Chevrolet Sales and Production Set New Records

Record-breaking sales of Chevrolet cars and trucks in Barrington and throughout this section have hastened the company's attainment of another important milestone—the production of its 12,999,999th car. It was announced this week by R. W. Hill, Chicago sales manager.

Chevrolet No. 12,999,999 was built at Flint, Mich., on August 5, Mr. Hill said. It came off the assembly line exactly eight months and one day after the 12,998,999th Chevrolet was built, and its production brought to 1,142,999 the number of cars and trucks produced since the manufacturing and assembly plants began on the 1935 model.

"In all but two of the months since the current model's introduction," said Mr. Hill, "the output has exceeded the 100,000-mark. Three of those months set new all-time records. Chevrolet's goal of a million plus in 1935 is assured."

Sales in the Chicago zone alone in the month of July were 7919 units, as compared with 2124 in July 1934.

Solar Systems

Our solar system lies near the center of that vast system of suns which lies within the circuit of the "milky way," and some scientists think that this central position is significant—that our sun and its planets occupy a position of greater physical stability than is possessed by other suns and their planets.

Laying Foundation for New School on Syndicate Grounds

Will Complete Country Day School in Three Months

Foundation work has been finished and pouring of concrete started for the foundation of the new country day school which is in course of construction on the syndicate grounds near the village limits and east of Lake Cook county line. The syndicate will be in this area and the wall structure will be completed, according to Carl H. Hines, general contractor in charge.

According to plans, the new school building will be completed, ready for occupancy in three months. It will be a frame structure on poured concrete foundation.

It is located on a gently rolling plain which will be landscaped and planted with trees and shrubs. The school house is situated on the east side of the road and the building will be just above the road at the west. The building will contain classrooms and the lavatory, a large bathroom, locker room, kitchen, and a gymnasium.

Mr. Charles Stuts of Barrington is the director of the Lake County house and will attend the presentation at Springfield. The house was constructed at a picnic at the home of Mrs. H. H. Gillespie of Pomona Lake Monday.

The Lake county singers and musicians will combine with groups from 15 other counties to form the largest rural chorus and orchestra ever held in Illinois. They will sing in costume and each member will sing the same song as in the other county production.

Originally scheduled for noon Monday, the event was postponed to 2 in the evening to permit more people to enjoy the spectacle. The Lake county singers will be sponsored by the extension service of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, as part of a state-wide project to assist rural people in developing their talents, entertainment and recreation.

Organize Group to Attend State Fair on Republican Day

Those who wish to go by special train leave Chicago, Union station, 7:30 a. m. and arrive at Springfield, Ill., at 11:30 a. m. (Chicago time) and arrive at Springfield fair grounds at 11:45 a. m. Returning, leave fair grounds at 7:30 p. m. standard time and arrive in Chicago at 10:45 p. m. standard time.

West, a slim spinster. It was the same old story. I wanted a lot of time and a lot of money. My father kindly provided. These were the last of my father's days. Soon after I became a man's devil in the office of the South Bend Register, a paper owned by former Vice President Schuyler Colfax. I acquired some knowledge of the printing craft and went on the "road," working from New York City to the Pacific coast, occasionally passing to teach a country school. Held papers on the old Chicago News in 1872-1873.

I am now 82 years old and have outlived these reminiscences for my own amusement. I sit in comfort a few steps from the ponding flowers bloom everywhere and the cheerful chatter of mockingbirds is heard in the tree tops. The sun shines bright on my California home. The birds make music all the day" (apology to Stephen Foster).

Maybe Not Crazy, But a Little Strange

This illustration may be a slight bit overdone, because "our fellow human beings" may not be quite as crazy as the artist has pictured them in the above. But at least by the way the artist spells out "human beings," the inference is that he regards a good many drivers and pedestrians as "cock-eyed." It sometimes diverts and pedestrians could see themselves as others see them, many would be for some great surprises. This would be especially so when drivers do those little things which

After the convention, Mr. and Mrs. Walgren will visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Lyons at Northbrook. Mr. Lyons is a brother of Mr. Walgren. The Walgrens expect to be gone two weeks. Five Die When Car Rams Into Bridge

Five persons, including the wife and three children of a hospitalized World War veteran, were killed in what is reported as the worst auto crash in the history of McHenry county, which occurred on route 173 two miles west of Hebron at 2:10 a. m. Saturday.

The car, a sedan, believed to have been driven by Sam Casazza, struck a concrete bridge abutment which spans the dry bed of Nippersink creek.

Those instantly killed were: Mrs. John P. Casazza, 52 years old, Kenosha, Wis.; Sarah Casazza, 19 years old; Freddie Casazza, 9 years old; Raymond Barnes, 17-year-old friend of the Casazas. Another daughter, Patricia, 19 years old, died several hours later at the Harvard Memorial hospital. Sam Casazza is reported to be in critical condition, having been in an unconscious state since the crash.

According to State Patrolman Omer Olsen, who investigated the crash, the body of Mrs. Casazza was found in the dry creek bed 60 feet from the car. That and the fact that the machine was a twisted mass of steel and glass indicated that the car had been travelling at a high rate of speed. The concrete abutment pierced the car door and crushed the occupants, according to witnesses.

SCIENTIFIC NATIONAL PROGRAM

We have had numerous "national programs" proposed by American business men, statesmen, and economists. Here is one from a scientist which seems to deserve more than usual attention. It was suggested by Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of the American association for the advancement of science. It covers the fields of natural resources, agriculture, industry, health, welfare and research.

First, stop unbridled exploitation of our natural resources and apply sound engineering principles to their development and conservation.

Second, make a thorough study of overproduction and low prices and a scientific effort to develop new industrial uses for farm products.

Third, seek industrial prosperity less through governmental support than through scientific and technical developments of new products and processes.

Fourth, undertake the prevention of physical and mental diseases in a big, constructive way.

Fifth, in order to plan intelligently for the future welfare of the country, begin adequate collection of physical and social information.

Sixth, establish closer cooperation between governmental agencies and the non-governmental scientists and engineers.

This program obviously aims to handle big problems in a big way, combining the facilities of government and science to apply modern knowledge to the practical problems of modern life. It should have the consideration of every thinking person. There is no sense or safety in merely drifting and trusting to luck, and improvising remedies in a hurry, when we get into economic and social trouble.—Transcript, Norman, Oklahoma.

THE COUNTRY WEEKLY REFLECTS AMERICA

Sometimes city people are amused by the items describing local happenings in small country newspapers. Such items do but "chronicle small beer," as Shakespeare says, and the worldly-wise (in their own conceit) laugh at the trivial happenings recorded.

We might contrast the two classes of papers, and see which seems to present the truer picture of American life.

We read in a great daily paper of women in Dallas, Tex., stripped of their clothing and beaten in the public streets by persons opposing some labor union on strike, and we turn to our country newspaper and read that Mrs. Brown's neighbors held a canning bee at her home, because a broken arm prevented her from "doing up" her usual supply of peaches.

Then we learn from the city paper that the unemployed mechanics on relief projects supported by the taxpayers' money, went on strike because they were not receiving full union wages, and the country paper tells us of farmers working from dawn to dark because they cannot hire anyone to help them.

The city paper tells us of boys in their teens who commit a murder during a holdup, or kill some pedestrian with a stolen automobile, while the country paper tells how Farmer Brown's son is working his way through college, while Mary Smith has won a scholarship that will insure her future education.

No, we do not think the racketeers and criminals, the hoodlums and loafers, are representatives of American life; for that we must go to the hard-working, God-fearing homes of the country.

But we may well remember that luxury, cowardice and vice have destroyed great nations of old, and when we permit the dark powers of the underworld to control law-making, law-enforcing and political agencies, we are moving towards the extinction of our national liberty.—Tuckerton, N. J., Beacon.

VITALITY UNIMPAIRED

Despite the depression and years of underliving by millions of individuals in contrast with their former status, assurance is given that the rising generation will not find itself handicapped by undernourishment. Authority for this view is Dr. James S. McLeester, president of the American Medical association, and his conclusions have been reached by intensive surveys conducted in several large cities.

Apparently privation in a good many instances brought about sounder dietary practice at less cost of food. At all events, Dr. McLeester, in an address to the medical society of the state of New York, was able to say:

"This investigation has revealed no evidence of under-nutrition in the American school child. Above all else, one thing seems to me to be clearly revealed by this study: That is the value of cumulative enlightenment in nutrition. We have, on the one hand, the fact that the American people during the last five years have suffered great material losses, while on the other there is no clear evidence that the nutritive state of any appreciable number of people is inferior to that of predepression days."

The facts speak volumes for American resourcefulness in time of need.—Coldwater, Mich., Daily Reporter.

It looks as though we'll have the unemployed on our hands until we get them on their feet.—Boston Transcript.

Ireland's Saint Blessed

the Downpatrick Wells
Downpatrick, in County Down, thinks nothing of the simple statement that it was a place of importance long before the Christian era and the advent of St. Patrick. When the old saint did arrive he found the Wells of Struel near by, which drew sick people every year for a cure. There was no chance of his changing the ancient custom so he blessed the wells, and instituted a Christian pilgrimage to the spot on St. John's Eve which persists to this day, says a writer in the Los Angeles Times.

Then there is the mountain Slieve Donard where are remains of a cromlech and a remarkable stone circle. This whole section must have been a center for Druid worship, for another of the finest stone circles in Ireland is west of Ballynec. St. Patrick combated this paganism by founding a monastery on the stones of which the great cathedral of Downpatrick now stands. According to tradition, the remains of the Patron Saint lie here, now marked by a huge inscribed monolith.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN WASHINGTON

(Courtesy The United States News)

Taking a step that means direct relief of nearly two million of its members and inviting the establishment of a rival labor movement, the American Federation of Labor's executive council votes, 13 to 1, to suspend 10 unions associated with John L. Lewis' committee for industrial organization.

Suspension, effective Sept. 5, means that the unions affected will have no voice in the November convention of the federation when a vote is taken on revoking the charters of the ten unions.

The issue is diversely interpreted. William Green, president of the A. F. of L., declares it to be the right of the majority to rule, holding that the convention's decision that craft union jurisdictions should be preserved in the organizing of mass production industries.

Mr. Lewis replies that the issue is the right of workers in mass production industries to be organized into industrial unions without restriction of craft jurisdiction, who want the skilled workers reserved for their own organizations.

Mr. Lewis asserts that his group will continue undepended from their objective of organizing the unorganized. He hopes to enroll 4,000,000 within the industrial unions, which will probably be joined together in a federation paralleling the A. F. of L.

As the great drought continues into its third month, the administration expands its previous forms of extending relief and adds a new one.

The new one is the direct purchase of cattle. The normal accumulation of a drought is a drying up of cattle on the market because meadows have dried up and the cattle can no longer be fed. To prevent dumping at distress prices, the administration first has aided in transporting them to districts in which feed is available and, second, through the Resettlement administration, has provided feed in emergencies. The third move is to support the market by direct purchase, the cattle bought being converted into beef for distribution to the needy.

Apart from provision of work relief to farmers hardest hit by the drying up of their crops, the president's drought committee recommends:

1. Conservation of seed, by purchase or loan to farmers.
2. Distribution of grasshopper poison so that the fall and winter seed may be protected to the utmost.

3. Removal of pigs to areas where feed is available, so that the corn is a failure over large districts.

4. Enlargement of aid from the Resettlement administration to include provision for winter feeding of animals and to aid needy farmers in other than the strictly emergency areas.

To a nation accustomed, over the period from 1920 to 1932, to see bank failures numbering annually from 347 to 224, the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation reports such failures for the nine months ended June 30. Total number—36.

A second caution is provided in the total deposits of the closed banks. Those in the earlier period amounted annually from 93 to 1650 million dollars. Total deposits in banks closed since last August—9 million dollars.

A third caution lies in the fact

the owners of which are also included among the parties indicted. These average prices paid for oil are declared to be artificially set by purchases from independent dealers rather than by open competition among all sellers of oil.

The magnitude of the business involved in this anti-trust suit sets it off from all similar prosecutions in recent years. The suit provides also an illustration of the "trust-busting" policy being pursued by the administration since the supreme court, by outlawing the NIRA, put an end to the possibility of the government's trading protection of wages and hours for relaxation of the anti-trust laws.

Species of Swans

Ornithologists seem to agree that there are but two species of swans native to the states; and both are pure white. One is the whistling swan, the most common and often found in Great Lakes waters. The other is the trumpeter swan, a bird of the West which is almost extinct. The whistling swan, another great white bird, was formerly abundant north of the Arctic circle and in Greenland but this bird is considered extinct. The trumpeter swan is much smaller than these three and is frequently confused with our common black swan. The black swan is found only in seas and bird sanctuaries in this country, according to a writer in the Detroit News, and many persons when they observe them think they are black swans.

Time
If time be of all things most precious, wasting time must be the greatest profligality, since lost time is never found again; and what we call time enough always proves little enough. Let us then be up and doing, and doing to a purpose; so by diligence shall we do more with less perplexity.—Franklin.

Nothing Permanent Except Change
The Greek philosopher, Heraclitus in the early fifth century B. C. taught that there is nothing permanent except change. The realization of the transient character of all times human produced in him a sadness memorialized by the sobriquet of the Weeping Philosopher.

Drop Contest to Team
at Waukegan

The Barrington Bears were defeated by Johnson Motors of Waukegan 7 to 3 in a game which was part of a double-header at Waukegan last Sunday afternoon.

Through some mishandling of the score book the box score is not available for last Sunday's game.

The Bears will return to the home diamond after several weeks on the road to play the Sammy Hales baseball club of Evanston at 3 o'clock Sunday.

The Sammy Hales club is reported to be a dangerous club. The lineup will include Jack Woy, outfield; Bill Chown, shortstop; Bob Samson, outfield; and Cleo Diehl, first baseman, who are at present Northwestern university players.

The pitchers will be Bud Wiedman, who was recently signed by the Detroit Tiger scout and is to report to the Tigers training camp in the spring, and Les Horder, who was with the St. Louis Browns during their spring training in Florida.

The Sammy Hales club has won 18 out of 22 games.

Second Annual Event
at Northside Park

Sport fans of Barrington will look forward with interest to August 28 when the Holy Name society of St. Anne's church will present its second annual outdoor sporting event in Northside park in the form of a boxing and wrestling show.

Eight three-round bouts and one wrestling match have been scheduled from the list of outstanding performers in Chicago.

Last year the local church society presented its first boxing and wrestling show in Northside park. The second program was held early this spring in the public high school gymnasium. The favorable reaction of spectators has prompted the organization to hold a show August 28.

Leading boxers from the amateur ranks of Chicago's CYO teams will perform. The team recently won the national title from a picked team from New York City. Tom Kennedy, heavyweight champion of the Chicago CYO, and others will appear.

McMillen and Bruns Meet Friday Night

Jim McMillen versus Bobby Bruns. The match Lake county wrestling fans have been waiting all summer to see was finally closed by the local matchmaker to headline the fifth all-star heavyweight wrestling card the season to be presented in the Round Lake Haunted House open-air arena Friday night.

Two months ago the pair met in the main event of the initial Round Lake mat card of the season and after 40 minutes of even wrestling in which neither the youthful Bruns nor the veteran McMillen could gain a decisive advantage, Referee Charlie Lavine declared the match a draw.

Local lovers of wrestling are still talking about that thrilling encounter with opinions divided as to who the best man really is. To settle the dispute once and for all a return match was arranged with a winner take all arrangement.

Stealing some of the interest from this classy main event is a semi-windup that should provide some hot thrills during the early part of the evening. Freddy Grobner, world famous body-scissors expert, will attempt to execute the submission one of the finest ex-collegian matmen now in the professional sport. He is Andy Rascher, who proved a real crowd pleaser last week at Round Lake when he threw toughy George Mack all over the arena pinning him in less than ten minutes. Andy is a former basketball player from Indiana university, and in Grobner he will find plenty of trouble.

Ask Charlie About It

By GRACE ARCHOLD

"Well, that is splendid, Alice," remarked Mary, as she handed a beautiful book back to her friend. "Charlie certainly deserved the general knowledge prize. For a boy of nine he is marvelous. He knows the meaning of so many words and can explain so much. It's a standing joke in our house. If the children are puzzled about a word or a place and no one can help them, they say: 'Ask Charlie about it.' He is sure to know. How do you account for his being so well informed, Alice?"

"I credit much of it to my reading aloud to both Charlie and Tim. I began when they were quite little, choosing the best of the many charming things written for children nowadays. I generally read to them for a few minutes after they are in bed. It simplifies the problem of getting them to bed happily for they are always eager for the next installment of the story. Their disappointment if an interruption occurs indicates how much they enjoy this practice. Sometimes I tell them a story. I am often too tired. I find it a real refreshment to read aloud, and children's stories, as you know, are often very delightful to grow-ups. The results are astonishing. The children enlarge their vocabularies without effort. I usually draw their attention to the spelling and meaning of any new words."

"This is not a new idea to me, Alice," answered Mary, "but when my girls were little, it was difficult to find the time necessary for reading. So I did not form the habit. I wish I had. Of course I do read to them occasionally. It develops the imagination. I am sure. Without the effort of reading for themselves children can picture more easily the scenes and characters of a story."

"Often it leads to interesting talk on all sorts of subjects, too. Together, my boys and I explore the wonder spots of the world. And it most certainly cultivates their sense of humor. They learn to appreciate a funny situation. This means a good laugh, a healthful thing. I always think, so long as it steps short of over-excitement beyond sleeping time. How old are your girls, Mary, six and eight?"

"Yes, so they are none too old for me to begin reading regularly to them. Go on. Tell me some more."

"Well, I find reading to the children gives me many an opportunity to check faults that crop up. A story illustrating the troubles that follow a bad habit, will show it for more than a hundred times over, or preaching. Children reason more than we are apt to imagine."

"Yes, and how much fuller their
