two other books by the same author, named, "Arundel," and "A Rebel in Arms."

"Northwest Passage," Mrs. Hammond said, was a serious historical novel of the years immediately preceding the Revolutionary War. The two main characters, Major Rogers and his artist assistant, Langdon Towne, seek a northwest passage through America to trade and wealth. This quest leads them through adventures, sufferings, political intrigues and high social contacts, and from the shores of Lake Champlain to London and back to Mackinac Island in Michigan territory.

Mrs. Hammond made her listeners feel that the book was very fortunate in its portrayal of success and failure in human life, and in its true description of people and conditions in London and America in the 1760s.

Forty-five members and guests gathered to hear the review. The place of meeting was the council room in the village hall.

Any club member desiring to make the tour of Hull House on November 10th, please communicate with Mrs. Max Lines or Mr. John Schwemm before Nov. 1.

Miss Phyllis Lines, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Lines, 126 W. Lake street, has achieved a position of honor on Beloit college campus where she is enrolled as a junior this year.

Because of the quality of her work in botany she is instructing several laboratory sections for that department in the freshman class. Her major field is botany and this is an excellent opportunity for her to gain some practical experience.

Miss Lines is a member of Kappa Delta, national social sorority, of which she is secretary, and is a representative to the Pan-Hellenic council, which is the governing body of all sororities. She is also active in campus affairs, being on the homecoming committee and a member of a Cappella choir, Spanish club, and Beloit Players.
