A True Friend
 A friend: What is a friend? My friend is he who laughs with me, who weeps with me; one who encourages, praises, rebukes; who comes to me at the wedding feast or stands with me beside the coffin; who listens to my hopes, my fears, my aims, my despair; who rejoices in my successes; who does not desert me in my misfortunes.

The Real Life-Story of "WALLY" SIMPSON
 By Edwina H. Wilson

Because so many doubtful and conflicting stories have been written about Mrs. Ernest Simpson. The Chicago Daily News is pleased to present the real, true story—authenticated by one who has known her since childhood, through her school days, her debutante years, her married life in America and in London, and who is still her most intimate friend. Edwina H. Wilson was present on many of the occasions recounted in the story which is illustrated with heretofore unpublished photographs.
