The Birthday Child

of the Week

With this issue is inaugurated "The Birthday Child of the Week." Under this heading this review will publish, as a regular feature, pictures of pre-school children whose birthdays will occur during the following week. Parents of children whose birthdays are in October are invited to notify The Review right away so that pictures can be taken and plates made in advance of the birthdays. There will not be a charge for the new feature. A reviewer will call at the homes and take the pictures, but there will not be any pictures or anything else to send the parents who will not be placed under any obligation. In fact the negatives of the pictures will be donated to those parents who want them. "The Birthday Child of the Week" is being instituted merely as an interesting feature for the readers. Although no birthdays have been reported for the coming week, The Review has found three September children for its initial anniversary column.
