheit into Celsius subtract 32 and multiply by four-fifths. The Celsius zero is at the freezing point and its 100 degrees at the boiling point of water (under 760 mm. barometric pressure). The Celsius scale has its zero at the freezing point, and the boiling point at 100 degrees. Fahrenheit placed his zero at the lowest temperature he could produce, achieving it by mixing snow and salt. On his scale the freezing point is at 32 and the boiling point at 212.

The greatest sword-swallower in history was "Cherisher Cling," who reached the peak of his fame in America and Europe during the 1890s. His outstanding performance took place in New York City when he swallowed, at one time, 14 swords up to his hips—Clinger's Weekly.

LOW COST—HIGH RETURN

Today's livestock and crops are tomorrow's farm cash. A small difference in price per hundredweight or per bushel may mean a big difference in a year's profits. That is one reason farmers regard the farm telephone as a necessity. A recent survey showed that 44 per cent of the usage of the average farm telephone is for calls having to do with operation of the farm—calls regarding prices for farm products, farm help, farm repairs, farm supplies. If these errands had to be "run" by the farmer in person or even by messenger they would have cost many times more than the telephone. Progressive farmers will not allow the small cost of a telephone to deprive them of the steady profit which the telephone builds up, day by day.

Century Plant Believed to Be Oddest Ice House

The maggy or century plant is used in making ice at Durango City, Mexico, and is said to be the only icehouse of the kind in the world, notes a writer in the Indianapolis News.

When the century plant is about eight years old the leaves, from which the pulque has been taken, are spread out on straw in the place, in the public gardens and other open spaces, with the concave sides of the leaves uppermost. Then about two quarts of water is poured into each leaf and while freezing is unknown in the city, under any other natural conditions, the water freezes in the maggy and in the morning loads of dredges of chunks of ice are gathered and put in adobe iceholders, each about 20 feet deep and 20 feet square. The supply usually lasts until the middle of July or the first of August and is large enough to be a commercial factor in the ice market of the region of more than 30,000 persons.

Durango City is about 6,000 feet above sea level and at this altitude there is rapid cooling, after exposure to the sun, to which is exposed by the broad, shallow surface of the leaves. This is believed to be the Seventeenth century by Father Jose Lopez, an elderly priest, who also was a scientist.

Measurement of Time Is as Old as Time Itself

Time measurement goes back to the beginning of time itself. As for modern time measurement, its beginnings are considered to be tangled up in the mysticism, superstition and sun worship of the Chaldeans, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. This ancient people originated the week of seven days from the sun and moon and the five planets: Venus, Mars, Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn. These were their gods and they worshipped them. So they set aside one day each week for the worship of the sun, another for the moon and so on. The sun was their most important god and its worship day was called moon day or Monday.

The Chaldeans divided the time required for the sun to traverse its path through the belt of the ecliptic into the 12 constellations of the Zodiac. In this way they evolved the 12 months of the year. They also divided the day into 12 hours and then the hour into smaller units.

James Wedd Net a Native

Only enough the salt, salting and poisonous Jimson weed is of Asiatic origin although its present name is American. It was known as the Jamestown weed because of its prevalence in the region of that colony and this name was later corrupted to Jimson. Jimson weed is a member of the datura family which the nearest relative the drug stramonium is derived.

Ever hear about the new Free pick-up-and-delivery of less than carload freight? It's a great convenience to shippers and receivers alike. Western railroads pick up at the door, ship by rail freight, and deliver to door at no extra charge.

Railroad trains are running on faster schedules these days. Seems like the iron horse wants to show these new streamlined diesel that he can step out, too. Both passenger and freight schedules have been speeded up.

Trees Need Care and Feeding Now

If trees could speak they would probably tell many of us how grossly unjust we are to them when we place them under unfavorable growing conditions, remove the food nature provides, and fail to replace the natural food supply.

Soils around city homes are poorer than those found in forests. And trees in cities are robbed of natural food when fallen leaves are removed from beneath them. Other conditions in cities are unfavorable to their growth; smoky air, poisonous gases, competition with grass and other plants for food and water. Often the ground area from which they must draw food and moisture is partially covered with pavement. Considering these conditions, it is not surprising that most city trees are poor specimens.

Many of these conditions cannot be remedied, but it is possible to supply trees all the food elements they need for healthy, luxuriant growth by regular feeding with complete, balanced plant food. Well-fed trees will thrive even under these unfavorable conditions.

Complete plant food may be secured from your dealer in lawn

Reading Contest at Library Progresses

The vacation reading club sponsored by the Barrington public library under the supervision of Miss Olive Dobson, librarian, is now in full swing, and the balloons, symbols of the books read, are ascending into the stratosphere.

The closing date of the contest has been moved back to September 12 in order to allow all participants now on vacations to return in time for the party which is to be held at the close.

There is still time to enter the contest, Miss Dobson reports. Few children have failed to report the number of books they have read and have not received all their credits.

Rules governing the contest and contestants are as follows: read at least eight books during the summer, report on books read to the librarian, have books approved by the librarian—"series books" may not be read for points—magazines may not be read for points—

At the end of the contest there will be a party to which all winners of the contest will be invited. A special prize will be given to the boy and girl reading the most books.

Lake Zurich Team Places at State

The Lake Zurich 4-H club, which sent two Lake county champion judo judges to the state trials held at Champaign over the week-end, was honored when the fat stock judging team won ninth place in a large field of entries.

The dairy judging team did not place in its event. With Blodgett, member of the faculty at Elia township high school, accompanied the team.

A total of 1162 points out of a possible 1400 was earned by the fat stock judging team. Individual scoring was as follows: Donald Weber, 294; Raymond Meyer, 264; Elmer Grever, 404. This is the first year that the boys competed in a state contest. Last year the state championship was won by the Lake Zurich 4-H judging team.

Carl Grever, Mitchell Kane, Cecil Campbell and W. Nohmer represented the club on the dairy judging team.

recall were J. M. Halet, station agent with Horace Church as assistant; P. P. Parker, dragstail, and watchmaker, also express agent; Sinnott brothers, John and Ed, whose general store upstairs in Sinnott's hall was where all public meetings and lodge meetings were held; D. R. Richardson, storekeeper and postmaster; Lake Collins, general store; George Ely, storekeeper; Mr. Friend, storekeeper; Mr. Heimerdinger, harness maker; Beach and Barrows, also Mr. Creet, blacksmith and wagon shops, etc.

"Among prominent citizens were Mr. Henry Lawrence, contractor, H. Wilmshart, capitalist, Ira J. Chase, school teacher and hardware merchant.

"Later Mr. Chase became a preacher, went into politics, was elected lieutenant governor, then through death of the incumbent he became governor of Indiana. Dr. William Burkhardt, whose son Alfred, known as 'Fred', became a well known elocutionist. Lewis H. Butte, attorney, whose daughter Addie married my brother Lewis.

Their daughter, Flora Davis, became the wife of August Meyer, prominent merchant of Barrington. My father was a staunch Republican, was called a 'black abolitionist' and suspected of keeping a station on the 'underground railroad' when the Civil war started. My six brothers joined the Union army. I was thrilled to see them march away and wished I could go with them; I was then ten years old.

"Alas! only three of them came back. William, the oldest, was killed at the battle of Stones River. Alfred, the youngest, while on picket duty near Tusculuma, Ala., was shot by a rebel guerrilla. An older son, John, died in a military hospital at Monrovia, Tenn. Charles, Luther and George returned as invalids.

"In 1873 Miss Emma, a daughter of Elkhart, Ind., promised to share my joys and sorrows. She has kept the faith. She has been my devoted sponsor and friend for 63 years and is still with me. To have kept one wife that long seems rather unusual nowadays.

"I send greetings to any who may remember me or the family of which I am the only survivor. I am 84 years old and not entirely disabled. Like John D. Rockefeller I intend to make the 100 mark. Adios."

"School Teachers I Have Known"

A Few Reminiscences
By H. B. Davis

"Most of my boyhood days were spent in the village of Barrington, located on the line between Lake and Cook counties. It is now quite a pretentious suburb of Chicago, recently put on the map by the killing there of 'Babyface' Nelson, notorious bandit.

"The school teachers I have known were numerous and of various kinds. I believe they all tried faithfully to put me in the way of acquiring useful knowledge but I did not appreciate their efforts.

"I remember distinctly my first day at school. I was about five years old. My hair was a brilliant red, I wore a green gingham apron, carried my lunch and a green covered primer. My mother says I was a beautiful creature.

"The first teacher I remember was Cousin Louise Chaffin whose brother was pastor of the Easton, Mass. Unitarian church, over 40 years. Louise married and went out west and we lost track of her.

"Then we had Miss Fannie Laird of Des Plaines, who married my brother George after he came back from the war.

"Later came Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Allen. He was very dark and looked somewhat like an Indian. She was blonde. He claimed to be a relative of Edna Allen of Tippecanoe.

"Henry was afterward employed as an assistant at the railroad station and was so unfortunate as to misplace a switch, causing a collision between a freight train and some cars on the sidetrack.

"The car swung around over the depot platform where there were some jars of butter and crates of chickens which got badly mixed up, and there was much excitement among the boys trying to catch the chickens.

"About this time we moved back to the old farm near Waukegan, birthplace. Then I had to walk a mile over a country road to the school at Slocum's lake. During the cold winter when the snow was deep this was quite a hardship as I was only 10 years old. Our teacher was Rev. William Wallace Hurd, Methodist minister, and husband of my cousin Malinda.

"After a year on the old farm we returned to Barrington. We had as our teacher Miss Addie Dunton with Miss Frances Ford as assistant, both comely young ladies.

"There were some tragedies. One little schoolmate of mine named Joe Abbott, while playing in a large bin of wheat, got caught in the suction when the wheat was running out at the bottom of the bin into a freight car. It drew him down rapidly and he was quite dead.

"Another tragedy was that of Wright Catlow, one of the larger schoolboys. He was standing on the back of a sleigh when the team started violently, throwing him out and he was killed instantly.

"We had a teacher named Ira J. Chase, who was said to administer pica (aloes) to the pupils for punishment, but I never saw it done and think it must have been a false report. He had an assistant whose name I do not remember.

"There were no real co-eds in this school as the girl's room was upstairs and the boys' downstairs. Mr. Chase afterwards kept a hardware store and was noted for cleaning his goods were superior among the boys trying to catch the chickens.

"There were some tragedies. One little schoolmate of mine named Joe Abbott, while playing in a large bin of wheat, got caught in the suction when the wheat was running out at the bottom of the bin into a freight car. It drew him down rapidly and he was quite dead.

"Another tragedy was that of Wright Catlow, one of the larger schoolboys. He was standing on the back of a sleigh when the team started violently, throwing him out and he was killed instantly.

"We had a teacher named Ira J. Chase, who was said to administer pica (aloes) to the pupils for punishment, but I never saw it done and think it must have been a false report. He had an assistant whose name I do not remember.

"There were no real co-eds in this school as the girl's room was upstairs and the boys' downstairs. Mr. Chase afterwards kept a hardware store and was noted for cleaning his goods were superior among the boys trying to catch the chickens.

"About this time we moved back to the old farm near Waukegan, birthplace. Then I had to walk a mile over a country road to the school at Slocum's lake. During the cold winter when the snow was deep this was quite a hardship as I was only 10 years old. Our teacher was Rev. William Wallace Hurd, Methodist minister, and husband of my cousin Malinda.

"After a year on the old farm we returned to Barrington. We had as our teacher Miss Addie Dunton with Miss Frances Ford as assistant, both comely young ladies.
