The Perfect Specimen Will Show Here Friday and Christmas Day

Errol Flynn, the movie star, unfortunately is not familiar with the methods employed by American football players.

There was a scene in the comedy drama, "The Perfect Specimen," requiring Dick Foran to tackle the tall Irish star and bring him down on a hard floor.

The scene started and Foran executed a perfect flying tackle, American football style.

Howard, according to advance notices, is shown as matinee idol—a stage star about whom all the town's young girls are ga-ga—and Betty is his leading woman.

The story, which deals with the high-speed romance between an ambitious photographic man and a young millionaire who poses as his penniless associate, is packed with surprise comedy situations before reaching its denouement.

Playing the double feature will Tuesday with "Smartest Girl in Town," in the latest and best to date, of Buck Jones' pictures, "Hollywood Roundup," with Buck in the stellar role, with Helen Twilvetress, Grant Withers and Shemp Howard.

Mr. Arliss, in one of the most unusual roles of his long career, plays Captain Clegg, the pirate, who becomes Dr. Syn, the parson.

Clarifies Ruling on Hand Signals

Making a hand signal does not give you a right-of-way, but is simply a warning of intention to turn, stop, or leave the curb, it is pointed out by the Chicago Motor club.

The law requires that a turn shall not be made unless and until it can be made with safety and then only after giving an appropriate signal in the event that any other vehicle may be affected by the maneuver.

Signals must be given from the left side of the vehicle, continuously for the last fifty feet traveled before making the indicated movement.

MILLER BROS. FUN & FACTS NO. 51 Barrington, Ill., Thursday, December 23, 1937 VOL. 49 Christmas time again, think of it! Just when we are getting used to writing it "1937," another year comes sailing along. Thinking back over the last twelve months, however, we realize that we have crowded a lot of activities into them. These are busy times. And because they are so busy, we don't see our friends as often as we'd like. Isn't it fine, therefore, that we have this holiday season that gives us an opportunity to forget all about business and think of our friends. We find ourselves in a very thankful mood at this time for the friendships we have enjoyed during the past year. And this is rather awkward way of saying "thank you" for the part you have played in it that connection. We appreciate these friendships and courtesies more than we can tell you. And if the Miller Brothers or any member thereof, can be of service to you in the months to come, please remember that we are here for that purpose. Again, may we say it...
