An interesting travel talk will accompany his slides. "Marie Curie, My Mother" by Eve Curie was reviewed by Mrs. Clayton Watkins at the public library Tuesday afternoon as the fifth program in the reading course being presented by the literature committee this club year. Excerpts from Mrs. Watkins' talk are as follows: Marie Sklodowska was born in Poland in 1867. Her whole life was devoted to study. She married Pierre Curie who was also a scientific research artist. They had two children, Irene and Eve. Pierre and Marie worked together, working on Henri Becquerel's discovery of the rays of thorium. The Curies discovered radium as a result of 9 years' study of this earlier work. Pierre Curie was killed when Marie was 36 years old. She earned her own living after that teaching at the Sorbonne in Paris. She died of pernicious anemia in 1934. One year later her last book, "Radio-Activity" was published. —Press Committee.
