Rural Department Called When Homes Threatened by Fire

Sparks from a burning rubbish pile ignited debris around an empty silo on the Sanford White place, occupied by Frederick Hodgdon, Wednesday evening, and threatened the Hanson and Hodgdon homes when sparks were blown about. Workmen were tearing down several old barns on the premises and burning the rubbish which accumulated. When the fire was allowed to burn unguarded the flames spread into the empty silo, and caused sparks to fly toward the other buildings. The blaze was quickly extinguished after the rural fire department arrived on the scene.
