The noted prison chaplain accepted Father Hayes' invitation to visit Barrington, and will deliver a lecture Monday evening at 8 o'clock in St. Anne's auditorium.

That's why the new DYNAFLASH ENGINE, and TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING, make the 1938 Buick chassis the Most Modern in the World

IT'S literal fact that you ride the whirlwind when your foot is on the treadle that bosses the new Buick DYNAFLASH engine.

Every five inches this thrilling car travels, a fist-size hurricane lets go in a cylinder head, lending tornadic force to the downward power-push of the piston.

You feel the swell and lift of it, the dynamic eager flow of it to the quickening wheels, but you feel it tamed to the firm cool smoothness of polished marble through silk.

Every action of this magnificent traveler is a miracle of poise and quiet and security, and every drop of gasoline you burn gives up gloriously more of its hidden power.

Slip into the driver's seat, sample for yourself the inspired engineering that sets the 1938 Buick head and shoulders above any other automobile you will meet this year.

Apart from the flashing beauty of the car, its luxurious room, its sumptuous fittings, measure the astounding performance of it, and the ride that matches its astonishing stride.

That level, floating, jarless going, that sense of almost flying, is given you by Buick's new TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING, which, adding new safety to new comfort, also lengthens rear tire life and blessedly reduces skids.

Not one but both of the standout engineering features of 1938 are yours in the new Buick—which tells you how to make your every new-car dollar do its full duty this next year!

'Borneo' Feature Attraction at the Catlow Saturday

Setting out for that part of the far east where no explorers had ever been, on a venture so perilous that government authorities at first refused a permit, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson found incredible marvels on the strange island of Borneo, where they filmed their greatest adventure, "Borneo", a Twentieth Century-Fox release coming on Saturday to the Catlow theater. There will be a special matinee of "Borneo" in the afternoon.

The evening show is a double feature of "Borneo", and "Think Fast, Mr. Moto", starring Peter Lorre, with Virginia Field, Thomas Beck and Sig Rumann.

There will be a midnite Halloween show, "The Case of the Black Cat", with color cartoon, comedy and musical added to the bill.

When he finished his part in the Warner Bros. picture, "That Certain Woman" four-year-old Dwane Day was officially presented with a sailor suit, a drum, and a very fancy tricycle by Bette Davis, the star, and Director Edmund Goulding.

Dwane plays the son of Miss Davis, and Henry Fonda is in the picture. His part is one of the most important in the film and much of the action revolves around him. "That Certain Woman" comes to the Catlow theater on Sunday and Monday.

Anyone addicted to fast driving or inclined to be reckless behind the wheel of an automobile will find a lot of pertinent information in the research results obtained by Harry Lachman, director of "The Devil Is Driving", starring Richard Dix and featuring Joan Pedry.

"The Devil Is Driving", a thrill-packed tale of the accident evil, is the current attraction at the Catlow theater on Tuesday. Double featured with "The Devil Is Driving", is the latest Jones Family picture, "Hot Water".

The combined men and women's glee clubs of California's Pomona college are to be heard in colorful campus singing sequences of Warner Bros. elaborate new musical, "Varsity Show", in which Dick Powell and Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians are starring. The picture comes to the Catlow theater next Wednesday for three days.

The Men's club has won eleven of the last fourteen annual singing contests in the Pacific Southwest conference and have been national champions. The Dome's club won the Pacific Southwest Conference title last year.

Training Course for Scouters and Cubbers, Oct. 30-31

On next Saturday and Sunday, October 30 and 31, the Northwest Suburban Council Boy Scouts of America, in cooperation with North Shore Area (Highland Park) Evanston, Oak Park and West Suburban (LaGrange) Councils, will conduct two week-end training courses, one at Camp Doodridge, near Libertyville, for Cubbing and one at Camp Evanbosco, the overnight camp of the Evanston council located at Deer Grove, just east of Barrington for Scouters and Cubbers.

In the Scouting course at Camp Evanbosco, three training courses are offered which will provide opportunity for all leaders to participate in something of benefit to them.

The course "Elements of Scout Leadership Part I" will be for the newer men and is the first course necessary for those interested in obtaining the Scoutmasters Key Award or the Scouters Training Award.

The course "Principles of Scout Leadership" is for those who have completed the former course and is also a requirement of the five year training program.

A specialization course particularly for veteran Scouters will give the men who have had experience in leadership an opportunity to get together for discussion on the general subject "Troop Problems and Motivation."

Synopsis: A card game is in session in Elmer Henderson's penthouse atop a New York skyscraper. The players are: Henderson, Police Inspector Flaherty, Martin Frazier, Archie Doane, Max Michaelis and his friend Williams, a stockbroker.

They are waiting for Stephen Fitzgerald. When he fails to appear, a telephone call brings the information that he is out with a girl. Fitzgerald and Henderson are both romantically interested in Lydia Lane, the famous actress, but Archie Doane reveals that she is engaged to marry him.

Doane leaves the party early when Fitzgerald fails to appear. A short time later he telephones inspector Flaherty with the frantic news that he has found Fitzgerald and Miss Lane dead in Lydia Lane's penthouse apartment.

When Flaherty and the medical examiner reach the apartment, they find that Miss Lane is still alive. She is rushed to a hospital where blood transfusions and care promise to restore her.

All circumstantial evidence points to Archie Doane as the murderer, especially when the murder gun is found carefully planted in the chimney clean-out in the basement.

Miss Lane's French maid, Adele Marceau, has been overheard threatening to shoot Fitzgerald if he did not stop annoying her. The janitor reports that Mademoiselle Marceau works in a night club on her day off and that she had talked to him in the basement on the night of the murder.

Medical examination reveals that Lydia Lane had been given a hypodermic injection of a hypnotic drug before being shot, and that Fitzgerald's body also shows the mark of a hypodermic needle on his leg.

"Still, that was only a possibility. Unless I could connect Henderson with sufficient knowledge of drugs to warrant the assumption that he had administered something to Miss Lane which had caused unconsciousness, and something to Fitz, after the shooting, to keep the semblance of life in him for hours, with a bullet through his heart, I had nothing tangible to go on."

"After I left you gentlemen and had got Archie bedded down for the night I called up a private detective agency and had them station four men to watch this building and Henderson. I hoped that his suspicions would not be aroused before we were ready to act, and I did not want to plant a suspicion on him in your mind. Dan, until I had more information. That would have possibly been doing him a tremendous injustice, but I felt responsible if he should attempt flight."

"Then I telephoned to my friend Joe Everett, the lawyer in Pasadena of whom you heard me speak to Henderson last night, and I asked him to get a full report by wire at the earliest possible moment."

"Then I called two eminent medical men out of their comfortable beds, greatly to their disgust. One of them assured me that I was correct in my recollection of the efficacy of adrenalin in a case of gunshot wound in the heart; a strong hypodermic injection of it had been known to keep a man alive five hours. The other eminent medico told me that any one of several drugs, including hyoscin, could be administered hypodermically or by the mouth to produce a state bordering on hypnotism, in which the patient would be to all intents and purposes unconscious, but would suffer no permanent harm and have no recollection afterwards of what had occurred.

"I formed no conclusion then as to how or when a drug had been administered to Miss Lane, as we did not know then about the pin which, as she supposed, had punctured her leg. And it was only guesswork that Fitz had been given a hypodermic of adrenalin."

"Adele Marceau's story about the pin, the medical examiner's report of finding the mark of the needle in Fitz's leg, the telephone company's report of no calls from that phone until Archie called you, Dan, all tended to confirm my suspicions. Then came this telegram from Joe Everett. I won't bother to read it all—it's unnecessary now—but he reports, in brief, that Elmer Henderson formerly practiced medicine there, specializing in diseases of women and particularly in the use of the so-called 'twilight sleep' in childbirth. He was convicted of criminal malpractice, served a year in prison, and his license to practice was revoked. Then he turned to electrical invention and produced a new method of recording sound on films."

"I knew, even before we heard Miss Lane's story in the hospital just now, that Henderson was the murderer. I felt that I had enough evidence on which to convict him. I am neither a policeman or a prosecutor, but there was no way to extricate my client, Archie Doane, from the suspicion, if not the direct accusation of murder, unless I could prove that some one else did this crime."

"I had hoped to confront Henderson here with the evidence I had accumulated and to see him arrested and punished for his deed but he had forestalled us. He was keen enough to note the presence of my private detectives, too, and to guess what they meant. So he chose the gambler's way out. He had lost, and he paid."

"Am I right, Henderson?"

The man across the table was sagging in his chair, his head drooping, as Michaelis finished. He roused himself and turned his face toward the lawyer. "Absolutely right in every detail," he said, in a voice which had lost its resonance and tone.

"May I ask one question, then?" Henderson nodded assent.

"Mere curiosity, but did you lure Fitz to Miss Lane's by the same device that later called Doane there?"

Again the nod of assent.

"You placed a pin in her dress in the taxi, to account to her for the prick of the hypodermic needle? You knew she would be unconscious within a few minutes after you had left her at her rooms? You returned to your own rooms and called Fitzgerald to her apartment with her filmed voice, over your own telephone? You then hurried back to Miss Lane's apartment, met Fitzgerald there, perhaps pretended that you, too, had received the same summons? And you shot him while he was about to call for medical help for the unconscious girl? And then you shot Miss Lane through the arm, to give color to the theory of an attempted double murder? Then you threw the gun down the chimney?"

The sagging head nodded again. "You planned it from the beginning, to lure Archie Doane to the apartment and let him be discovered there, with no other explanation of the crime than that he had done it. You wanted Lydia Lane yourself, and you thought to get your two rivals out of the way by having one executed for the murder of the other. You made sure that he had reached his rooms by ringing up and asking for a fictitious person."

The drooping figure across the table raised his head again.

"And a keener mind than mine frustrated a perfect crime," said Elmer Henderson, as his chin dropped on his chest and his body seemed to relax and slip downward.

"Say the omniscient mind of God rather," said Max Michaelis, as the others eased the lifeless body to the floor just as the ambulance surgeon's ring sounded at the doorway. "But for the evidence of the snow it would have been a perfect crime—the evidence supplied from above which proved that Archie Doane could not have done it."

A perfect crime. Not a detail overlooked—except the snow.

"I was brought up, gentlemen, to save the innocent and punish the guilty."

"The end of a game little crook," said Dan Flaherty, without an inflection of pity in his voice, as the ambulance surgeon rose from his examination of what had been Elmer Henderson, and shook his head.

"If he had not suggested the chimney, we might never have looked there," said Martin Frazier.

"That would have made no difference to his plans," said Max Michaelis.

"Sooner or later the weapon would have been found. Meantime Archie would have been under suspicion, and the finding of the gun would have sent him to the chair—except for the snow."

He glanced at the two documents they had witnessed.

"Brief but not complete," he said, as he passed one of them to Inspector Flaherty. "This confession belongs to your records, Dan."

He cast his eyes over the other

"Equally brief and equally complete," he said. "Henderson's will leaves everything to Lydia Lane. He was a game one."

"How did you know he was going to confess?" asked the Inspector, as he turned toward the telephone to summon the medical examiner.

"I didn't, until he held us at the door. I suspected then that he was administering poison to himself; I was sure of it when he mentioned the men I had posted around the building. It was the way a gambler like Henderson would take—the easiest way when the game was up."

ANTHOCYANINURIA

Keneth aged six came running with John's little pot. John aged two trotted along behind. Both childish faces shone with an excitement that was compound of pride and fear. Kenneth felt important as the bearer of startling evidence, John in the accomplishment of an unprecedented feat. Within the pot was the liquid which John had just produced. It was a rather vivid red.

Now if mother had been scared, had looked startled, had cried: Oh dear whatever is that? then the children's anxiety would quickly have changed to panic. Fear would have struck deep into the plastic minds and left its scars perhaps for life. But mother showed not even a trace of surprise. All she said was Beetroots and from the tone of her voice the youngsters knew at once that whatever lay behind the mystery it was nothing that they need fear.

Then mother explained to them that when little boys or girls eat lots of beets sometimes the color from the beets goes into the blood, from the blood into the kidneys and comes out into the urine. If she had been a doctor talking to grownups she might have added that the beetroot dye is named anthocyanin and the passage of beet-stained urine goes by the grand name of anthocyaninuria. That's something for you to be proud of, isn't it, John; even though it is commoner than you supposed?

Happy the children who can buffer themselves from dread of the unknown by the wisdom and tact of a mother who understands.

Beginning of the World War

The spark that ignited the world conflagration—the costliest war in history—was set off on June 28, 1914, when Archduke Franz Ferdinand and his wife of Austria-Hungary were assassinated at Serajevo, Serbia. Austria-Hungary served an ultimatum on Serbia. The latter was evasive in answering, and war was declared.

Many Listen to Sermon by Ream at Meetin' House

The services held Sunday afternoon at the Barrington Center Methodist church, known to many, and spoken of by Rev. Ream reverently as the "Meeting House," was well attended. After a short song service led by Otis Hasty of the Allotted Time quartet, Rev. T. E. Ream of Elgin, a former pastor of Barrington, gave a very interesting and inspiring talk on "Light or Darkness—Which?", taking his text from the fourteenth chapter of Exodus, 20th verse.

Forty-three years ago, Rev. Ream preached his first sermon in this "Meeting House", and he called attention to the Bible from which he read, as being published in 1859.

The Allotted Time quartet of Elgin, the oldest quartet in the world, from the standpoint of ages, rendered three numbers and were very much appreciated.

This quartet composed of William Beery, 86, Otis Hasty, 70, E. D. Cook, 78, and Mylo Hass, 68, with an aggregate in years of 302, have won fame on the radio, having appeared in New York on "We, the People" program, and just lately from Elgin with Jerry Belcher on a program "Interesting Neighbors."

Mrs. Rowe of Elgin sang a solo. This meeting brought together friends and neighbors of that community of long ago, and they stayed to enjoy a pot luck supper and a short program.
