Jealousy Almost Forced Mozart to Go Into Exile

Mozart, the youngest, most lovable and possibly the greatest of all operatic composers, was almost driven into exile by jealousies that retarded the recognition of his genius before his death and reduced him to want in spite of his tremendous popularity, says Aubrey Boyd in the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Mozart was born in Salzburg, Austria, in 1756. When he was five years old, his memory for music and his delicate ear—capable of detecting and remembering a difference of a half a quarter of a tone—impressed his father that he was taken, with his little sister, Marianna, to perform on the piano before the elector at Munich and before the emperor and court at Vienna. The nobility went wild over the children and especially over "the little magician," as Mozart was called by an emperor who proved less benevolent when the "magician" grew up.

The young prodigies were then hustled away on a triumphant tour through Paris, London, The Hague, Vienna and the musical centers of Italy during some ten years of travel. While still in his early teens, young Mozart composed a number of symphonies and an opera which was repeated to full houses twenty times in Milan, amid cries of "Evviva il Maestro!" "Evviva," he was then composing "Ruggerio," propheticly said, "This boy will come us to be forgotten."

Such popularity, however, arouses jealousies. From the time he was seventeen, Mozart's efforts to obtain a court appointment were constantly being either by the money of patrons or the opposition of envious rivals. Back in Salzburg at the age of twenty-one, he found himself in an intolerable situation.

Biggest Piece of Embroidery The biggest piece of embroidery in the world is probably the Bayeux tapestry, which is literally an embroidery, and is 231 feet long and 30 inches wide. Tradition tells that it was the work of Queen Matilda, wife of William the Conqueror, and her maids. It depicts scenes of the Norman conquest of England and the Conqueror's victory at Hastings. The tapestry is housed in a special building near the Gothic cathedral of Bayeux, France. The embroidery is on a background of coarse linen and has preserved its tints of dark and light blue, red, green, gray, beige and brown.

Probate $5,000 Will of William H. Bell

The late William H. Bell, who died in Cuba township on June 12, left an estate of $5,000, all in personal property, according to his will filed in probate court this week.

The will gives his widow the household and personal effects, as well as the home, which was in joint tenancy. The residue of his property is given to his daughter, Mrs. Edith Martin of Barrington. The Harris Trust and Savings Bank was appointed executor.

The will of the late Fredrick Lippert, who died in Chicago, June 16, was admitted to probate this week and gives her $4,000 estate to her four children. A daughter, Mrs. Hattie Werner, lives in Palestine.

Mrs. Norman Vesey and infant daughter, Shelby Jean, returned home from the Sherman hospital, Elgin, last Thursday.

Fish Scales Give Pearly Sheen "Essence d'orient," the brilliant coating obtained from the scales of certain fish, is used to give plastics a pearly sheen, says Industrial and Engineering Chemistry. The particles are colorless, nearly transparent, extremely small, and possess a beautiful luster. When suspended in a protective colloid, such as a pyroxin dispersion, the brilliancy is permanent.

Cormorant Fishing in Japan Cormorant fishing is a big industry among Chinese and Japanese. The birds are trained to catch fish and bring them to their owners. But knowing cormorants' great gluttony, owners take no chances and put metal rings around the birds' necks to keep fish from being gulped.

True Beauty After all, the most natural beauty in the world is honesty and moral truth; for all beauty is truth. True features make the beauty of a face, and true proportions the beauty of architecture, as true measures that of harmony and music. In poetry, which is all truth, still is the perfection.—Lord Shaftesbury.

Birth of the "Marsellaise" There is a popular story that the inspiring "Marsellaise" was written as the result of a burst of patriotism. Actually, the song seems to have been written not at Marselles, but at Strasbourg as a result of the mayor complaining that there was no real marching song for the troops. Rouget de Lisle composed the words, but doubt exists as to the composer of the music, says Pearson's London Weekly. "The Marsellaise" was first played at a review of the Garde Nationale on April 20, 1792, and first achieved fame when sung by the republican troops that assaulted the Tuilleries a few months later.

Oldest Lighthouse in America The oldest lighthouse in America is Boston light station. Built in 1716, it was knocked down during the Revolution, rebuilt in 1782. It was then 60 feet high, lit by four whale oil lamps. The tower, 90 feet high, contains the original stones, in use more than 222 years, plus additions.
