ANOTHER POINT FOR RURAL ZONING

The value of a zoning ordinance for land lying outside the he value u. a zoning ordinance for land lying outside the boundaries of municipalities is being more clearly demonstrat-ed as time progresses. Of particular interest is the battle now being waged between the village of River Forest and the and being waged netween the village of River Forest and the Gity of Chicago. The River Foresters are engaged in a legal battle to prevent the City of Chicago from dumping garbage on some land within a short distance of the smaller commun-battle to prevent the City of Chicago from dumping garbage on some land within a short distance of the smaller community.

The matter is now in court and may remain there for a long time. All the trouble and cost could have been obviated if a zoning restriction and land usage ordinance were in effect. The counties of DuPage, Kane and Lake now have the face of some chonoxion businesses or conditions arising within their boundaries.

Of greater importance to residents of the Barrington community on the Cook county side is the stops being taken by the Barrington Countryside Owners' association to place all the land distaide the village limits under certain stipulated and the stage of the stops of the large and expensive undertaking, but the net results will far exceed the labor and money entailed. It is still better to lock the barn before the horse is gone.

THE TWO SYSTEMS OF GOVERNMENT

One thousand, nine hundred, and thirty-nine years have passed since the birth of Christ, and in all that time the world has not produced another perfect man.

world has not produced another perfect man.

Most of the people in the world are pretty good people, when you get to know them, but none of them are perfect. Some of them are not as thirtly as they ought to be, and others are too thrifty; some of them get excited too quickly, and others don't get excited as quickly as they should; some of them are not very smart, and others are too smart. And every man makes some mistacle sought short are too smart, and others are too smart and very smart perfect people. There cannot be only perfect seedly—because a society is only what its people are produced to the produced of th good society and government. The two systems of society and government that are most generally in use today are the "paternalistic" system, and the "democratic" or "competi-

The paternalistic system is based on the effort of one imperfect man (or a small group of imperfect men) to com-bine millions of imperfect people into a perfect society. Rus-sia, Germany, and Italy now have this kind of a system.
