

Shirley Temple Is Star of Week-End Feature at Catlow

Plays Role in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" Here
Sunday - Monday

When Lou Gehrig stepped up to bat for the first game of the 1938 season he recorded his 200th big league game, 1965 of which have been consecutive. He also completed his first venture in feature motion pictures, in co-starring role with singing cowboy Smith Ballew in "Rawhide," the thrilling western showing at the Catlow Saturday.

Saturday brings a double feature bill to the Catlow theatre patrons, "Little Miss Roughneck," with Leo Carillo and Edith Fellows playing the bill with "Rawhide."

Shirley Temple's newest nickname on the set of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" was Shirley McCarthy.

Reason, it seems, is that Shirley and her parents recently had dinner with Edgar Bergen at the home of friends. After dinner, Charlie McCarthy came out of his traveling case, and immediately proposed to Shirley!

Playing at the Catlow Sunday and Monday, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" stars Shirley Temple with Randolph Scott heading the stellar cast.

Phil Bloom, who once fought Jack Britton for the world's midweight crown—and Bob Perry, who battled the famous Joe Gans to a 30-round draw, will give the boxing fans a thrill in "Mr. Moto's Gamble," film thriller of murder in the squared circle.

Peter Lorre is starred as the famous international sleuth who solves the mystery when the picture plays at the Catlow Tuesday.

Double featured with "Mr. Moto's Gamble," is "Prestige or Romance," featuring Wendy Barrie, Kent Taylor and Mische Auer. It hurt Gary more than it did Claudette, but not in the same way!

When the script of "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" called for Cooper to take the lovely Miss Colbert across his knee and give her a sound spanking, he flatly refused to be a party to such violence and threatened to leave the set until the scene was rewritten. When even the pleadings and threats of Producer-Director Ernst Lubitsch were ineffective, Miss Colbert stepped in and told Cooper that she insisted on strict adherence to the line of action called for. The lanky actor then weakened and went through with the beating.

This spanking is only one of the many rough-and-tumble sequences of this comedy of life among Europe's smart set which will start on Wednesday for a 3-day engagement at the Catlow. Supporting Miss Colbert and Cooper are a dozen well known Hollywood players, including Edward Everett Horton and David Niven.
