Transient Farm Worker Ends Life While Despondent

Charles Silber Drinks Lysol
at Howard Pace Home
Thursday Night

In a mood of despondency Charles Silber, transient farm worker of approximately 58 years of age, ended his life last Thursday evening by drinking a quantity of lysol, a powerful insect destroyer and desolant.

Silber, who of little is known, was sleeping at the home of Howard E. Pace, on Rand road near County Line road, where he committed the act. He had been a resident of the community for five or six years, working as a day laborer on various farms.

A search was conducted for relatives. His sons and daughters were finally located Tuesday at Rockford and Winnebago in Winnebago county.

The body was claimed for burial Wednesday and taken to Winnebago for services Friday.

It was learned that Silber's right name was Charles Sanderlich, and he is survived by his estranged wife and 12 children.

According to the testimony given by Mr. Pace at the inquest conducted Friday morning by Dr. J. L. Taylor, Lake county coroner, at the Standard Motor Garage, the family had been in Chicago during the day and upon their arrival home that evening found Silber in a moody condition. He declined to join the family at the evening meal and went for a walk. Upon his return, about while late, he went to his room upstairs. It was shortly after this that Mr. Pace heard a noise and going upstairs found the man on the floor with the empty bottle beside him. He attempted to force milk down Silber's throat but was fought off. Silber followed Pace downstairs when he learned the man was going for police and medical aid.

Outside of the house Silber collapsed and Mr. Pace brought him back before going for aid. Mrs. Pace succeeded in forcing some milk down his throat but it was too late to be effective.

A Barrington boy, 16, of the Daniels and Wilmarth ambulance were called. Silber was hurriedly started toward the Lake Co. hospital, but he died enroute. Deputy Sheriff Joseph Welch was called on the case and also testified at the hearing. The bottle of lysol had been placed in the family medicine cabinet by Mrs. Pace for medical purposes but disappeared three weeks before the act.

Mrs. Pace related to the jurors several other attempts made by Silber to take his life and Carl E. Rudolph, with the State's attorney, also testified that the transient man was given to periods of despondency. Very little light was thrown upon his past history at the inquest but it was learned that he had been a circus trapeze artist for some years and had been married twice.

A verdict of death by lysol taken with suicidal intent was returned with the coroner's jury.

Frank G. Hager Completes 50 Years' Service With C. & N. W.

More than 50 years of service with one company were brought to a close Friday evening, Dec. 21, when Frank G. Hager, 602 Grove avenue, stepped down from a Chicago and North Western railway passenger train to the Barrington platform.

Mr. Hager had in reality completed his 50 years' service as railroad conductor last August but continued to work until the end of the year. He was born in Cuba township on August 25, 1886 and first went to work as a newsboy on trains between Tracy and Sparta, Wis. in 1886.

From there he advanced to rail conductor last August but continued to work until the end of the year. He was born in Cuba township on August 25, 1886 and first went to work as a newsboy on trains between Tracy and Sparta, Wis. in 1886.

Upon their arrival here the group went to the Hager home where the evening was spent in visiting after which refreshments were enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Hager plan to leave for Corpus Christi, Texas, where they will spend the remaining winter months.

Churches cooperating in the project are the Salem Evangelical, St. Paul Evangelical, Baptist and Methodist Episcopal.

Mr. Capilli, vice president of the Waukegan and Winona board of Waluma and Capilli, cement contractors, would be the first to agree with that. But beyond that point he might disagree if someone were to say that the same things do not happen twice.

He knows better.

A year ago last Friday he was driving north on Brinker road's curve to one of the firm's jobs and because of the slippery condition of the road, the car in which he was driving skidded and was thrown into a ditch. The hour was close to 1 a. m.

The first person to come to his assistance that time was Miss Mary Hogan who resides near Brinker road.

Last Friday almost at the exact hour he again was the first to arrive on the scene of an accident in which Mr. Capilli duplicated the 1936 performance. To top of the mishap, occurred on the same spot on Brinker road with the exception that he was driving south this time and she was going north.

Mrs. Lester Higgins will tell members of the Village Garden club of Barrington about chrysanthemums at the January meeting of the club, to be held at the home of Mrs. Allen U. Hunt, 616 Grove avenue, Monday afternoon, Jan. 10. The program will begin at 3 o'clock.

Robin Appears and Paines Bud; When Did Winter Leave?

Robin Redbreast, that usual harbinger of spring, has apparently forgotten how the seasons run for one of the species was seen visiting here, New Year's Day. The bird was noticed by Miss Evelyn Suess, 632 Grove avenue, near her home Saturday.

The vagaries of nature are difficult to understand; especially when robins are seen in this vicinity on New Year's Day and when winter is reported blooming in the yard of Ernest Rogers, 605 Jefferson street, Woodstock.

Despite Robin's appearance here and the patches blooming at Woodstock, residents of Barrington still wear overcoats when outdoors and coal trucks wend their busy way through the streets.

Maybe Robin is the advance agent for his flock and was sizing up suitable living quarters for next year. In event he was reported here.

First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Barrington located at the corner of Main and Wool streets, will be dedicated Sunday, Jan. 9, according to an announcement made by the board of directors of the local church. It is generally known that Christian Science churches are not dedicated until the edifices are free from debt.

Services, to which the public is invited, will be held that day at 10:45 a. m. and 3:30 p. m.

The church building is a white frame structure of the second period colonial style. A four column porch distinguishes the front of the building. Inside, a four wide aisle tends the width of the church.

From this door opens down to the main auditorium, at the front of which is an elevated reader's platform.

The foyer walls are panelled with knotty pine, while those in the main auditorium are in light shades of green, gray and ivory.

The auditorium, which includes a balcony across the church above the foyer, has a seating capacity of 289.

Starting in 1910 with a small group of people meeting in private homes for the reading of the weekly lesson sermon, Christian Science activity in Barrington did not become organized until 1915 when a society was formed, and received recognition from The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

For some time afterwards meetings were held in public halls.

The society developed in a few years into a church organization.

The present site for the building of the church edifice was purchased in 1928 and the first unit of the church structure was built in 1924-1925. The entire building was set aside for the auditorium which is now occupied by the Sunday school. In August, 1924, the enlargement and completion of the church building was begun, and this work is now finished. A reading room was established in 1927 for use by the public. Its present location is at 114 E. Station street.

THE CALL FOR NATIONALISM

It is customary at the year-end to look back with satisfaction and to face the future with assurance. Today, however, we wish to escape from the past and gaze ahead with anxiety. For the world is full of loosened boulders and crumbling rocks, coming from we know not where.

Many of us are still using the logic of materialism, trying by rule of thumb to chart the curves of past mistakes or the inevitable trends of economic law as if the future of the world could be adjusted by mere coalescence of money and product.

Unfortunately our grim search for causes has failed to give emphasis to the realities of life—the impersonal attitudes of individuals toward each other, intensified indeed by the strange behavior of organized peoples so that we observe today the full effects of an irresponsible individualism which has multiplied itself many times over into an unenlightened nationalism that knows neither the chivalry of unselfishness nor the tolerance of mutual concession.

We talk of the past as if we truly wished to bring back its supposed gains, its alleged prosperity. But do we really want to go back a decade or two? Is what we have passed through in the last twenty years an ideal to which we would care to revert if we could? What were the nations talking about in 1912? Why, naval holidays and organized peace. And 1914 came to shatter those aspirations. For eighteen years now we have tried to adjust ourselves to the destructive effects of a philosophy as old as primitive man, a savagery as deadly to the human spirit as if jungle law had gone unrepealed.

We have spent the greater part of the last year blaming each other. We have searched for the culprit who preached the doctrine of speculation and unsound investment, thinking he alone was responsible. We have assumed that the germ could be segregated and guilt made personal in perhaps the banking group, or perhaps the salesmanship group, or perhaps in the unlimited production of excessive quantities of goods. And by the same token we are still groping for a formula that by one means or another of artificial control shall bring back some kind of economic equilibrium to enable us to pay our debts.

Yes; the payment of debts hangs over the whole world like a gathering storm with its flashes of fire ready to strike down great edifices of modern business. In the midst of it all, we hear strange voices, nations that have hitherto respected the morality and pledges and promises, nations that now cry "We can not pay" in tones that too often mean "We will not pay." And we, on our part, join the chorus with the insistent demand "You shall pay, you must pay," a slogan that ignores an age-old relation and forgets that the destruction of the debtor yields no return to the creditor, that trade is not built by isolation and that interchange of goods is the only device which ever produced in normal times a wholesome intercourse between nations.

What is the basis of this newly developed antagonism, this coarseness of spirit and defiance of all that civilization has ever taught us? We fought a war to break down the theory that might makes right. We paid for it in an enormous destruction of human capital and in an unprecedented drain on the credit resources of the world—those pledges of repayment which can only be expressed in mortgages on the earnings of future generations.

It was a terrible price to pay for human progress. It brought a dislocation of the world's economic machinery, first by the subtraction of ten million individuals from mortal life and second by the subsequent miseries of unemployment for twenty-five million more persons. Scarcely had we turned the sod on Flanders' Field when the wake began. A decade of debauchery, such as the modern world has never seen, affected the lives of men, women and children everywhere. The worship of gold begot a reckless indifference to all codes, corporate or personal, in an orgy of unrestrained sin.

The state stood by, an accessory to the crimes of an irresponsible individualism. Selfishness was enthroned in all its cruel majesty. To the faint cry: "This shall never happen again," and the suggestions of a league of peoples to organize mankind, there came the laughter of scorn as if the brotherhood of man had never been given the breath of a dominant religion more than nineteen hundred odd years ago. And thus we developed our irresponsible individualism into a creed of self-centered nationalism.

The hearts of free people are beating nervously as the test approaches next year. And what can we do as the climax draws near? We can turn in these critical hours to the unconquerable spirit of our fathers, the faith that guided the destiny of human life through the dark ages of selfishness and greed in centuries past. For, inevitably, the light of reason and conscience that has been dimmed in a decade of irresponsibility and individualism must slant brightly once more as the new nationalities spread good will on earth—an enlightened nationalism, an intelligent nationalism, a helpful, kindly and benevolent nationalism which alone can mitigate and relieve the universal suffering of mankind. By David Lawrence, in the Chicago Tribune.

This WEEK in WASHINGTON

By RALPH E. CHURCH
Representative, 10th Congressional District

Evanston, Ill., Dec. 31.—At the end of a year it is customary to look back over the road we have traveled and to look ahead in anticipation of even greater progress. We usually end a year with a feeling that we have accomplished much in solving the problems that faced us when the new year began. We usually begin each year with an assurance that it will be a happier and more prosperous one than the one just concluded. It is a time of rejoicing.

Such, unfortunately, does not seem to be the attitude and mood of today as our people greet 1938. Underneath the surface one senses a feeling of discouragement rather than satisfaction with 1937. One senses that 1938 is being welcomed by our people with a feeling of anxiety rather than assurance. There are hunger and weariness where there should be happiness and prosperity. Rather than unity and a spirit of friendly cooperation between organized groups, classes and the government there are divisions and bitterness.

Indeed it is today we should courageously face realities, recognize and boldly acknowledge the errors we have made. It is today that our leaders should draw up resolutions abandoning their selfish policies fostering a constant economic and political warfare. Our hope for 1938 lies with the development of a new spirit and tolerance and cooperation. The new year may bring prosperity but it is idle to speak of it until there has been a change of attitude on the part of the administration and on the part of various groups.

Indeed it is today we should courageously face realities, recognize and boldly acknowledge the errors we have made. It is today that our leaders should draw up resolutions abandoning their selfish policies fostering a constant economic and political warfare.

We are concerned now only with our duty in view of the conditions that confront us, in order that full activity of employment and commerce may be had. To avoid controversy and make for unity, we may dispense with appraisals of policies or arguments. The past is experience and is of value only for its lessons. We propose no criticism, no politics. That is the general spirit and tone of the document. It should constitute the resolution for 1938. Almost all of 1937 was spent in attempting to bring about a vain search for some magic formula. It is to be devoutly hoped that in 1938 the administration will find a basis for cooperation with business and business with the administration, that republicans and democrats will find a basis for cooperation in the common task, that all our people may look to the future with assurance of real prosperity and real happiness in a free country.

Unfinished Business

By TRELLA DICK

"Please give me a quarter to buy some wire, Dad," said Weston to his father, one evening. Automatically, his father reached into his pocket. "For your airplane?" he asked.

"No, I'm working on something else," Ted answered.

Mr. Weston handed over the quarter, and returned to his paper.

Mrs. Weston, on the other side of the table, looked thoughtful.

"Why didn't he finish the airplane?" she wondered to herself.

"Why are the children always asking for money, and never showing anything they have made?"

That same day, Julia, two years older than Ted, had asked for money to buy yarn and needles, so she could learn to knit. Yet the week before she had been very busy weaving a headed headband.

"I'm sure she didn't finish it," thought Mrs. Weston.

"I'm going up to the attic, tomorrow, to see about some of these things."

A little hunting around in the attic playroom, next morning, confirmed her worst fears.

"Here are things they started years ago," she groaned. "I wonder if they've ever finished a single thing. Oh, how I have been a sore burden to my husband!"

"I'm sure he has been a burden," she added.

She stood in deep thought for some time, then hurried to the basement, where she obtained two large boxes. She labelled each of them "Unfinished Business" and filled them with material she found about the playroom. After school, that afternoon, she called the children to the attic and showed them the boxes.

"What on earth!" Ted stung his head late in. "Where'd you find all the old junk, Mama? Look! Here's a boat I started to make when I was in the fourth grade."

"Look at this scrap-book," cried Julia. "I started it years ago, for crippled children."

"I want you to think what these boxes represent," Mrs. Weston said seriously. "In the first place, there's quite a money outlay. But far more important than that is the wasted effort on your part. See all the things you've started, and given up. Think of the weakness in it."

The children looked abashed and said nothing.

It is 1938. It expresses the new spirit of tolerance, unity and cooperation so greatly needed. As expressing that spirit and need of the document are worth quoting here:

"A sudden and extensive recession in business, industry, employment, prices, and values demands instant attention of all in positions of responsibility. To arrest it, to bring it to a standstill, its consequences is the common task. In this as senators we have a duty, and in partial discharge of it we have determined upon this statement:

"We believe that a policy of cooperation by all concerned upon sound lines will suffice to set the economy as a whole on its accustomed way toward higher ground. This cooperation is the object of this address to the American people. It is no time for alarm or pessimism. We have come to the inevitable period of transition, and fortunately the underlying conditions are favorable."

"We are concerned now only with our duty in view of the conditions that confront us, in order that full activity of employment and commerce may be had. To avoid controversy and make for unity, we may dispense with appraisals of policies or arguments. The past is experience and is of value only for its lessons. We propose no criticism, no politics."

That is the general spirit and tone of the document. It should constitute the resolution for 1938. Almost all of 1937 was spent in attempting to bring about a vain search for some magic formula. It is to be devoutly hoped that in 1938 the administration will find a basis for cooperation with business and business with the administration, that republicans and democrats will find a basis for cooperation in the common task, that all our people may look to the future with assurance of real prosperity and real happiness in a free country.

"It's a big order," sighed Ted, beginning to sort the things.

"Yes," his mother said cheerfully.

Weeks later, Mr. and Mrs. Weston were invited to the attic, for an "exhibition."

"It looks like a bazaar," exclaimed Mrs. Weston, surveying in pleased surprise the orderly array of finished articles.

"Come and see my radio, Dad," called Ted.

"I have six presents ready for Christmas," Julia said proudly.

"I'm going to keep the rest of the things. I don't think I'll ever start another bit of sewing, as long as I live; I don't like it. But it's fun to knit; look at the wash-cloth I made."

"I'm through collecting bugs and stamps," Ted declared. "I like making things; it's worth the trouble I've had, to find out what I like, and what I don't like to do."

"And to find there is a satisfaction in making what you start, whether you like it or not," said his mother.

"I am, too," Ted said. "See there!" He pointed to the "Unfinished Business" boxes, standing upside down. "Mine's going to be in that position all the time."

986 Pleasure Car Licenses Sold in Village in 1937

The number of village vehicle tags sold in 1937 was 986 for pleasure cars and 119 for trucks, a total of 1105, according to a report received from A. C. Burandt, village clerk. The number of vehicle tags sold outruns the houses in the village of Barrington, there being approximately $525 houses.

There were 217 dog tags sold during the year.

An indication that 1938 will at least equal the total of 1937 can be taken from the early sale of vehicle tags at present. Mr. Burandt reported a high daily sale of license tags and 24 truck license tags have been distributed.

To Place First Aid Station Here; Train Employees in Course

The personnel of the Heckmiller Service station is receiving training daily in an American Red Cross first aid course preparatory to the installation of a first aid station at the place of business, Hough street and Northwest highway.

The course is being given under the supervision and direction of Arna Holmes of Chicago, American Red Cross first aid instructor. Mr. Heckmiller, John Farnsworth and Mearl Hamilton are attending the class daily from 1 to 4 p. m. The course is to be completed Saturday and within several weeks it is expected the emblems and necessary equipment will be installed.

Several years ago the American Red Cross instituted a program of placing emergency stations at points along heavily traveled highways. The purpose of the act, it was explained, was to train men who are available at all times to render temporary aid to injured motorists while awaiting regular medical aid.

Local Man Is Held After Auto Crash

Three men were injured late Friday afternoon when two cars collided on the highway, 25, about a mile north of the Elgin bridge. Harvey Woodall, 34 years old, of Barrington, who received lacerations about the face and head, was arrested on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated. He was released on bond Monday evening.

The warrant for his arrest was sworn out by Carl H. Wolf, 1133 Hill avenue, Elgin, driver of the other car.

Wolf was accompanied by Clifford Ross, 43 years old, 658 Enterprise street, Elgin, and Joseph Coughlin, 34 years old, 304 Dundee avenue, Elgin. Ross was incarcerated on the following day. Coughlin suffered a fractured ankle. The injured men received treatment at St. Joseph's hospital at Elgin.

Woodall was driving north and Wolf was south bound when the accident occurred. Both cars were badly damaged.

"Policeman of the Forest"

"Policeman of the Forest" is the title given the alert, noisy and quarreling Jaybird. His wild cry sounds like "Thief! Thief!" James Whitcomb Riley, Hoosier poet, termed the Jay "full o' sass-in them baseball clothes of his." And, despite his glorious colors, the Jay is a member of the crow family.

E. Wetten Will Sell Famous Guernsey Herd

Tragedy Climaxes New Year's Party

A herd of Guernsey cattle, with average butterfat record of 5.5 will be offered at dispersal sale, Saturday, Jan. 15 by Emmett Wetten of Wetten farms. Mr. Wetten has made a hobby of dairy cattle for years and his herd has established many records.

Order Execution of Judgment, Sewer Water Bill Monday

Execution of a judgment obtained against J. Keller for failure to pay delinquent village sewer water bill was ordered by the board of trustees Monday night. The execution was ordered to force action against the defendant.

To date Mr. Keller had opposed payment alleging the sewer system is faulty and his basement was been on one occasion flooded by sewerage backing up a condition, he contends, that did not exist before the last sewer job. He had offered to put the money due for sewer and water service in escrow but had been sought and obtained a judgment.

D. B. Maloney, village attorney, pointed out Monday night that the board should not be expected to do the impossible under unfavorable conditions. He was of the opinion traps in floor drains would prevent backing up in basements in those parts of town which are lower than others.

Mr. Maloney felt that this responsibility should rest with the property owner due to the fact heavy rains were uncontrollable. Owners should provide some reasonable protection under unusual conditions, he stated.

Infant Dies

A short service was held at the funeral chapel, 149 W. Main street, Sunday for the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lyons, 210 W. Main street. Rev. W. A. Eckert officiated and burial was in Evergreen cemetery. The infant was born January 1 at the Sherman hospital in Elgin.

Woodall was driving north and Wolf was south bound when the accident occurred. Both cars were badly damaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Hoffman are the proud parents of a baby boy, born at the Sherman hospital, Elgin Tuesday. The infant weighed 9 lbs. 14 oz. at birth. He has been named William Stephen.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Berghorn, 413 S. Hough street, are the parents of a daughter Barbara Ann, born December 30.

Two Major Building Projects

Shown above are two major commercial building projects in the village which are to be placed in operation soon. The upper photo shows a front view of the new Brandt Dairy on W. Northwest highway. This structure will house a modern dairy, display room, office and garage.

The lower picture is the new Deep Rock Oil service station at Main and Lakeshore streets. The local branch offices will be moved into the structure when it is completed in the next few weeks. The present old buildings are to be torn down, it was reported.

Audit Prepared in School Suit, Topic at Board Meeting

An audit of receipts and disbursements of school district No. 4, completed by Charles Anderson and Co. auditors, was presented to the village trustees Monday night by D. B. Maloney, village attorney who stated the compilation had been made for use in the suit by the village of Barrington against district 4 for an accounting.

The suit comes up for hearing in superior court of Cook county January 17 when W. U. Hardwell, member of Eckert and Petersen, attorneys for the district, will file an answer.

Discussing the audit prepared Mr. Maloney stated the auditors went back to founding of the First National Bank of Barrington in 1919 and showed the deposits and withdrawals from that bank and the First State Bank of Barrington.

A point stressed by Mr. Maloney was the fact that at the closing of the First State bank the district had received $47,925 more than deposited there. The late F. L. Waterman was treasurer for the village and school districts and kept all funds in two joint accounts, and consequently could draw on either bank.

The village is claiming over $3000 in shortage and expenses from district 4.

Following a motion made by Trustee John J. Carroll and seconded by Trustee John F. Dasech, the board voted to accept the audit.

Mr. Maloney discussed the last hearing before master in chancery Albert Hall in Waukegan and told the trustees that persons believed to have owned certain invalid bonds never were in possession of them.

These bonds were declared void by a ruling of Judge Linday in Chicago about five years ago and the presumed owners were believed to have been Mrs. Jennie Powers, William Meister, Ella Courtney and Charles Wewetzer. They testified at the hearing that they never had possession of the four bonds in question.

The village attorney stated he was securing necessary information and would present it at the next hearing.

"2nd Honeymoon" Is Week-End Bill at Catlow Theatre

The Life of Emile Zola," Starring Paul Muni,
Here Wednesday

Fifty-seven dollars was all that stood between Ronald Colman and starvation when he arrived in America from London for a stage career soon after the World War. Just after he had spent the last of the money, Colman, who is currently starred in Frank Capra's new picture, "Lost Horizon," showing at the Catlow Thursday and Friday, was given a part in a short-lived play called "The Dauntless Three." He has never had to worry about a role since that time.

Thursday night, only, the Catlow theatre will show the sensational news reel—"The Bombing of the Panay."

His sympathetic portrayal of the villain in "Shirley Temple's recent picture, "The Wizard of Oz," has been a great success. Greeted with handclaps, Caesar Romero's favorable notices that 30th-Century-Fox studio officials are featuring him in a romantic role.

Homero, having played only "heavies" in the past, is cast opposite the lovely Phyllis Brooks in the thrilling screen play by Lou Breslow and John Patrick, "Dangerously Yours," coming Saturday to the Catlow.

"Music for Madame," starring Mino Martini, and featuring Joan Fontaine, is playing on the double feature Saturday with "Dangerously Yours."

Tyrone Power and Loretta Young teamed together in a romantic comedy, "Second Honeymoon," coming on Sunday and Monday to the Catlow, is big news to everyone. The reason is the smart, modern, gay and witty manner that has made them the most exciting sweethearts of the screen. All the world loves a lover, and all the world has followed these two lovers as they show new ways to romance.

One of the Southland's oldest and most popular traditions, the ice cream carnival, is brought to laughing life in "Judge Priest," starring Will Rogers in the title role of Irvin S. Cobb's famous story, playing Tuesday at the Catlow.

Playing the double feature bill Tuesday with "Judge Priest," is "Trapped By 'G-Men,'" starring Jack Holt.

"The Life of Emile Zola," new Paul Muni starring production, and perhaps his best role to date so far, is remarkable in that it has only one "location" setting—that is, a background made away from the Warner Bros. studio. It is the Devil's Island set, for which Goff Island, at Laguna Beach, was transformed into the notorious French penal colony. The picture is coming to the Catlow Wednesday for a three day engagement.

Traveling Caravan Stops in Cary on Journey to Canada

CARY.—A covered wagon, reminiscent of the old pioneer days, stopped at Cary last week where it was inspected by a large number of residents. The horse drawn vehicle was the property of James Stewart, who with his wife and six children, were journeying from Watrous, Saskatchewan, Canada to St. Remi of Naperville near Montreal. This unfortunate family, according to their own stories, were forced to make the long 3000 miles eastward trip when their farm was burned and rusted out at Watrous. A heavy freeze at the Straits of Mackinac forced them down around the lakes, it was learned. They started October 7 and expect to reach St. Remi in February.

Mr. Stewart and his family expect to make their future home on a small truck farm at St. Remi owned by the parents of Mrs. Stewart.

1937 Farm Incomes Gain 7 Per Cent in Illinois Over 1936

Total cash income in Illinois for 1937 from the sale of farm products and from government payments is estimated at $522,001,000 compared with $485,869,000 for 1936, an increase of approximately 7 per cent, according to the annual crop summary issued by the Illinois and federal departments of agriculture. Preliminary estimates for cash income from each of the principal crops are presented for the first time with the December crop report. Since 1924, when such estimates were begun, the peak of Illinois cash farm income was reached in 1929 when it amounted to $548,616,000, but dwindled to $276,703,000 in 1933 for the low point in that 14-year period.

Barrington Bronchos Will Resume Cage War With Ela Team Friday

To Play Waucoda in Non-Conference Contest Saturday

Local Cagers in Shape for Schedule After Long Holiday

A much improved Broncho squad will meet the Ela basketters on the home floor in an effort to knock the first place Lake Zurich squad out of that place Friday evening.

The Ela team has chalked up four victories in four conference starts and are picked by many to come out on top as unofficial winners of the Northwest conference championship. Leuthesser, high scoring center, is the real spark plug of the team during the past two seasons and combined with the tall center, H. Gleason, is expected to be the Broncs' chief worry in the coming game.

Seek Revenge

The Clarkmen will attempt to get revenge for the last quarter defeat of last season, with Leuthesser the main reason for the loss. The Bronks showed considerable improvement in their last two games and should give the veteran Ela team a good fight.

The Ponies will be out for their second win in five attempts. Ela lights have a record of three victories and one defeat up-to-date.

Wauconda Saturday

The Bronchos and Ponies will travel to Wauconda Saturday for their second game of the season with the Waucondas Bulldogs. Both teams are tied for the cellar position in the Northwest conference race. The game will be non-conference and have nothing to do with the conference standings. Although Wauconda is the first team, both teams are evenly matched and the games promise to be close.

Resume Play in Church Cage Loop Here Mon. Night

After a week's lay-off, competition will be resumed in the local church basketball league at the high school gym, Monday night. A spirited battle for first place is foreseen in the second game of the evening when St. Paul and the Methodists meet. The league leaders are undeterred. Methodists must win to end the year as a victory for St. Paul would advance them to a tie with the present leaders. The Methodists have won three straight while St. Paul has won two out of three games.

Salem, tied for second place with St. Paul, will engage St. Anne in the curtain raiser, Monday. Last time out St. Anne gave the Methodists a scare and may repeat that performance against their favored opponents.

Recommends Chinese Elms for Fast Shade

By THE MASTER GARDENER

Do you need some shade around your home in double quick time? A fast growing tree that has none of the undesirable root characteristics of other fast-growing trees like the poplars.

Then by all means plant a Chinese elm. It is beautiful as graceful as the weeping birch. It is hardy as an oak. Its rapid growth is remarkable. It will withstand city soil and gases.

It is suitable for street planting, for landmarks, as a screen planting, or as an individual specimen on the lawn. It attains a height of about 45 feet.

Here are some actual figures on growth recorded. A 6-ft. elm in four years attained a height of 20 feet; a 4-ft. tree in five years attained a height of 40 feet; its trunk (exact at planting not stated) in three years attained a height of 28 feet. These are actual cases recorded by amateur gardeners.

The Chinese elm is adapted to culture throughout the United States.

And another point in its favor: It is surprisingly drought-resistant. A group of trees challenged by a weeping willow, a hardy poplar, cut-leaf birch and Chinese elm, planted in fall, 1936, the Chinese elm was the only one that survived the severe drought of 1936.

If you are thinking of planting a shade tree, consider the Chinese elm.

For maximum growth and beauty, be sure to feed the Chinese elm, as well as other trees on your grounds. Use a complete, balanced plant food. Increased growth.

Measurements have shown that on unusually dark days in a smoky city like Chicago, the intensity is only 1-3,000 of the radiation on a perfectly clear day. In some of the large industrial cities there are very few days when any of the health-giving ultra-violet light reaches the ground.
