

"Suzy" Headlines Prominent Stars at Catlow Sunday

"Magnificent Obsession" Has Return Showing Here Friday Night

The stars of Jack London's "White Fang," now showing at the local theatre, share honors with "Lightning," the dog in this story. Beautiful photography forms the background for this adventure into the trackless wilderness of the far North.

Michael Whalen, Jean Muir, Slim Sammerville and Charles Wimmering have the important roles.

A production so outstanding as "Magnificent Obsession" offers fully as much entertainment upon being re-shown as it did when first screened.

This Irene Dunne-Tobey Taylor classic has received many requests for its return, and for the patrons so minded, as well as for those who missed its first run, the management of the Catlow has scheduled a return engagement for Friday night.

"The Girl of the Ozarks" has received splendid recommendations as family entertainment.

This true picture of a primitive people in our own land is convincingly acted by the entire cast. "The Girl of the Ozarks," with comedy, cartoon, sportlight, Pathe news and 9 p. m. gift event will form the program for Saturday night.

"Suzy," the Sunday-Monday feature, is truly a most interesting number with Jean Harlow, Franchot Tone, Cary Grant and Lewis Stone forming a major constellation. Suzy is an American chorus girl stranded in London when the World War begins.

Two combat aviators enter her life; she marries Tone in London; when she is informed he has been killed, she goes to Paris and in time marries Grant; later she discovers Tone is alive.

The satisfactory resolution of this problem makes up the theme of "Suzy," with spy intrigue and the distant rumble of a great war for background.

Zane Grey's "Raiders of Spanish Peaks," retitled "The Arizona Raiders," comes to the Catlow next Tuesday as its bargain offering for the week.

A series of remarkable and majestic scenes punctuate the rapid-paced action which culminates in a stampede of wild horses.

Larry "Buster" Crabbe, Raymond Hatton, Marsha Hunt, Johnny Downs and Grant Withers have the leading roles.

Pictorial reel, Monkey comedy act, musical frolics and screen songs will precede the showing of the feature.

Frank Morgan, Robert Taylor, Binnie Barnes and Lois Wilson

form the quartette of unusually fine players featured in Ursula Parrott's "There's Always Tomorrow," which plays the Catlow next Wednesday and Thursday.

This is a witty-versus-secretary story with an angle decidedly different than the usual one.

Stop the Drafts by Caulking With Plastoid

(An Indispensable Product to Have Around)

Cold walls, drafts blowing in around doors and windows, all can be eliminated by caulking with Plastoid. Your home will be warmer and the window frames will be protected from rot caused by water getting in through the unsealed cracks.

What It Is . . .

Plastoid is a name which has been synonymous with materials of this type for over a decade. It is applied with a simple trigger-operated tool. These guns are inexpensive and are easy to operate. (We will rent or loan the tool, depending on the size of your job.)

Plastoid Caulking Compound forms a tough rubbery skin which keeps the under portion permanent. It is water proof—Non-staining—Non-soaking—Easy to apply.

YOUNG EYES ARE GOING BACK TO WORK

A Thought for Parents

* Now that school days are approaching again, it is timely to consider the fact that there has been much publicity in the last few years on the Better Light-Better Sight movement. It has been a campaign to convince people that lighting conditions have an important bearing on eyesight conservation. Although the intentions of the movement have received the approval of eyeight specialists, the commercial possibilities of the program have furnished most of the impulse behind its publicity. Many industries have participated—manufacturers of electric light bulbs, dealers in lamps and lighting fixtures, paint manufacturers, and we—as producers and distributors of electricity—have done our share. In spite of its relatively small effect on the average light bill, we have never disguised the fact that improved lighting usually requires a somewhat greater use of electricity. Frankly, we are pleased to find that the Better Light-

Better Sight movement represents both a broader market for our product and an important contribution to human welfare.

But, aside from the commercial aspects, we thoroughly believe we are performing a real public service in placing before parents the principles involved in what is called the new science of lighting. We firmly feel that in the case of growing children, particularly those whose eyes are none too strong, lighting for home study may have an amazing influence upon the mental and physical progress of the child throughout this important formative period.

We do not consider improved lighting a curative influence—possibly not even a corrective—from the viewpoint of the eye practitioner. We know of no cases where people have actually gone blind on account of poor lighting, nor can we show evidence that eye diseases or defects have been corrected by the improvement in light on the seeing task, whatever it is. But we have studied the new science of seeing and convinced ourselves that the elimination of glare and the increase of lighting intensities on close reading have definitely improved the comfort and efficiency of both old and young eyes. In the case of the older eyes, the possible results of the comfort and efficiency are limited by the forces of habit which have developed through long years of what we now know as bad lighting conditions. In the case of young eyes, the results have definitely shown themselves in improved school work, sunnier dispositions, and, in many instances, actually better health.

Further than that, we believe that modern lighting, because of its wide adaptability, is a means of enhancing the beauty and character of a home—a pleasing expression of good taste.

After all, it is a natural thing that in the progress of lighting sources from the cavern's torch to electric light, worthwhile improvements must continue. The improved lighting which the Better Light movement is now recommending may seem as backward in another decade as the gas jets of the so-called "gas" minutes do today. But the Better Light movement is sponsoring the best that today offers. And knowing that it is more comfortable, more beautiful, more flexible, and frequently more healthful for ourselves and our youngsters, yet not at all expensive, it seems almost unprogressive not to have it.

Information on improved modern lighting for the home, shop, office or commercial establishment is available to those in the outlying Chicagoand territory served by this Company by inquiring at any of our stores and offices.
