Ralph Church Says Poor Man Will Pay for Federal Waste

Seventy-five million dollars has been spent for payrolls and the administration of relief in Illinois in the last three years. Representative Richard Lyons summarized in a blistering attack on Governor Horner and his administration before the senate committee on the school day Thursday night.

Mr. Lyons also joined Congressman Ralph Church in declaring that the national democratic administration has been extremely wasteful in the use of public money.

In regard to the state administration, Mr. Lyons reported the amount raised for relief purposes each year and divided it up into the amount actually getting into the hands of the poor people and the amount used for the various agencies for scholars and students.

Of a total of $144,000,000 raised for the purpose only $2,000,000 actually reached the needy students and the needy. Why does the rest go? he asked. And then answered his own question, "to the army of payrolls and administrators—old age pension inspectors, warehouse inspectors, a veritable army of inspectors."

The speaker exhibited a book about the size of a Chicago telephone directory in which were typewritten the names of payrolls in Illinois, and their salaries. He passed this among the crowd calling attention to the minimum salary of $100 a month and to others ranging from $300 to $600 per month. This book, he declared, had been compiled by the bureau of statistics as result of a plan introduced in the legislature by himself. It contained 10,000 names.

"Congressman Church spoke directly on his experiences in Washington. He said he had come to Barrington to represent the rubber stamp congress, the most extravagant and spineless congress ever held in this country."

Heavy Rains Block Sewers and Flood Local Basements

Roof Waters Fill Sanitary Lines; Precipitation Highest in Years

Torrential rains that smashed previous local records on the week-end proved to be discontinued in more ways than one, village trustees learned at the meeting Monday night when several local property owners appeared and asked why the assessments were flooded with water Sunday.

Elden Gieske, Joseph Klusacek and August Scherz took an active part in the discussion concerning the matter and were told by village trustees and engineers that trouble arose from sanitary lines that backed the water into the basements when the unusually heavy rains filled the lines to capacity.

It was explained by board members that roof drains from a majority of houses in town are still connected to the sanitary sewers. An ordinance ordering the removal of the drains from the lines is to be presented to the board Monday night.

When roof drains are disconnected from sewer lines by virtue of separation from the home sanitary sewer lines, the basements of water backing into basements will not occur again, it was reported.

Water in basements was reported on Russell street at Summit, on Hillside avenue, Raymond avenue, Lake street, west of Dundee and several other parts of town. In some instances, damage was done to the basements.

The rains that fell Friday night and Saturday morning amounted to 1.56 inches and the fall on Saturday night and Sunday morning was 3.59 inches, or a total of 5.15 inches. The heaviest rain fell on Tuesday night and Wednesday morning was reported at 2.12 inches.

All records for local precipitation for the last half-century were shattered by the rains of the last few days.

Fields are flooded with Plint creek reported at its highest level in the history of local observation. The lagoons at Jewel Tea company rose over their banks and water extended from the creek into the grounds of the Jewel property.

Highways between here and Chicago are almost impassable Sunday by the rains while the Des Plaines and Fox rivers flooded their banks. The local fire apparatus was called out Sunday to pump water from the sanitary sewer lines into storm sewers when the increased burden of rain water lifted manhole covers off the sanitary lines and backed water into the basements.

Otokar Corry, Barrington, appeared in answer to a charge of speeding 40 miles an hour on Main street between Hough and North street. He was fined $25.
