Gold Seekers Take Gold "Nuggets" From Theatre

Impressed by the old saying "gold is where you find it," some zealous wealth seekers spoiled the display of H. C. Ryhan, Waukegan theatre manager, last week when they took away part of a lobby display. Ryhan had gone to the Lake Michigan beach and collected a number of bags of stones and sand to be used in connection with the movie "Gold Is Where You Find It," and gilded the stones. The sand was placed in currency bags and placed on the table along with the nuggets. Apparently the gleaming stones appeared too real, for some movie patron "struck pay dirt" and went home with the major part of the display. At all which caused Ryhan considerable meditation as he spent long hours gilding additional stones.

Live 20 Miles Apart But Meet Once in 52 Years

H. L. Bockelman, Palatine hardware merchant, and Fred Voelker of Mundelein went to school together many years ago, in fact 52 years ago, but had not met since that time. This fact might pass unnoticed except for the fact they live only 20 miles apart. The best plausible explanation might be that they never lost their home towns. However, Voelker was in Palatine on business last week and when he saw Bockelman's store sign, he did spend a few extra minutes in reunion conversation.

Ringwood Man Suffers Eye Injury in Fishing Trip

James Harrison of Ringwood nearly suffered the loss of his right eye while on a fishing trip in Northern Minnesota last week. Along with a party of friends, Harrison had gone out on a lake for a day's fishing. Shortly before returning home he was struck in the face by a friend's fishing plug as it was being cast. The hook became deeply imbedded in the eyeball. He was taken to Elgin, Minn., for first aid. The wound was so serious that he was later removed to Duluth, Minn., where efforts were made to save his sight.

Angler Inaugurates New Way of Hooking Chickens

When Leander Riley, colored Waukegan resident, noticed a stranger hanging around his chicken yard one day last week he didn't give it much thought. Nor were his suspicions aroused by the fact the stranger had a fishing pole in his hand. A closer examination later, Riley told Waukegan police, revealed that the angler was baiting his hook and tossing it into the chicken yard, where the bait was accepted by Riley's birds. Three plump chickens were landed in this unique and
